Jobless Bill Gives Area $11M Boost

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The federal government moderated its tough stand on unemployment insurance Tuesday — and Victoria comes out as one of the big winners.

Bowing under mounting pressure, including from within his own Liberal party caucus, Manpower Minister Bud Cullen unveiled the relaxed measures at a House of Commons manpower committee hearing.

The result is that Victoria and Vancouver gain $11 million in extra benefits, far ahead of any other region in the country.

Only one other province, aside from B.C., picks up benefits — Nova Scotia with an extra $3 million.

With Cullen's new proposal UIC will be more responsive to regional problems. The original changes proposed by Cullen would have no regional flexibility, and MPs from more depressed areas were the loudest in objecting to them.

Although parts of the B.C. Interior lose benefits, Vancouver and Victoria gain a total of $11 million, with the result that the province over-all will receive $4 million in additional benefits.

All other provinces but B.C. and Nova Scotia lose benefits.

The original changes boosted the unemployment insurance qualification period. The new proposals streamline the process of qualification for benefits.

Under the old system, still in effect, the minimum qualifying period is eight weeks, the maximum time for receiving benefits is 44 weeks. The original set of changes, known as Bill C-27, would have increased the qualification period to 12 weeks and the maximum benefit period to 32 weeks. Cullen's latest move puts the minimum qualification at 10 weeks and the maximum benefits at 42 weeks.

The 10-week minimum, however, would be open only to persons in the high-unemployment regions of the country—southern B.C., Quebec's Eastern Townships and the St. Lawrence and Gaspe areas, and the four Atlantic provinces. It would be 11 weeks in Vancouver and Victoria, 12 in Montreal, 13 in Eastern and Northwestern Ontario, London, Windsor, Hamilton and Toronto and the maximum, 14 weeks, in the three Prairie provinces.

Entitlement to benefits would be just as varied, from a low in the low-unemployment areas such as the Prairies to a high in Atlantic Canada.

Reaction to the proposals was mixed. Lincoln Alexander, the Progressive Conservative manpower spokesmen, offered grudging congratulations to the minister, saying "I think you're heading in the right direction."

New Democratic Party critic John Rodriguez was against it, as he was against the original changes, saying the latest proposals will increase the system's complexity. "We think we have problems now?" Rodriguez said.

Even Quebec Liberal backbencher Charles-Eugene Dionne was against the proposals because of their complexity and while Cullen agreed his newest ideas were complicated, they were all "in the interests of equity."

POLICE KILL SNIPER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A sniper who kept residents out of their homes and police at bay all night died early today from a shotgun blast.

Police fired two shotgun blasts as the man came out shooting. Police special weapons units had been exchanging fire with the sniper, a 29-year-old man from Montreal, for six hours. The entire incident lasted about seven hours.

Dead is Kenneth Reed.

Residents of a two-block area in the Kitsilano district were earlier asked by police to evacuate their homes and go to a nearby public school where they waited for the drama to end.

NEWS BRIEFS

Quilt Case Closed

A third inquest into the death of Chilcotin Indian Fred Quilt has been ruled out by Attorney-General Garde Gardom because it "would reopen old wounds and be counter-productive to the improvement of relations between native people and law enforcement personnel." (See story on Page 17.)

'No Impropriety'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Nine city aldermen Tuesday said they have seen no evidence of impropriety by elected officials in land developments in this interior city. They were responding to a BCTV series on the city's land development policies. See story on Page 22.

CN Shows a Profit

OTTAWA (CP) — A tight rein on spending and a reduction of nearly 4,000 employees has resulted in an $11.8-million profit by Canadian National Railways, the first surplus in 20 years. See story on Page 33.

Murder Charged

NANAIMO (CP) — Laura Elaine Bell, 21, of Parksville, was scheduled to appear in provincial court here Thursday charged with the murder of her 10-month-old son.

SORTER'S A SHREDDER

TORONTO (CP) — Letter-sorting machinery at Toronto postal plants is shredding hundreds of letters daily, a post office spokesman said Tuesday.

However, Ed Roworth, district public relations manager, said only a tiny percentage of the five million letters and parcels handled daily are damaged by the equipment, brought into use in January.

OFFICERS VOTE STRIKE

Ferries Walkout Looms Next Week

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

A union spokesman said today it appears B.C. Ferries' officers are voting overwhelmingly to strike and 72-hour notice could be served as early as Monday.

Peter Marshall, spokesman for the licensed component of the B.C. Government Employees Union, made the comment on the basis of feelings expressed at several strike-vote meetings.

The 500 officers began the strike vote last Tuesday because of mounting grievances against ferry management.

The final vote will be taken Thursday at Kelsey Bay. The ballots will be counted and the results released Friday.

"It looks like an overwhelming strike vote, based on the tone of the meetings," Marshall said.

"If that is the case, 72-hour strike notice will be served Monday."

He said the decision to serve strike notice on the crown corporation would be up to the executive but added there will be little choice if the vote is overwhelming.

The fleet officers have been without an agreement since July 1, 1975, and their main grievance is that the wage increase is being held back to try to force licensed personnel to accept recommendations of an industrial inquiry commission conducted by lawyer Hugh Ladner.

The officers object to Ladner's recommendations on internal issues, such as the right to change work schedules, limit temporary vacancies and scheduling time off.

The licensed component is also upset by a management decision to cut the Horseshoe Bay-Langdale service in half in October, resulting in a layoff of 28 of 56 officers. The union says this brings the total number of people eliminated this year to 500.

Marshall said Charles Gallagher, ferries general manager, didn't help matters by failing to respond to a union letter April 15 requesting the resumption of negotiations.

The officers asked that the matter be raised at a B.C. Ferries Corp. board of directors meeting Tuesday.

By not responding to the union's letter, Marshall said, Gallagher is "just heaping coals on the fire."

"Management of the ferry system has taken labor relations back to the time of Charles Dickens," Marshall added.

The ferries corporation has asked the Labor Relations Board to rule that the officers' strike vote is illegal.

However, a spokesman for the board said the corporation's complaint is being held in abeyance pending a decision by the LRB on the question of union certification.

The question to be settled by the LRB is whether there should be a single or double certification for the licensed and unlicensed workers on the ferries.

THE ANNUAL SALMON harvest in the fisheries industry has begun with the arrival of the first catches of the season at the B.C. Packers' dock on Dallas Road. Early landings are reported to be light, mainly due to poor weather off the coast.

Earnings Up Sharply For M-B

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. had first-quarter earnings of $7.7 million or 36 cents a share, up sharply from $600,000 or three cents a share for the same period in 1976, company president C. Calvert Knudsen said Tuesday.

Knudsen told the annual meeting of the giant forest products company that sales and other income during the quarter were $369.3 million, up from $358.5 million.

Knudsen said although the company expected 1977 earnings to be substantially better than 1976, it does not expect the full year to show anywhere near as a large a gain over 1976 as in the first quarter.

The first-quarter report noted that operations were adversely affected by severe weather conditions in eastern Canada and the United States and by soft pulp markets in Europe and Japan.

It said those factors were more than offset by higher values of the U.S. dollar and pound sterling compared to the Canadian dolllar and by reduced transportation losses.

Sewage Issue Unresolved

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

A report today that a solution has been found to the controversial Shoal Bay sewage issue was branded totally inaccurate by municipal spokesmen.

The report, carried in today's Colonist, claimed that the Capital Region Board at a meeting Monday decided to lengthen a sewage outfall at McMicking Point rather than build a hotly-opposed pumping station at Shoal Bay and connecting trunk to Clover Point.

"That's wrong," Victoria Mayor Mike Young said today. He is chairman of the committee, not the regional board, which met Monday.

"That's an off-target story," said Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith, "and I hope it doesn't stir false hopes. It's based on hope, not fact."

Smith said the issue is "nowhere near a decision."

City Ald. Murray Glazier, another regional director at the committee meeting, said what the story related isn't what happened at all.

Regional director Sandy Noel, a Saanich alderman, said he was "most amazed" to hear of the story because nothing was settled at the meeting.

Gas Ration In Canada By 1983?

EDMONTON (CP) — Gasoline rationing in Canada may be a reality by 1983 or 1984, a board member of the Alberta Oil Sands Technology and Research Authority, said Tuesday.

Reg J. Humphreys, also an oil sands consultant and former vice-president and general manager of Great Canadian Oil Sands Co. Ltd., said if more attention had been turned toward the oil sands in northwestern Alberta, Canada could have been self-sufficient in oil by now.

Humphreys, speaking to the western association of Canadian Highway Officials, said until recently oil supply was in balance in Canada and it was assumed Canada had a 30-year supply but, because major Arctic and offshore discoveries failed to materialize, there now is only a seven-year supply.

He said he has always been puzzled by the lack of emphasis in developing the oil sands.

Saanich Woman to Face 15 More Fraud Charges

The number of counts of fraud laid against Lauren Gail Phillips climbed today to 20 involving more than $128,000.

The 31-year-old Saanich woman appeared in provincial court charged with defrauding 15 persons of $92,950.

Last Wednesday she was charged with defrauding five other persons of $35,260.

Mrs. Phillips, a divorced mother of one child, remained silent as the new charges were read in provincial court.

Judge William Ostler granted a request by Victoria lawyer Bruce McConnan, representing the accused, for a remand to May 9 for election of trial method and plea.

The charges stem from an investigation into what Saanich police have described as a pyramid sales scheme involving as many as 400 persons and more than $700,000.

In the counts read today, Mrs. Phillips is charged with defrauding Alan Renwick of $2,500, Dawson Staniforth of $3,300, Arthur Vickers of $13,900, William Hussey of $5,700, Gary Tennant of $2,500, Knute Krogstead of $5,600, Ralph Nieforth of $4,200, Raymond Rogers of $9,500, William Brecknell of $4,700, Douglas Dickie of $12,500, Frank Sparks of $7,800, James Chidlow of $7,000, William Gleeson of $5,450, Norman Winguist of $4,100 and Lawrence Hesketh of $4,200.

A police investigation is continuing in the case.

Officers so far have recovered a large quantity of goods as well as 15 automobiles.

Eagleson Faces Threat of Suit

VIENNA, Austria (CP) — An International Ice Hockey Federation official threatened Wednesday to sue Alan Eagleson for remarks the Toronto lawyer made at a news conference the previous day in which he alleged IIHF secretary general Walter Wasservogel "stole money from his pockets."

Eagleson, agent for a number of professional hockey players and chairman of international hockey for the Canadian governmet, admitted the word "stolen may be a strong word."

"All I know is somebody screwed me out of $20,000."

Wasservogel confronted Eagleson at a news conference with a story that appeared in a Vienna newspaper in which Eagleson was quoted as saying the general secretary "stole money from his pockets."

Speaking through an interpreter, the IIHF official was also upset by a statement Eagleson made, saying Canada was forced to buy 100 seats for the United States-Finland game at the world hockey championships Tuesday afternoon in order to be able to purchase 100 seats for the Canada-Czechoslovakia game which followed.

Eagleson said Canada purchased in total about $50,000 worth of tickets for the tournament, "but $20,000 worth of tickets are useless."

"The only money they (the organizing committee) will make will be what they stole from us," Eagleson is quoted as saying Tuesday, a comment that upset Wasservogel.

After Eagleson explained his position Wednesday, Was-

Drunks Beware: The Suds Squad Is Coming

Call 'em Rafe's Raiders. Or maybe the Suds Squad.

They'll be easy to spot in your favorite pub. They'll be the ones in the corner, quiet, steely-eyed, alert for under-age drinkers and patrons under the table.

Formation of the undercover squad — to be composed of 25-30 university students — was announced Tuesday by Consumer Affairs Minister Rafe Mair.

Their job: To seek out and snitch on underage drinkers and bartenders who continue to serve patrons who have obviously had enough.

Mair said in Vancouver the pub policing project will kick off this summer. If it's a success, it may be continued year round.

Frank Burger, president of the B.C. Hotels Association, said today his 425-member group has no objections.

"The reputable operators are not concerned about how they go about the inspections as long as they do it in a fair manner," said Burger, owner of the King's Hotel in Victoria.

He said he hopes the government will not focus its attention only on the hotels but on all liquor outlets where under-age drinkers can get liquor.

He said there have been incidents of pubs serving under-age drinkers but these are generally isolated cases where operators have not bothered to check the patrons.

Burger said cabaret-style operations are more apt to attract under-age drinkers because of the type of music they provide.

He also said he hopes the government will hire student inspectors who would be knowledgeable enough to show some discretion. It is important to have inspectors who are aware of what is allowed and what is out of line, he added.

Mair also said in his Vancouver speech the government is considering a surcharge on liquor prices to pay for an alcohol abuse education program.

He said it is too early to say how much the surcharge would be.

DRUG TRIALS START AT CFB ESQUIMALT

The first of an expected dozen court martials involving servicemen charged with drug offenses began today at CFB Esquimalt.

Charged with two counts of drug trafficking is Pte. James O. Barrett of HMCS Athabaskan.

The charges state Barrett sold hashish to Pte. M. D. Taylor and Pte. B. D. Kilbourn.

The alleged offenses occurred between Nov. 15, 1976, and Dec. 20, 1976.

Barrett has pleaded not guilty to both counts.

The court martials were ordered by Rear-Admiral Andrew Collier, Pacific maritime commander.

A spokesman said most of the men involved have been in the Canadian armed forces less than 20 months and are charged with possession of drugs, contravention of Canadian forces' regulations and rules, and other federal acts."

President of the standing court martials is Lt. Col. C. R. Rippon, a former assistant Judge-Advocate at CFB Esquimalt.

The prosecutor is Capt. W. J. Bill Fenrick of CFB Halifax. Defence counsel is Major Brian Murphy of CFB Calgary.

The trials were ordered by Collier as the result of an "ongoing investigation," the spokesman said.

Emphasis Shifts to Classroom

A reduction of permanent staff in the central offices of the Greater Victoria school district will bring a shift in emphasis to the classroom, trustees said Tuesday.

The organizational shake-up which has been on the books since January will send a net total of five permanent special advisors back to the classroom as regular teachers or counsellors.

The eliminated positions include co-ordinators of special programs, music, learning assistance, home economics, career education, vocational training and itinerant physical education. (Two more were created — intermediate consultant and English consultant.)

There will be little, if any, cost saving, however, for the vacancies can be filled by other classroom teachers being brought in to the administrative offices on temporary appointments as special needs arise.

The advantage of this method, board chairman Susan Brice said at Tuesday's press conference, is that the concept is less rigid.

If a need in a certain area develops, superintendent of schools Allan Stables can canvass the district, find the best teacher and bring him in to share his expertise.

"We will be able to harvest the expertise in our district while it is still enthusiastic," he said.

The classroom emphasis of the re-organization is also reflected by the addition of a second senior field administrator to supervise principals and teachers.

Officials were unable to say if all the co-ordinators affected by the reduction were willing to accept reassignment back to the classroom.

One senior official, Art Lamrock, director of pupil personnel, announced his resignation this week.

Stables said his resignation was for "personal reasons," and that Lamrock "has been doing a good job in the area that he has been working, so we have no quarrel with that."

But Stables added there have been significant changes in Lamrock's area. He was not offered one of the new positions created by the re-organization — that of supervisor of special education.

Lamrock was at a meeting and was unable to be reached for comment today.

Even More Meetings?

If Ald. Ian Cass has his way Saanich council will hold even more meetings in future.

Night council meetings begin again next Monday and Cass says he is against meetings continuing after 11 p.m.

This means meetings will have to be adjourned to the next night or another convenient date, he says.

"I feel that 11 p.m. is quite late enough to be conducting meetings, especially when one considers that people are tired and more prone to rush through important items just to get them completed," he said.

The same deadline would apply to committee meetings, he added.

Cass observed that several council and committee meetings have lasted for more than four hours this year.

10,000 On His Lawn?

Human Resources Minster Bill Vander Zalm says a planned demonstration by members of the Downtown Eastside Residents' Association from Vancouver will only make the association appear ridiculous in the eyes of the public.

DERA members plan to hold a rally of welfare recipients July 1 on the front lawn of Vander Zalm's home in the Port Kells area of Surrey. Spokesmen for the group hope 10,000 people will attend.

The demonstration is being organized to demand that Vander Zalm spend on the needy the $100 million surplus his ministry has managed to save on budget estimates.

servogel still wasn't satisfied.

"I'd like to know again from you," he shot back at Eagleson, "whether you said we have, or I have, stolen money from you. Yes or no?" The IIHF officials said he would consider suing Eagleson if he continued to say the money was stolen.

"Stolen may be a strong word," Eagleson admitted. "All I know is somebody screwed me out of $20,000." On that note, the discussion ended.

Wasservogel said Eagleson asked several months ago "to reserve 8,000 tickets for the world tournament."

"Then he reduced his order to 800 tickets."

The IIHF general secretary said he couldn't understand why Eagleson thought Canada was forced to buy tickets.

"Obviously there's a lot of confusion about a lot of things in this tournament," Eagleson told about 200 reporters and officials at the news conference.

"Several months ago it was suggested that Canada would have to buy books of tickets and we declined. Later we were advised . . . that tickets could only be sold if you purchased the whole day's tickets. Then, when we came to Vienna for the tournament, we found that was not the case."

Earlier, Wasservogel said Eagleson lied to him about the strength of Canada's team.

"He promised me this would be a very good team," said Wasservogel, also president of the organizing committee for this tournament.

examine alternatives to the pumping station and trunk connection and to bring a recommendation back to the board within a month.

The committee includes the mayors and regional directors from the three partner municipalities in the project, Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich.

Mayor Young said the meeting Monday included some members of Oak Bay council and discussed the feasibility of using an alternate sewage connection to an outfall to be built at Clover Point.

Also considered was the likelihood of the Pollution Control Board approving an extended outfall at McMicking Point if present sewage flows were varied.

Young said additional cost information is being gathered for a second meeting towards the end of next week which will also be in camera.

Smith said he hopes the committee will be able to assemble a package proposal which will avoid the need for the pumping station, save money and prove acceptable to the Pollution Control Board.

Poison Gas Clouds Empty School, Airport, Cannery

PORT EDWARD (CP) — A public school, a fish cannery and an airport were evacuated Tuesday afternoon after an unknown quantity of deadly chlorine gas leaked from the Canadian Cellulose Ltd. pulp mill.

There were no reports of injuries as two clouds of the poisonous green gas drifted northwest over the Pacific.

Ed Harris, coast guard district manager, said a spokesman for Hooker Chemicals Ltd. of Vancouver, shippers of the gas, said it would dissipate in two or three hours in the rain.

Harris said the clouds appeared to be one-quarter and three-quarters of a mile in diameter.

Jac Kreut, Cancel mill manager, said the leak was contained within minutes by automatic valves which shut down operation. Chlorine is shipped in liquid form, but turns to gas in the atmosphere.

He said a line broke while the chlorine was being pumped from a barge into a 400-ton tank at the mill, about five miles south of Prince Rupert.

About 200 employees of the B.C. Packers cannery here were sent home after the leak because the cannery is in a low-lying area of the village near the mill. Chlorine gas is heavier than air.

School principal Jim Calvert said the 250 pupils at the elementary school here were taken to the gym after the leak was reported. Children whose parents couldn't pick them up immediately were taken by bus to a community centre at Prince Rupert.

Eight employees at the Prince Rupert airport on the west side of Digby Island, about 10 miles northwest of here, were airlifted from the airport because the clouds could have drifted nearby. Three hours after the spill, airport employees were back at work.

Kreut said that an offshore wind took the gas west and out to sea. He added that rain at the time would help dissipate the gas.

the weather

Skies were mostly cloudy across the province overnight with a few showers across central sections.

A ridge of high pressure moving slowly eastward across the province will give sunny skies to many regions today. However there will be a few showers along the north coast and in eastern and northern sections of the province.

A Pacific disturbance will bring increasing cloud and showers with possible thundershowers to southwestern B.C. on Thursday. Showers will linger along the north coast. The interior will have mainly sunny skies with increasing cloud in the evening.

Warning Shot Ban Opposed

No hard and fast policy on the practice of firing warning shots will be laid down by Victoria police board.

The board's decision today followed a report by Police Chief Jack Gregory, on the results of a poll among city police officers.

Gregory said 101 questionnaires were completed by members of the force, and of these 70 expressed opposition to any ban on firing warning shots at fleeing criminals or fugitives.

The officers concerned believe they are competent to use their discretion on when to fire warning shots, and accept the responsibility for their actions.

Gregory said the other 31 officers, mostly junior personnel of the patrol division, favored a prohibition.

The board chairman, Mayor Mike Young, said the situation should be watched but meanwhile no firm guidelines should be established.

There are no department rules specifically prohibiting the firing of warning shots, although under the Criminal Code an officer may shoot at someone only to protect his own life or the life of some other person.

The poll of Victoria officers was ordered last month following a March 16 incident in which a fleeing man received a leg injury from a warning shot which ricochetted. The incident occurred on lower Yates.

OUTLAWED IN VIETNAM, HERBICIDE IS DUMPED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A herbicide so deadly it was outlawed from use as a defoliant during Vietnam war is being dumped in the Pacific Ocean.

The U.S. air force announced Tuesday it had won approval from the Environmental Protection Agency to begin destroying the herbicide "Orange" far out at sea in the mid-Pacific Ocean.

An unspecified quantity of the defoliant, outlawed from any use a few years ago, will be taken from storage in Gulfport, Miss., and placed aboard a specially designed incinerator ship.

The incineration, according to the air force, will be conducted in an "environmentally safe manner" in accordance with the EPA permit.

It said that success of the first attempt will lead to destruction of additional stocks of Orange, which are stored at Johnston Island in the Pacific.

Cheyenne Vote Was Needed—VSE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cheyenne Petroleum shareholders should have been able to vote on an escrow share deal that more than tripled president Barry Hemsworth's voting control over the natural gas company, a Vancouver Stock Exchange official said Tuesday.

Chris Caulton was testifying at the public inquiry into possible conflict of interest by public officials in trading in companies associated with the provincial government's Grizzly Valley pipeline project.

Richard Hamilton, lawyer for Cheyenne, told the inquiry that shareholder approval for the deal was not necessary because such votes are not called for in written VSE policy directives.

Hemsworth said the VSE asked for the vote more than two months after the exchange endorsed the escrow deal.

Caulton, chairman of the VSE listings committee, said the vote requirement was implicit in the committee's Nov. 3 approval of a transaction in which Hemsworth picked up 488,500 voting shares by selling an Alberta natural gas property to Cheyenne. The move increased his share voting control over Cheyenne to 20 per cent from six per cent.

Caulton said the committee told Cheyenne in a letter Jan. 12 that the deal must have shareholder approval, after the VSE received numerous complaints about the escrow deal.

He conceded to Hamilton that the VSE's 1975 policy statement covering such transactions makes no mention of shareholder votes.

Caulton denied the listing committee was under pressure from VSE governors to force Cheyenne to call a shareholders' meeting to vote on the escrow move.

Hemsworth told the inquiry March 28 that three VSE governors were involved in the Cheyenne takeover bid while the exchange was pressuring the company to take the vote.

He said Tuesday the management control provided by his block of voters strengthened Cheyenne's hand in attempts to negotiate new financing. Rejection of the escrow deal by shareholders would have undermined the company's position, Hemsworth said.

Inquiry commissioner Mr. Justice Walter Kirke Smith rejected a demand by Cheyenne lawyer Mike Warren for details about the purchasers of 60,000 Cheyenne shares sold by Canarim investments in December.

Bryan Williams, lawyer for Canarim, disclosed only that the shares were sold between Dec. 10, the date of the government's announcement that it intended to build the pipeline, and Dec. 31.

He said another 60,000 Cheyenne shares were sold by Canarim Jan. 18 to Vancouver financier James Pattison, who offered $2 million in an abortive Cheyenne takeover bid.

Warren said identity of the buyers of the shares sold by Canarim in December was crucial to the inquiry because they might have been acting on inside information about the VSE's intention to forces Cheyenne to conduct the shareholder vote.

Mr. Justice Kirke Smith said the information sought by Cheyenne might be the subject of another inquiry by the British Columbia Securities Commission.

Inquiry counsel Ernest Alexander told the judge the Inquiry would adjourn again today after hearing evidence from a representative of Pemberton Securities.

Alexander said the Pemberton spokesman would be asked to explain a Dec. 2 report to clients that the government's Grizzly Valley pipeline announcement was imminent.

Put Cards on the Table

The bottom line red ink boys in the Social Credit administration have come up with a whopper of a deficit this time. It makes the NDP government's budgetary deficit look like the pennies a four-year-old dropped in the dust. The famed $100 million welfare overrun is peanuts.

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips says the cost of British Columbia's membership in Confederation this year will be $780 million. That's the net difference between revenues paid to Ottawa in the form of various taxes and the amount the federal government will spend out here in 1977.

The discrepancy between outgo and income for B.C. is between 25 and 30 per cent, says the minister. Since 1971 it has averaged $500 million a year, a substantial sum amounting to one-fifth of the entire provincial government budget each year.

Phillips suggests the capital drain is responsible for a tremendous loss of economic opportunities. No one objects to the premise that in such a disparate country the rich provinces should help the poor, he says, but "maybe we're being stuck with more than we can afford to pay."

B.C. is "rapidly approaching a turning point, if we are not already there, when what we feel is an equitable drain on our economy becomes more serious."

The basis for the minister's claims is a report by economists in his department, a study which unfortunately he refuses to make public. The basis for calculating such a precise figure thus is available only to the government, convenient for a politician since it is impossible to reply to his assertions with any specificity.

Even the avowedly separatist government of Quebec laid all its cards on the table when last month facts and figures were compiled to "prove" that Confederation has cost Quebec $4 billion in recent years.

Premier Rene Levesque and Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Claude Morin's controversial interpretations that Quebec has been stung by its association with the federal dominion of Canada at least could be balanced by fine-tooth combing the actual report compiled by Quebec government civil servants.

A few days after the headlines trumpeted the politicians' assertions there appeared the more sober analysis of the documentation itself. It seems that in the equation of Confederation's costs and benefits, the Quebec government left out completely from the income column any accounting of what it would cost the province to duplicate what the federal government now does.

For example, no attempt was made to evaluate the cost of establishing embassies and consulates, or the cost of armed forces to defend the national sovereignty. Or more tangible and visible federal manifestations such as the St. Lawrence Seaway or Mirabel airport.

Thus Ottawa could reply a few days later that its accounting of the debits credits of Confederation showed a net benefit to Quebec of $4.3 billion — a difference of more than $8 billion between the two government's interpretations.

Likewise is Phillips' claim open to attack. What has he included in the accounting? What is excluded? Nobody but the minister and his economists know for sure. He makes serious charges, but refuses to let anyone else take a look at how he reached his conclusions.

That suggests several things, none of them helpful to the province's cause. His figures may be open to other interpretations, although Phillips admits to little doubt. Or the work may be so flimsy as to blow away in the full light of publicity.

If the government is serious about this matter, it should level with Ottawa and the electorate. What Phillips is doing now is dealing from the bottom of a marked deck of cards, and making up the rules as he goes. If there is to be an intelligent debate, the people must have all the facts.

Why So Surprised?

Ontario MP Arnold Peters must have been kidding the other day when he demanded an explanation for Canada's egregious and disgraceful performance at the world hockey championships in Vienna. It all seems quite self-evident to us. But since parliament refused the unanimous consent required to debate the NDP member's question, we will be happy to provide some answers here.

First of all, Team Canada is not a team but a ragtag ragout of individuals from New York to Denver who undoubtedly have trouble recalling each other's names let alone attempting some feats of teamwork and grace. Secondly, the players simply aren't that good, having been selected from the very worst clubs in professional hockey, some of which we were surprised to learn are in existence. And thirdly, the top European squads — like the Soviets and the Czechs — are themselves very, very good indeed.

That may account for the level of play — somewhat improved in the contest Tuesday against the Czechs — but it does not explain the Canadian tendency to compensate for lack of talent with malicious violence. But then what can you expect when you hand a 20-year-old Alley Oop $200,000 and a hunk of lumber and turn him loose on a rink?

What is surprising about the current outcry is that people are surprised. We have witnessed the same kind of performance — Canadians clobbered at the game of hockey in turn clobbering their opponents with their sticks -- at practically every international series in recent years and throughout the regular season in North America. Canada's players in Vienna are doing no more and no less than playing the kind of game they have been taught to play and know the Canadian fan will pay to see.

If we are serious about good and clean international hockey, as the present outrage seems to indicate, there is a simple and often repeated solution: shorten the ridiculously long North American hockey season and have the Stanley Cup champions ready for the world contest in April or May. With severe penalties for violent conduct and a team skilled enough to play without resorting to pugilism, we might see truly world class hockey at last. At the very least it might put an end to these tedious and hypocritical excuses from the fans.

RICHARD GWYN

PM's 'New Bilingualism'

OTTAWA — It's a heavy responsibility to lay upon the shoulders of an unemployed 24-year-old from Watrous, Sask., but David Maxwell, by a single question to Prime Minister Trudeau, has effectively turned bilingualism inside out and upside down.

Bilingualism, it turns out, does not mean in case you've been asleep these past eight years, bilingualism. Bilingualism means — well, here's what Trudeau told Maxwell it means, after he had asked the prime minister, "What can we western Canadians do about what's going on in Quebec?" during a "town hall" session at Allan, Sask.

Bilingualism required of westerners, Trudeau explained, "no great sacrifice," and indeed, "not much more than understanding." Its purpose was not that "the people of Saskatchewan should learn French, any more than the people of Quebec should learn English."

Unilingual Quebec

Its purpose ("I'm not asking for anything more than that") was only that "French-Canadians should be able to talk to their own federal government in French." As a consequence, "a very few federal civil servants will have to learn French."

A day earlier, during his set speech in Winnipeg, Trudeau had made his New Bilingualism even more palatable for what he judged were western tastes. Rather than require that "a lot more Canadians will have to be bilingual," his policy would "help make it possible for the vast majority of Canadians not to have to speak a second language more often — and never have to speak a second language at all, if that is their wish."

Dual unilingualism, in other words, with French-Canadians talking to each other and to Ottawa in French and English-Canadians doing the same and neither, presumably, talking to each other.

To Trudeau's New Bilingualism there are three flaws, all crippling.

First, he's not telling the truth. If, since the Official Languages Act of 1968, Trudeau's goal had been only so modest a one he never would have classified, not, "a very few" but 65,000 civil service posts, as bilingual, nor would he have irritated the west by bilingual corn flake boxes and Stop—Arret signs in national parks and airports, nor would he have spent $600 million, and be planning to spend more, on second language training in schools.

Second, it's too late. Explained and executed eight years ago, Trudeau's New Bilingualism would have prevented the Ontario "Quebec, Go Such a Lemon" editorials and the backlash over the air traffic control strike that provoked, in turn, a frontlash in Quebec. It would have pre-empted the Parti Quebecois' declaration, "there will be no longer any question of a bilingual Quebec" since Quebec already would be unilingual.

Between Trudeau's New Bilingualism and the Parti Quebecois' charter on the French language there is, indeed, still a distinction but no longer any real difference. The distinction that remains is between a unilingual Quebec joined with a unilingual English-Canada joined together in a single country, and these same communities separated from each other as two unilingual countries yet still joined together in an economic association.

Last, Trudeau has lost his nerve. He now is telling westerners what he thinks they want to hear, and through them he is telling Quebeckers what he believes they now believe.

Perhaps Trudeau is right. Quebecers, by every sign and portent, support overwhelmingly the unilingualism of their language charter. In Allan, Sask., Maxwell was delighted with the answer he received: "I had always thought I would have to learn French to get a better job, to have status. I had always thought I was supposed to learn French."

If Trudeau indeed is right, then maybe Confederation, without anyone really realizing it, already has passed a point of no return. Maybe the dream Trudeau once held, of a Canada in which, "a Quebecer could feel at home in Regina or Vancouver, just as an English-Canadian could feel at home in Chicoutimi," always was an impossible dream.

Shortly Wake Up

Without that dream, though, not much is left — two homes, two ghettoes, two solitudes. All that remains is a crabbed and bloodless vision of a country in which two peoples talk less and less to each other, and who might as well talk to each other when they have to as co-partners in a customs union.

A recent article about Quebec in the London Sunday Times magazine concludes with the comment: "Canadians will shortly wake up to a new image of themselves or else slip from history forever." If, as a united country, we are destined to slip away anyway, then let it be not with the whimper of the New Bilingualism but with the bang of bilingualism as we always understood it to mean, of multi culturalism of diversity, of the pluralistic federation that Trudeau years ago, when he still dared to dream, once described as "a role model for the world."

In Saskatoon, at least, westerners showed they still were ready to dream, but by then, Trudeau already had spoken, in Winnipeg and at Allan.

Honesty Its Own

In response to W. J. MacKay's letter criticizing the law for withholding welfare benefits because a man was given a reward of $1,000 for returning $10,000 he had found — how sad? Since when does honesty need a financial reward? Two-year-old children are good or they are punished, four-year-old children are good because it makes their parents happy, and six-year-old children are good (e.g., honest, generous, helpful) for its own sake. It is part of the progression of learning and growing. How old is W. J. MacKay?

We give social assistance to those in need, and it doesn't matter why they are in need, so it shouldn't matter from where they receive their resources. — Noreen Teague, Sidney.

Davis on Ferries

Over in the United Kingdom ferry fares don't seem to be bothering the tourist trade at all. The tolls there are unbelievable and yet tourism is up 10 per cent this year.

Why? It's because visitors to the United Kingdom see bargains there. They come in their millions because the ferry fares across the English Channel don't matter.

Sealink, the British state-owned ferry authority charges the following rates across the English Channel — a distance similar in length to our Tsawwassen-Swartz Bay run:

1. Medium sized car	$45.00
2. Driver	$13.50
3. Adult passenger	$13.50
4. Child 4 but under 14	$ 6.74
5. Bicycle	$ 4.00

And listen to this. If you want to tow a trailer and take your wife and two children along you can buy a return fare package costing $265! that is a medium-sized ar and a small trailer.

People who rely on B.C. Ferries feel that they are hard done by these days. But they should thank their lucky stars that they don't have to pay British ferry rates — especially with low British wages.

We have many tourist attractions here on Vancouver Island. And they can be reached with ferry fares which are low compared with ferry fares in other parts of the world! — Jack Davis, Minister, Energy Transport and Communications.

Why protect Rockland and not other areas?

Glazier's Comments

We with disgust Ald. Murray Glacier's comments from the city council meeting re the subdivision of a Rockland Avenue property.

In the past Mr. Glazier and other council members have failed to protest when particular communities in Victoria have suffered the developer's axe.

In James Bay one hour's walk around the neighborhood will show the visitor classic examples of developments that have had a detrimental effect on the community.

The destruction still goes on in our community because of the failure of individuals like Mr. Glazier to take action to stop irrational development.

People who visit James Bay "realize that some kind of travesty has occurred."

In our opinion Mr. Glazier would enchance his credibility if he would show the same concern over development in all of Victoria's neighborhoods as he seems to display for the Rockland area. Without such a generalized concern for all of Victoria's communities Mr. Glazier can be rightly accused of playing politics.

But of course, this is an election year, is it not?—Charles Ball and Bob Hornsby, Box 546, Victoria.

Terrible State

The federal government sends $22.50 to the handicapped, and Vander Zalm refuses to give it to them. Now we read that Evan Wolfe will be given the human resources department's huge surplus. What right has Wolfe to a handicapped person's pension and adjustment? And Bennett sits by and condones these dishonest manipulations of his cabinet ministers. It's a terrible state of affairs when a few millionaires care more for huge surpluses and political double-dealing, than they do for the very people they promised to help. — Disgusted.

Class Gaps

I must take issue with Norman Gidney's advocacy of public aid to independent schools Ghettos or Freedom of Choice (April 20).

I am in agreement with him on the freedom of choice. My wife and I exercised this right when we decided to send our two daughters to independent schools. However we did not ask or expect Pat McGeer or anyone else to help us to defray the school fees.

I am very much opposed to the mixture of religion and public schooling. I recall when I was at a U.K. boarding-school I was forced to attend church three times every Sunday and later in the army we had compulsory church parades. Quite apart from enhancing Christianity these acts of compulsion did a great deal to make many turn their backs on religion. The fact that other provinces do assist independent schools does not make it right. Surely religion should belong in the sphere of parents and the churches. The non-taxation of church properties is based on emotion and not hard facts otherwise many other organizations, which do a great deal of good, would also be exempted.

I do not want Canada to follow the pattern of the U.K. where the so-called "public schools" (independent schools) representing only a very small fraction of the education facilities in the U.K. created a class differential or an elitist group. I am opposed to any policy which creates class differences. I attended an independent or "public school" and I do not wish to decry their achievements or the achievements of the independent schools in Canada but such separation can create and did, in fact, create class gaps in the U.K.

Mr. Gidney points out that aid to the independent schools was part of the Socred platform in the last election but surely he knows that the last election was won due to hostility of the news media against the NDP and the unlimited funds which were available to the Socreds from their wealthy supporters. I doubt that the average voter ever gave the thought of aid to independent schools even a single thought.

As this is such a radical change in policy I agree with Mr. Barrett that a referendum should be held so that the people can decide if they, in truth, wish to go this route. Even W. A. C. Bennett, the foun der of the B.C. Socred party, was always very much opposed to this change in policy.

I am in no way opposed to independent schools as a free choice for parents but I am very much opposed to supporting, through taxation, the children of Pat McGeer and others who freely choose to send their children to independent schools. I am also very much opposed to subsidizing the parents of the large number of foreign students who are enrolled in our independent schools. These children come from parents of wealth and certainly do not ask for assistance from the B.C. taxpayer.—M. P. B. Wrixon, 301-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

Undemocratic

You're right, Mr. McKenzie, our provincial government is democratically elected but it would be extremely undemocratic for them to bring in legislation forcing amalgamation on those municipalities listed in your study. The amalgamation of Vancouver Island's municipalities was not one of the issues brought before the public at the time of the provincial elections and so they did not receive a mandate from the voting and taxpaying voters to legislate on this particular subject. No legislation should be put forward on this issue without again going before the voting, tax-paying public for their feelings on this subject. — Mrs. Ruth Ball, 338 Dallas Road.

Municipal Madness

With reference to your articles on Ron McKenzie and his amalgamation study, also his letter to the editor dated April 20:

We would like to reply to Mr. McKenzie on his "municipality madness' through your paper.

Us country folk didn't ask you city slickers to decide what is best for us — or is it really what is best for you?

So, Mr. McKenzie, we would appreciate you attending to your aldermanic business and we'll continue with our rural affairs. Just a friendly drop of detail — to survive in the country you don't mind your neighbors business. If you didn't get the message let's put it this way — you tend to your chickens and we'll tend to ours.

Now, what's this nonsense about you telling us who these people are who have decided what is best for us. We don't take kindly to anonymous reports or those who hide behind them.

To us, amalgamation without consultation is like a shotgun wedding. Thanks, but no thanks. — Mrs. Shirley Wilde, Press Secretary for Albert Head Ratepayers' Association.

Poor Lynx

Friends of mine returned from a skiing trip in an isolated area in the Osoyoos vicinity last month. Among their photos was one of a lynx they'd found on the trail caught in a leghold. In its efforts to escape the cruel trap, the animal had somehow twisted its whole leg around a stump and there it lay unable to move in this painful position. The photo showed most clearly the leg swollen terribly from the paw to shoulder. They wondered how long it had lain in agony and how long before the trapper would return. One picture is, indeed, worth a thousand words. The look of fear, pain and hopelessness in that lynx's eyes would break the coldest hearts (with the exclusion, of course, of our Social Credit MLAs). — Mrs. Owen Mason, Vancouver.

Madeline and Rudi: Two Ways of Looking at World

By RICHARD WRIGHT

(Wright is a novelist whose latest book is Fathing's Fortune. He wrote this essay for The Globe and Mail.)

At a party some weeks ago I found myself standing next to a pretty woman in her late twenties who made an unusual confession to another man and me. In the course of our conversation Madeline told us that she was sad a good deal of the time; somehow her life seemed to be in the shadow of some vague though palpable unease. She couldn't quite say why, but she intended to see a psychiatrist about it. As I said, the confession struck me as unusual, because to admit to sadness in an age hysterically devoted to happiness is both odd and courageous.

Now such confessions, especially at parties, are not always reliable guides to individual distress. But Madeline is no sleeve-clutching professional crybaby who is apt to bore strangers with the drunken details of some particularly murky private dilemma. On the contrary, she is a sensible and intelligent human. Moreover, she had drunk only a small glass of wine with her dinner. She mentioned her sadness in a detached, almost clinical tone which suggested not so much self-pity as wonder. Behind her prosaic announcement lay the suggestion that this sadness was worth beholding and examining. But her confession clearly irritated the man next to me, a splendidly civilized if somewhat abrupt fellow who came to Canada after the Hungarian student uprising in 1956. Not only has Rudi hurled paving stones at Red Army tanks, but he is old enough to remember the miseries and terrors of life during the Second World War. As a child he had huddled with his family in shattered cellars and listened to machine gun fights between Russian and German soldiers. He is now a successful businessman. To Rudi, Madeline's sadness was both comical and self-indulgent and he had difficulty concealing his exasperation.

He subjected her to a brief and pointed interrogation. She was young, was she not? Why, 28 is the prime of life! Agreed? Were there financial problems? Madeline, it turned out, made $20,000 per annum in an advertising agency. Well, then — health? Some dreadful terminal illness too horrible to mention? No? Well, then, it must be loneliness! Obviously what was needed here was a good lover. A European, perhaps?

Madeline smiled and I could guess why Rudi had achieved such success in business. But no, there was already a man in Madeline's life and their relationship was, as they say, nowadays, viable. Perhaps then she had recently lost someone, a beloved parent? Again no, for her parents were alive and well and living in a Florida condominium.

At the end of the interrogation Madeline was still smiling while still insisting that her life was sad. Rudi thought this nonsense. You are young and healthy. You have money and friends. You are living in the best country in the world. I have been hungry and I have dodged bullets. I came to Canada 20 years ago and I was penniless. Now I have a thriving business. Who has time for sadness? You Canadians, I do not understand you.

Both Madeline and Rudi are right, of course. Madeline ventures forth each morning feeling an acute sense of loss. She will tell you that she is well but nevertheless there is something amiss in her life. In many ways people like Rudi are more fortunate. They are like the man who walks away unhurt from an automobile wreck. For a brief moment at least his life is charged with a fierce and radiant light. He may now compare states of existence. That was bad but I survived. I'm still alive and this is good. All the minor irritants of ordinary existence vanish before the simple gift of life. If the ordeal is spectacular or dramatic enough, say a war or a term in a prison camp, he may just get through an ordinary day in a large North American city during the last quarter of the twentieth century.

But Madeline has encountered neither war nor imprisonment. Unlike her parents, she has not even endured financially pressing times. For over a quarter of a century she has lived in a country in which her daily portion is an abundant measure of the good life. Theologians and social historians are forever writing about contemporary man's alienation by which I take them to mean that people like Madeline have no consistent notion of where they fit into the grand scheme of things. Unlike, for instance, a thirteenth-century Venetian or a seventeenth-century immigrant to Virginia, Madeline is an authentic wayfarer, uneasy about the road and uncertain about the destination. Unfortunately, many of the signposts have either been defaced or taken down.

For most people, the old consolations no longer console. There has been a fundamental loss of faith in the central mysteries of the Church and organized religion no longer successfully meets the challenge of contemporary discontent. Nature, an ancient remedy for wounded souls, has now been watered down to the two-hour car trip to summer cottages or ski resorts. As for art, it offers little to Madeline. At university she majored in film. Not for her the triumphant suffering and redemption of Oedipus or Job or Lear. She will have to make do with Fellini or Bergman or Howard Hawks.

Her last hope resides in science. Perhaps a psychiatrist can tell her why she appears to be so out of step with others. She will listen to a psychiatrist for he is scientifically certified to help. But one wonders what he can say. If he is a foolish psychiatrist (and psychiatry has fools like any other profession) he may tell Madeline to pull herself together and get out more — take an evening course, join a fitness club, etc., etc.

She could do as well listening to Rudi, whose advice is free. Besides, she already belongs to a professional women's group which meets every Thursday night. And she has been seen more than once on the jogging track at the Y. Not much help there! What to do? Well, why not start with a few questions?

Is Madeline's sadness (which is more than a temperamental predisposition to melancholy) a unique phenomenon of the last half of the twentieth century? If so, why should this be in a rich and powerful society? Is it possible that the deep misgivings about modernity felt by most artists since the middle of the last century are finally seeping through and infecting large portions of the population with a serious malaise? Is there, after all, something new under the sun?

A Time To Censor

By ROBERT NIELSEN
Toronto Star

Folly in advanced societies carries no guarantee of being less stupid or squalid than in primitive lands. But it may be able to call on more imposing justifications.

On any respectable list of the Great Ideas of Western Man the following dictum of John Stuart Mill, the intellectual giant of 19th century liberalism, would probably be found:

"If all mankind minus one were of one opinion, and only one person were of the contrary opinion, mankind would be no more justified in silencing that one person than he, if he had the power, would be justified in silencing mankind."

Applied literally and absolutely, that would rule out censorship in any circumstances. Which is exactly how Mill's spiritual heirs do apply it today to the problem of obscenity in print or pictures.

The 100 per cent libertarian position is simple: Since one man's obscenity is another's art or literature, it's too subjective a matter to be legally defined and prohibited. The case can be bolstered with a long list of historical instances where bluenosed censors couldn't see the art for the bare bosoms or the literary excellence for the four-letter words.

This view of the matter has generally prevailed over the last two decades, with results that sometimes embarrass its champions. They hadn't expected quite so many merchants of filth to burst through the opened door along with the liberated artists.

The coming thing now is child pornography — photos and films of children as young as 7, though more often 10 or 11, performing the known gamut of sexual acts with other children and adults. The children are of course recruited, directed and paid by the adults who produce this material.

Sexual abuse of children and contributing to delinquency are offences in the American states, notably California, where production of such stuff is increasing. But convictions are hard to get because the adults and children involved are rarely willing to talk. Distributors are also hard to catch and convict because they destroy records of shipments and use false addresses.

The retailer of child porn magazines and films should be most vulnerable to counterattack. But it is to his rescue that the all-out civil libertarians ride, crying "No censorship!" Enslaved by principle, they use the "thin edge of the wedge" argument against prosecuting sellers, and insist that the law must deal with the original acts.

Nor can judges be relied upon to crack down on retailers in the present permissive atmosphere, which sometimes confers near-celebrity status on porn stars.

"The judiciary is very scared of being on the 'wrong' side," says Charles Rembar, a New York lawyer who successfully defended Lady Chatterley's Lover and Fanny Hill against obscenity charges in the 1960s. "Not so long ago they were willing to call An American Tragedy obscene; now they are unwilling to call anything obscene."

He thinks such absolutism is nonsense, and that the sellers of child porn should be punished.

Of course they should be, in Canada as well as the U.S. whenever this slime oozes across the border — if it hasn't already.

The whole subject of censorship is not in general a matter to be governed by absolutes, but by as much good sense as society is capable of mustering at particular places and times. To be more explicit, obscenity cases should be decided by judges relying on their own wisdom and on their understanding of a community's tastes and mores.

Some stupid errors will be made, as they always have been, under such a pragmatic regime. Out in the boondocks some judge will ban The Catcher in the Rye or, more currently, Lady Oracle.

All this means is that most of the people in that particular boondock will be left with the literature they deserve, while enlightened souls among them, at some bother and expense, will acquire the forbidden fruits in some other jurisdiction.

But I'm ready to rise above pragmatism, and spurn consistency, on behalf of one absolute principle: Child porn is an abomination that should be universally banned. I'm even ready to write the preamble for the legislation:

"Whereas the debauching of children for the delectation of drooling creeps is offensive to Canadians' sense of decency, be it hereby enacted . . ."

'Child porn is an abomination that should be universally banned'

Let Them Seek Arms From Soviet

THE NATION
An Editorial

The president has approved $2 billion worth of arms sales to various countries around the world, principally to members of NATO. He could have O.K.'d $6 billion worth, so there are no grounds for discouragement. In the great old days of arms merchandising under Nixon-Ford-Kissinger, it is likely that the whole sum would have been approved in a minute.

The Washington Post reports another heartening attitude toward the arms business on the part of the new administration. The paper quotes Under Secretary of State for Security Assistance Lucy W. Benson (a former president of the League of Women Voters) as saying that the criteria for approving arms sales abroad now include a "negative presumption." Before giving approval, she said, the questions asked are: "Do they have to have this? And why do they have to have this?" That is a big step away from the old system when the Pentagon had an office whose job it was to persuade every small nation that would let its salesmen in the door that it needed the latest and hottest in destructive hardware. (At one point Iran was sold on a $25 billion radar system.)

It should be said that President Carter, who is personally reviewing each transaction before approving it, is living up to a campaign promise on this matter. He said back then that our arms sales policy was "as cynical as it is dangerous" and "almost completely unrestricted." He has called for a complete review of this whole business and the National Security Council is also scheduled to consider a new policy on arms sales.

So much for the "merchant of death" side of the U.S. arms business. We also, of course, give away a vast amount of the stuff to our "friends" around the world. It is called "military aid." Now it seems that some of these friends of ours are offended by all this talk about "human rights," and some of them have indignantly cancelled their deals with the Pentagon. A recent count shows that $75 million worth of American military aid has been spurned by countries, mainly dictatorships, which resent the moral strictures from Washington. Brazil, which turned down $50 million worth, is the largest spurner (Brazil is also angry with Carter for blocking its nuclear deal with West Germany).

Does this mean that our former clients will run straight to Moscow with their weapons shopping lists? If they do, is that bad? If all of the eighty-four nations which receive arms aid from the United States queue up at the Kremlin arsenal, the line will rival the one outside Lenin's tomb in length, if not in patience. There would be a long wait for delivery, as the Egyptians found out. Meanwhile, we could be figuring out what to do with all those new ploughshares. It is not the grimmest of pictures.

The American Way of Tax

russell baker

The Tax Man was very cross about Figg. Figg's way of life did not conform to the way of life several governments wanted Figg to pursue. Nothing inflamed the Tax Man more than insolent and capricious disdain for governmental desires. He summoned Figg to the Temple of Taxation.

"What's the idea of living in a rental apartment over a delicatessen in the city, Figg?" he inquired.

Figg explained that he liked urban life. In that case, said the Tax Man, he was raising Figg's city sales and income taxes. "If you want them cut, you'll have to move out to the suburbs," he said.

To satisfy his local governments, Figg gave up the city and rented a suburban house. The Tax Man summoned him back to the Temple.

"Figg" he said, "you have made me sore wroth with your way of life. Therefore, I am going to soak you for more federal income taxes." And he squeezed Figg until beads of blood popped out along the seams of Figg's wallet.

"Mercy, good Tax Man" Figg gasped. "Tell me how to live so that I may please my government, and I shall obey."

The Tax Man told Figg to quit renting and buy a house. The government wanted everyone to accept large mortgage loans from bankers. If Figg complied, it would cut his taxes.

Figg bought a house, which he did not want, in a suburb where he did not want to live, and he invited his friends and relatives to attend a party celebrating his surrender to a way of life that pleased his government.

The Tax Man was so furious that he showed up at the party with blood-shot eyes. "I have had enough of this, Figg" he declared. "Your government doesn't want you entertaining friends and relatives. This will cost you plenty."

Figg immediately threw out all his friends and relatives, then asked the Tax Man what sort of people his government wished him to entertain. "Business associates," said the Tax Man. "Entertain plenty of business associates, and I shall cut your taxes."

To make the Tax Man and his government happy, Figg began entertaining people he didn't like in the house he didn't want in the suburb where he didn't want to live.

Then was the Tax Man enraged indeed. "Figg," he thundered, "I will not cut your taxes for entertaining straw bosses, truck drivers and pothole fillers."

"Why not?" said Figg. "These are the people I associate with in my business."

"Which is what?" asked the Tax Man.

"Earning my pay by the sweat of my brow," said Figg.

"Your government is not going to bribe you for performing salaried labor," said the Tax Man. "Don't you know, you imbecile, that tax rates on salaried income are higher than on any other kind?"

And he taxed the sweat of Figg's brow at a rate that drew exquisite shrieks of agony from Figg and little cries of joy from Washington, which already had more sweated brows than it needed to sustain the federally approved way of life.

"Get into business, or minerals, or international oil," warned the Tax Man," or I shall make your taxes as the taxes of 10."

Figg went into business, which he hated, and entertained people he didn't like in the house he didn't want in the suburb where he did not want to live, and the Tax Man and all the governments and the nation were happy, except for a rising incidence of divorce, tax forms, madness, fatuity, loneliness and suicide.

At length the Tax Man summoned Figg for an angry lecture. He demanded to know why Figg had not bought a new plastic factory to replace his old metal and wooden plant. "I hate plastic," said Figg. "Your government is sick and tired of metal, wood and everything else that smacks of the real stuff, Figg," roared the Tax Man, seizing Figg's purse. "Your depreciation is all used up."

There was nothing for Figg to do but go to plastic, and the Tax Man rewarded him with brand new depreciation schedule plus an investment credit deduction from the bottom line.

Thanks to the money the Tax Man granted him for living in a suburb where he didn't want to live and for entertaining people he didn't like in a house he didn't want while engaging in work he wasn't interested in with plastic equipment he hated, Figg began to make a profit. The Tax Man was outraged.

"What's the idea of making a profit, Figg?" he demanded, placing his iron grip on Figg's bank account.

"Spare me," Figg pleaded.

"Only if you sell your business," roared the Tax Man.

"After forcing me to get into business, the government now wants me to get out of business?" asked Figg.

"Exactly," said the Tax Man. "Sell, and I'll tax the profit from the sale at a delightfully low capital-gain rate of only 25 per cent. Otherwise, I'd take the meat ax to those profits."

Figg sold. Having nothing to do with his time, he decided to die. The Tax Man was furious. "Just try it," he said, "and I'll strip your estate down to the stalk. So Figg changed his mind.

This is why people are living so much longer nowadays. The government needs a large supply of people over 65 to keep the Social Security tax rising.

BONDS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were slightly higher in active trading on the Canadian bond market Tuesday. The short end of the market was unchanged while the mid- and long-term issues rose one-quarter of a point. Provincial issues also gained one-quarter and corporates were up one-eighth of a point. Placer

Placer Development Ltd. reports net earnings of $7,369,000 or 61 cents a share for the three months ended March 31, more than double for the corresponding period last year.

Net earnings were $3,547,000 or 29 cents a share in 1976.

Improved prices for molybdenum and an unusually high volume of copper concentrate shipped by Gibraltar Mines Ltd. resulted in the increase the company said.

Finning

Finning Tractor and Equipment Co. Ltd. reports net earnings and gross income in the first quarter this year were more than 50 per cent more than the corresponding period last year. Net income increased 69.5 per cent, to $2,709,000 or 68 cents a share from $1,598,000 or 40 cents a share in 1976. Gross income was up 50.8 per cent, to $6,021,000 from $$40,470,000. In an interim report, W. M. Young, chairman and chief executive officer, said that the 1977 results are "one of the best quarters in the company's history."

Wosk's

Wosk's Ltd. reports a loss of $312,841 last year compared with a profit of $166,656 in 1975.

Ben Wosk, company president, said a soft economy and weak tourist industry in British Columbia were the reasons for the decline.

Losses were 93 cents a share, compared with a profit of .03 cents a share in 1975. Total revenue last year fell to $41.9 million from the $42.1 million reported the previous year.

Wosk said 1977 is expected to have improved results.

Brass Answers Phones In Leyland Image Polish

Executives at British Leyland Motors Canada Ltd. must answer their own phones.

"If I find anyone screening anybody's incoming calls around here, they've had it," said John Mackie, who recently succeeded Donald Pocock as president.

"When customers want to say somethng about our products, it's important that they know we are accessible.

The decree is part of a determined philosophy by the Burlington, Ont.-based firm to enhance Leyland's reputation in Canada.

"Let's be faceual about it," Mackie said in a recent interview. "The general impression among many Canadians about British Leyland is unfavorable.

"There is a feeling that Britain, after being No. 1 in the industry after the Second World War, had the opportunity to stay on top and blew it.

That was in the early 1960s and then the British automobiles gave way to the Germans and Japanese, forcing Leyland to go back to the drawing board.

By 1968, however, the Canadian subsidiary was moving forward, said British-born Mackie, now a Canadian citizen.

First, it insisted that the parent company design cars to meet Canadian requirements in terms of cold-weather starting, heating, rust-resistance and general preformance. Next, it set up a new Canadian distribution system and, finally, consolidated its earlier organization.

"The result is that over the last 10 years, the degree of serviceability for all our products across the country has improved beyond measure," said Mackie.

"We're out of what I call the naked light bulb era when dealer franchises were being jockeyed about from one gas station to another. We've stopped the rot. We're still here and trading profitably with pre-tax earnings of more than $1 million last year."

British Leyland is the largest single manufacturer of automobiles in the United Kingdom. After absorbing many famous but failing auto firms, Leyland too became a victim of Britain's stop-and-go economy, labor strife and low productivity.

It was subsequently taken over by the Labor government.

The company's non-manufacturing Canadian subsidiary markets an average of 11,000 to 12,000 units annually, grossing about $60 million in 1976.

Its models include the Mini, Marina, MG, Triumph, MGB and Jaguar.

Later this year, the company will enter its Triumph TR-7, a wedge-shaped sports car with a price tag of about $6,200, in road rally competition.

But there will be more than sporting hopes riding in the cockpit. In effect, the TR-7 will symbolize Leyland's determination to rebuilt the credibility of the British automobile industry.

"But still the only way we can achieve complete credibility is by word of mouth and by demonstrating that the cars we're offering represent good value for money," Mackie said.

"It would be easy for me to buy a full-page ad and say we make the best cars in the world. But who the hell is going to believe it."

The company, however, has no illusions about selling a lot of cars.

"The nature of our business as a specialist supplier is to make vehicles available to certain market sectors where we can do our thing best."

He expects higher sales this year for the subcompact Mini and Marina and hopes to sell 600 Jaguars. Last year, the company sold a record number of Jaguars — just under 500 a 16-per-cent increase from 1975.

Quebec White Paper Halts Decentralization

By PETER THOMSON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Quebec's language policy white paper is halting the movement of federal government jobs to Quebec, and to other areas of high unemployment.

Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Jean Chretien said yesterday he had intended to announce this month the next series of moves of government branches to places with high unemployment.

However, he explained outside the House, decentralization would face problems if people transferred from Ontario to Quebec are not allowed to send their children to English schools.

Chretien would not say how long the announcements might be delayed, but a spokesman in his office said there would not be much point in announcing any decentralization until the language question is settled — that is, legislation passed.

His comment came in response to a question from Robert Muir (PC — Cape Breton-The Sydneys) who was pressing for more government jobs in his region, where there is high unemployment.

The decentralization program has been under way for several years.

The superannuation payments centre has been transferred to Moncton, N.B.; the unemployment insurance commision central annuities branch has been earmarked for Bathurst, N.B.; national revenue taxation data centres have been slotted for Surrey, Winnipeg, Jonquiere, Que., Shawinigan, Que., and St. John's, Nfld.

The last major decentralization announcement was last October when 650 Department of Veterans' Affairs jobs were shifted to Charlottetown, P.E.I.

In 1975 Supply and Services Minister J. P. Goyer announced the transfer of an entire division, and 250 permanent jobs, to Matane where there was chronic high unemployment.

He claimed the $2.3 million payroll involved would provide a boost to the Matane economy.

Chretien, who took responsibility for the decentralization economy.

Chretien, who took responsibility for the decentralization program with him when he left the Presidency of the Treasury Board to take over his present portfolio, is a serious advocate of decentralization.

He has said it helps to make the public service more responsive to the people and gives bureaucrats first hand experience in the field — as well as bringing much-needed financial help to high unemployment areas.

The move of the Veterans' Affairs Department raised a major protest from politicians in the National Capital area, however, and Ottawa's mayor Larry Greenberg claimed the federal government was bent on making Ottawa a ghost town.

Manpower Shortage

QUEBEC (CP) — Two-man Quebec provincial police patrols would require almost 600 more men, the force's director said Tuesday.

Jacques Beaudoin told the national assembly justice committee that the force has 2,255 members engaged in patrol duty, and putting two officers in each car would mean an increase in patrol staff ot 2,840.

The justice committee is conducting hearings on the issue of two-man patrols following a week-long illegal strike by the 4,200 unionized members of the force.

CDC Probes $3M Rebate Off Polysar

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday that he has asked the Canada Development Corporation to investigate a report that a Dutch businessman received $3 million in rebates from CDC subsidiary.

Opposition MPs said in the Commons that the RCMP should be directed to launch its own investigation to see whether any of the rebate money found its way back to Canada.

The report, carried by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, alleged that the Dutchman, a Mr. Marsman, received the money through inflated invoices by the Swiss subsidiary of Polysar, the Crown-owned company dealing in petrochemicals and plastics, and itself a subsidiary of the CDC.

Ray Hnatyshyn (PC-Saskatoon-Biggar) argued that this could mean that a corporation owned by the Canadian government was "aiding and abetting criminal activity" against the interests of one of this country's allies in NATO.

Flora MacDonald (PC-Kingston and the Islands) recalled that in 1973 former Auditor General Maxwell Henderson warned Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau that Polymer (the predecessor of Polysar) and its subsidiary could be "contingently liable" for aiding and abetting transactions designed to help foreign nationals break laws in their own countries.

She asked Trudeau what action he has taken with the Netherlands government to determine if the Polysar subsidiary is under investigation by police in that country.

Macdonald, replying for the prime minister, said that there has been no government-to-government contact on the issue, but recalled that more than two months ago Trudeau's guidelines for the activities of crown corporations abroad were communicated to the CDC. Polysar has since instructed all its subsidiaries to cease any questionable practices, he noted, and has warned that disciplinary action will be taken against any employees found in breach of the guidelines.

CUT-RATE AIR FARES ATTACKED

MONTREAL (UPI) — The International Civil Aviation Organization has ended a two-week conference on the economics of world aviation with a call for new policy to curb price-cutting among all air carriers.

It marked the first time ICAO had taken up the complex issue of price cutting in air fares and freight rates. Scheduled operators estimate the practice — a boon to travellers and tourism — has cost the transport industry $300-$500 million a year.

The member nations of ICAO, a United Nations affiliate agency, generally agreed that any recommendatins adopted must be applied to both regular scheduled airlines and charter operators.

"A general policy on non-scheduled operations is a great and big problem," conference chairman Dr. Werner Guldimann said Tuesday. "We have co-existence today between scheduled and non-scheduled operations.

"We have to recognize that they are all part of one system and that everything interacts within that system."

He said the travelling public was unlikely to receive any benefits for two or three years, but the conference could bring about "better regulation and better co-ordinated regulation."

Recommendations of the conference were to be forwarded to ICAO's governing Council, which will then draft language for consideration by the ICAO assembly at its meeting here in September.

The Council was asked to institute studies on policy regarding air operations from the aspect of aircraft capacity, tariffs and controls over travel and tour organizers "bearing in mind public interest and tourist development."

Meanwhile, member governments were asked to "maintain harmony" between scheduled and non-scheduled air carriers.

BUDWORM BEATER

OTTAWA (CP) — After years of withstanding spraying with a variety of chemicals, the voracious spruce budworm may find the computer a much deadlier opponent.

Officials at the Canadian Forestry Service have developed a computer program model on how the spruce budworm attacks forests.

The program also allows the testing of various ways to attack the budworm and protect the forests.

But Dr. R. J. Bourchier, director-general of the environment department's forestry directorate, said the potential of the computer is still being explored.

Border TV Ad Issue Still Alive

WASHINGTON (CP) — The border television issue between Canada and the United States is not dead, Conservative MP George Whittaker said Tuesday night.

Whittaker, one of four Progressive Conservative MPs on a fact-finding tour here, said many congressmen and other U.S. figures told the group that the issue was one of their concerns.

U.S. concern was aroused last year after Canadian authorities implemented two steps designed to protect the economic health of Canadian television stations; Canadian firms lost tax deductions for advertising to Canadians via U.S. stations; and commercials on U.S. stations were deleted from relay of those broadcasts on Canadian cable systems.

Television stations in Buffalo and Bellingham, Wash., protested vigorously and were joined by other U.S. interests in calling the moves unfair discrimination. About $20 million in annual revenues was affected.

Profit Motive Blamed for Jobless

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada's nearly one million unemployed are victims of an economic system that is undermining society by its obsession with profit, the president of the Vanier Institute of the Family said Tuesday.

"Being familial implies caring and sharing, whereas the economic system is based on competition and the acquisition of material wealth," Dr. F. R. Mackinnon said in a closing address to a four-day conference on family policy.

"An economic system has been developed in our society which has as one of its prime goals the elimination of workers. As a result we now find close to a million people unemployed witt apparently nothing socially significant to do.

"People need to be involved in doing something considered useful and worthwhile, and if the opportunity is taken away from an individual you will destroy him and society as well."

Nova Scotia's deputy minister of Social Services said continued economic centralization and replacement of people by machines for higher profits was to blame for the high jobless rate.

He said Canada needs a new "set of perceptions and values by which caring and sharing become more important than preoccupations with profits and the payoff at the bottom line." He said society's aim should be the satisfaction of personal, familial and community needs.

Despite widely-held beliefs, nonconventional lifestyles do not threaten the family because of its ability to adjust, Mackinnon said. He praised the search for "better ways of being together," after the "repressive and hypocritical" 19th century view of the family.

But he criticized as harmful the "moneygrabbing, selfish and materialistic society that has taken sex and turned it into violence and shoved it down our throats in films, TV, radio, magazines and everywhere and anywhere there is a possibility of financial gain."

The Vanier Institute was founded in 1963 by the late Dr. Wilder Penfield to look into and make recommendations about what was felt to be a crisis in the Canadian family.

Most women say they'd prefer a fur coat to a microwave oven.
Until they get a Toshiba microwave oven.

Just try and take a Toshiba microwave oven away from a woman after she's got one in her kitchen.

No way.

We hear views like this all the time. We hear it from our Toshiba home economists who demonstrate our fine line of microwave ovens. And we hear it from the women themselves.

We're not surprised. And we're not surprised that most people who compare microwave ovens, feature for feature, decide on Toshiba.

To start with, Toshiba can offer you everything you've ever wanted in a microwave oven. Things like a 60-minute electronic digital timer. Like a defrost cycle. Like a cook and hold cycle. Like automatic temperature sensor control. Toshiba microwave ovens offer you capacity. Toshiba microwaves are a big 1.5 cubic feet.

As well, Toshiba offers you a wide selection of models at values that are tough to beat. Right now our 766 model is on sale at a special price of about $550.*

And don't forget about Toshiba's exclusive 30-month, in-home warranty. It comes with every microwave oven we make.

Isn't it time you checked out a Toshiba microwave oven?

There's no mess and very little cleanup. You'll get full nutritional value from your food. And with the money you'll pay, you're sure to have some left over to start you on your way to a fur coat.

*All Toshiba products at the retailer's discretion, may be sold at a higher or lower price.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

The four-day preliminary hearing into a charge of second-degree murder against a 37-year-old Saanich man ended Tuesday in Victoria provincial court with Judge William Ostler ordering committal to higher court trial.

Robert George Gibb, of 271 Cadillac, was committed for trial in connection with the March 24 stabbing death of 26-year-old Leonard Arthur Bradley Zink, of 2994 Phyllis, in the Bastion Inn beer parlor, 1140 Government.

The preliminary hearing opened last Monday and was originally scheduled for only two days.

Ostler fined a 22-year-old Penticton man $1,000 on a reduced charge of dangerous driving.

Donald Robert Quaite pleaded guilty to the lesser charge of dangerous driving and Crown counsel Law consented to the plea, allowing Ostler to find Quaite not guilty on the original charge of criminal negligence.

Court was told that Quaite was spotted on Aug. 18 of last year travelling at 60 m.p.h. and higher heading east on Craigflower. Slightly west of Arm Street, Quaite's vehicle went out of control and skidded 94 feet before hitting an oncoming car head on.

Two women in the other car were injured.

Law cited a previous record which included two previous convictions for impaired driving and one for dangerous driving.

"It's a miracle someone wasn't killed," said Ostler, who stated Quaite's driving record indicated a continued course of irresponsibility.

Defence counsel Barry Mah Ming told the court the speedometer in Quaite's car wasn't working, that Quaite lost control while shifting gears and that the road was under repair in the area where the mishap took place.

Two Sidney teenagers pleaded guilty to a joint charge of mischief causing wilful damage and were remanded until May 17 for a pre-sentence report.

Daniel Terrence Dankwerth, 18, who told Sidney RCMP he lived in the McDonald Park campsite, and David Joseph Nelthorpe, 17, of 7985 Larkvale, pleaded guilty to causing window damage estimated at $460.74 at North Saanich junior high school, 10475 McDonald Park Road, and $147.27 at Parkland high school, 10640 McDonald Park Road.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told Ostler four people were involved, including two juveniles.

A 30-year-old man was sentenced to 21 days in jail on two drinking-driving offences — his second and third in slightly more than eight months.

Phillip Neil Orum, who gave a city motel address, was sentenced after pleading guilty to impaired driving Oct. 13, 1976, and having a blood-alcohol content over .08 March 31.

Court was told Orum was convicted of impaired driving Aug. 16, 1976.

Ostler imposed the 21-day sentence, six months of probation and ordered Orum to take any drug and alcohol rehabilitation treatment prescribed by his probation officer and to attend the impaired drivers' course.

Ostler, who added a concurrent, 21-day sentence for the second charge, denied an application by Orum to serve the sentence on weekends, stating that an intermittent term was a "dreary" way to serve time.

Marion's a Builder

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

But She's Turned Off by B.C.

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Buller Construction Ltd. has built one house in B.C. — its first — and already is considering a move to Alberta where the economy and free enterprise are considered more vigorous.

Speculative housebuilding does have its ups and downs, but for Buller the trend in this province became clear in a matter of months.

Buller Construction is one person — 23-year-old Marion Buller, a tall, smiling woman with an arts degree in anthropology who turned to housebuilding to help put her urban land-use theories into practice while making money.

Unfortunately, her new Gordon Head house is still on the market — along with a lot of other spec houses — and she can't get on with her next project until it is sold.

"I'm thinking of going to a better construction climate in Alberta," she said Tuesday while showing a reporter through the four-bedroom dwelling with a view of Mt. Douglas.

"B.C. is not a good place for free enterprise these days, and that's what speculative building is."

Besides, she said, "I'm a bit tired of socialism and the worker attitude.

"I'd like to be some place where a few people are more keen on making things move, where there is a bit more life in business and more opportunities."

She is from Ontario, where none of her family is associated either with business or the construction industry. Father is a part-time CBC actor and native culture administrator; her mother a nurse, and her brother is executive director of native friendship centres.

Marion was interested in urban anthropology, took two years at Carleton University in Ottawa, then two years at University of Victoria.

"There's a terrific gap between the academic planning of urban space and its ultimate use," she said.

"I understand the basics of planning space and would like to use it to provide better places to live. I would like to do a street or a subdivision."

And why not?

"People think you have to be an archeologist to be in anthropology. . . ."

So how did she get into housebuilding?

"I knew a fellow who messed around in construction and got into it with him. But he didn't know much about business." It didn't work out and they parted.

Then she got a job insulating a house in Gordon Head and after seeking out builder's financing took on her own house project, assisted by another male friend, also a contractor, for much of the undertaking.

Buller and friend did the roofing, insulation and finishing carpentry, assisted by two young women carpenters after subcontracts were let for foundation, framing, drywall, plumbing and wiring.

The house was built mostly between August and December last year and has sat vacant on its paved, new cul de sac since then. With so many other empty spec houses, the price has dropped to less than $70,000.

Although it is a standard design, the house incorporates a number of features specified by Buller, who is conscious of optimum use of space as in: walk-in kitchen pantry, nine-foot closets, small, heat-saving front hall; plus neutral wall-to-wall carpet and kitchen-bath colors, slightly tinted walls, fancy light fixtures, built-in dishwasher and garbage disposer.

But she has left a few things for the eventual buyer to plan, allowing furnishings to be blended in.

"Also," she said, "a builder's personality should not be dictated."

That still leaves room for some of her convicitons, like the acorn fireplace in the living room which can supplement the all-electric heating, add a cozy decorative touch or barbecue supper.

Another Buller interest is solar heating and she is collaborating with someone else on a new design for collector panels that may be connected to a domestic hot water system.

"It'll really change people's thinking about design and materials," she predicts, hoping to be able to come up with a kit obtainable through builder's supply yards for less than $1,000 per panel.

Meanwhile, this socially-conscious contractor has been busy tidying up the paper work she let slide during the house construction, advising the Community Carpentry group and setting up a careers program for Business and Professional Women's Club.

She was asked what were the hardest parts about building a house on her own initiative. Did she hurt herself with any of the heavy work?

"No. I was always active in sport and I guess I have a few muscles from that. But my height is an advantage and I use it for leverage. And I've had it drilled into me that if anything is too heavy to lift, get someone to help."

Aside from that, the most difficult time was getting financial backing through the mortgage industry. It wasn't that she was a woman, Buller said, but that she was only 23 and had no assets or experience.

Brian, 4, watches dad Bob Foreman and Roger Williams on dry run with raft

May Day's the Day To Run the Rapids

max low

Visions of solidarity float through the mind at the mere mention of May 1.

Military might and labor strength have long since replaced the romantic symbols of dancing and courtship that once traditionally marked this spring day.

On May 1, 1890, demonstrations which were almost world-wide succeeded in getting an eight-hour work day. Today, May Day is parades reaffirming this unity; it's thousands of young people dressed in red and white doing callisthenics in Peking; it's tanks rumbling down the maindrag in Moscow.

. . . It's all very solid, comrades.

But, what Roger Williams and the rest of the Sooke Volunteer Fire Department have in mind for May Day isn't very "solid" at all. Quite the opposite.

They plan to spend the day — or a good part of it, anyway — being swept down the rapids of the Sooke River on rafts!

It's time for the third annual Sooke River Raft Race and for the first time it's being held this year on May 1 and being run by the fire department, helped by the Sooke Venture Scouts.

Raft racing has to be something reserved exclusively for the slightly insane, of course, but anyway these people will leap aboard their home-made craft for a series of heats that start at 11 a.m.

Three miles down river from Pot Holes Park to the finish line on the Sooke River Flats the rafts (minimum size four feet by eight feet) will make their way, surging through the whitewater and poling or paddling through the calm spots (sorry, no fixed oars allowed this year).

The 10 fastest times qualify for the grand final, which is expected to be at about 2:30 p.m. Once again, the favorites are those crafty rafters from Sooke, Richard Hamilton and Wayne Stolth, who took first prize in both the first and second year's races.

There is a $10 entry fee for each raft but the big race winner can take home $150. It's $75 for second place and $50 for third, as well as assorted trophies up for grabs for best women's crew, best effort by a youth team and for best decorated raft.

There's even a new trophy this year for the most nifty bit of rafting by media people. But no thanks, chaps. I'll stick to dancing around the maypole — if I can find one.

Thirty rafts took part in last year's race and officials say there could be as many as 60 on Sunday. But as far as jovial race chairman Roger Williams is concerned (and with apologies to President Carter) those figures are peanuts compared with what the future holds.

"We want to build this up into a big event and hopefully get crews to bring rafts from the United States and from overseas like they do for the Nanaimo Bath Tub Race," explains Roger.

By next year, the Sooke firemen can see their event becoming a two-day affair with heats on the Saturday and finals on the Sunday. And maybe even a dance with a "Miss Raft Race" (that last word by the way, was Race and not Face) chosen being held on the Saturday night.

It could become a big thing, sure. But right now there's this year's race to get over with — and Roger admits he has problems.

"Well, you see," he says with a grin, "we've lost the first and second-place trophies! Or at least, we haven't lost them, but no one knows where they are."

Last year's trophy-getters were given their prize money and their replica trophies but weren't allowed to take home the main perpetual trophies because, as Roger explains, experience has shown that when this is allowed, they often go missing.

Good thinking, chaps. Only thing is, these trophies went missing anyway! And the only thing the Sooke Firemen know is that a man named Doug Ayers ran last year's raft race and they haven't been able to find any trace of him or the trophies.

So there you have it. If you happen to find one of those elusive raft race trophies lying around covered in cobwebs or if you want to race a raft (you've got until midnight on Friday to get your entry in), then call Roger at 642-3811.

And happy rafting!

Officials Given Week To Find $250,000

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Buried somewhere in Victoria's 79-page budget for 1977 could be a possible saving of almost a quarter-mililon dollars.

If there is, two senior city officials have one week to find it.

In a last-ditch effort to hold the city's own general purposes levy to the 1976 level, council Tuesday instructed city manager Jim Bramley and comptroller Mason Sheldrick to suggest potential savings which could lop one mill — more than $246,000 — from the mill rate.

But Mayor Mike Young emphasized, at the end of a three-and-a-half-hour budget study session, that the instruction does not imply any firm commitment to slash city expenditures by that amount.

The proposals to be submitted to council's final budget session next Tuesday will be for "discussion purposes only," he said.

The city's mill rate now stands at 49.56 mills, one mill higher than last year. But a nine-mill drop in the school levy has produced a decrease in the over-all mill rate of 6.27 mills.

When Ald. Ron McKenzie complained during Tuesday's meeting that he is "very unhappy" about the city's one-mill increase, in the light of the school board's substantially lowered budget, Young said comparisons are invalid.

"We should be trying to maintain our property tax at the same level as last year if possible," he said, "but I am not particularly anxious to do so by cutting services which will wind up to our expense in future years."

Little Room to Manoeuvre

Finance committee chairman Ald. Murray Glazier agreed the city's budget leaves little or no room for manoeuvre without jeopardizing the level of service to residents.

The only lengthy debate of the afternoon centred on the fire department's $2.87 million budget, specifically on the proposed hiring of 12 additional firefighters.

Only McKenzie opposed this, saying the cost would be inordinately high — approximately $300,000 a year in five years' time — and said in any case he is not convinced by the argument that the extra men would save $100,000 a year by cutting out the need for sick leave substitution.

But McKenzie also had another reason.

"The firemen are not the easiest group of city employees to deal with," he said. "If we expand the force by 12 persons we should be forewarned that we are going to be extending some of the difficulties we have been having.

"There will be 12 more firemen to be there to agitate and negotiate."

The mayor said, however, he is satisfied that the additional firefighters are needed, because the department's firefighting effectiveness has "fallen behind" in recent years.

He said there's another advantage to consider — that the staff increase will "inject more youth" into a department with a remarkably low turnover and a high percentage of veterans.

"The age grouping of that department is starting to worry me . . . not that I'm saying they are old men."

V.I.P. ABOARD Princess Marguerite for inaugural run of season May 19 will be Washington State governor Dixie Lee Ray. It's billed as an informal visit but she will have lunch with Lieut-Gov. Walter Owen and Premier Bennett at Government House, and return the same day. The governor's proposal to cut off the Sidney-Anacortes ferry is expected to crop up although no formal policy meetings are scheduled.

YOUTH KILLED

A 17-year-old Victoria youth was killed this morning when the car he was driving collided with two others on Sooke Road just east of Veitch Creek bridge.

Colwood RCMP said Brad Shaun Ruel Fraser, 2533 Richmond, died instantly in the 7 a.m. collision.

Kevin Michael Spicer, 17, of 3609 Richmond, a passenger in Fraser's car received minor injuries.

The drivers of the other two cars escaped serious injury.

Hayes Haywire On Tower —Siddall

Victoria architect Bob Siddall has rebuked Ald. John Hayes for making "misinformed comments" about a proposed office building at 747 Fort Street, which Hayes had termed a potential "tombstone for downtown Victoria."

Siddall says the building is not 14 storeys but 11, while its colors are "golden bronze glass and a warm beige concrete finish, not black and grey."

Hayes had claimed earlier the building would dominate the downtown landscape, but Siddall said the tower is about the same height as the Executive House and "no taller than four much larger buildings within 350 yards."

Hayes was reported to have said that the city's Advisory Design Panel should throw out the plans for the development, which is being built by Assiz Rohani, head of an Iranian construction company.

What he did not point out is that the panel serves in an advisory capacity only, and cannot force a developer to change a design which panel members consider unsuitable or inappropriate.

The plans for the project comply with all zoning requirements and regulations.

MASSED BRASS blares tonight in Memorial Arena when more than 2,000 elementary and high school musicians stage what's certain to be biggest (and loudest) band performance ever staged in city. Bill Halkett photo shows rehearsal session under way this morning.

Second Look Promised Action Group

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm will reconsider his decision to cut off funding to the Victoria Community Action Group.

After an almost one-hour meeting Tuesday with representatives of the group, Vander Zalm said he will think over his action and hopes to decide within a week.

"I'll be reviewing all the information and following through on some of the things they (the group representatives) told me," he said.

The action group last year received a provincial grant of $36,919 and had requested $47,669 for this fiscal year which began April 1, 1977.

Canadian Explains WHY

'Too Wrapped Up In Nationalism' —McKechnie

Walt McKechnie

'Towers, Guns, Soldiers—It Blows Your Mind'

The behavior of a number of Team Canada players after Sunday's 11-1 loss to the Soviet Union in the world hockey championship in Vienna has been widely criticized by Canadian reporters. One of those players, Walt McKechnie, explains his actions in an interview with Ernie Miller of London Free Press.

By ERNIE MILLER
London Free Press

VIENNA (CP) — Walt McKechnie stood on the blueline in sullen mood, leaning on his hockey stick while the Soviet anthem was played and the flag of the winning country raised in Sunday's world championship game at the Stadthalle.

He refused to remove his hockey helmet during the traditional post-game victory ceremony and, unknowingly at the time, turned his backside to the bundespresident of Austria, Dr. Rudolf Kirchschlaeger.

This was a display of disrespect and disdain for protocol and the gentlemanly conduct expected of the participating countries and the players. For many Canadian fans who watched this 11-1 horror show, the deportment of Walt McKechnie and several other Canadians in this game was inexcusable and embarrassing.

I don't support what Walt McKechnie did but today I better understand it.

This was no temper tantrum in defeat. What Walter did was calculated.

Walt is 29. This is his first crack at international hockey and for years he has been itching to be a part of it.

"I love my country. It's the greatest place to live in the world. I guess that's in a nutshell, is the background behind doing what I did."

Many Canadians won't accept McKechnie's logic but, then, many Canadians have never been subject to the unbelievable pressures of an international championship—particularly one which involves countries with opposite or different views and modes of living to ours.

The mind often plays tricks on you when you're in a communist country as Team Canada was prior to arriving in Vienna. You tend to see things the first time around in a perverted light. You imagine the worst of conditions.

What did McKechnie see in his first visit to Prague for two exhibition games against the Czechoslovakian national team that so upset him that he would do what he did in two world championship games in Vienna?

"I had little kids come up to me for an autograph. Their faces were all smiles. Just beaming all over. Minutes before they looked so sad. We were like gods to these kids. There was no question in my mind at the time that they were simply overjoyed to see a Canadian . . . or anybody from a free country."

"It was a barren place. Dismal. Drab. It gave me the willies. But never will I forget those happy kids when they saw us. It wasn't that we were hockey players. I'm convinced it was because we were from Canada.

Team Canada was scheduled to leave Prague on a Monday at 3:30 in the morning by airplane to Vienna. The players were so distraught at conditions there that they voted to get out in the middle of the night a day early.

"Going through all these small towns was the most shaking thing I've ever been through," McKechnie said. "I mean for the first time in my life I'm actually seeing barbed wire fences with soldiers standing beside them with machineguns on their hips. The area between a gate we had to go through and the field on the other side was a mine field. It blows your mind. Towers, guns, soldiers. I couldn't believe it. I hated the place right then and there. I hated everything about Communists. I have the greatest respect for the abilities of the Russian and Czech hockey players but how the hell can I respect the system they live under?"

Walt McKechnie said he hated the Czechoslovakians and he hated the Russians because of what they stand for. It's because of this hatred that he can't control his feelings on the ice.

"I know a lot of Canadians are going to say I'm an ass for what I did but they don't understand what's been going on. The Russians . . . are in a league by themselves when it comes to dirty hockey. I'm not a dirty hockey player at home. Check the records. But I'll be damned if I'm going to let them get away with what they've been getting away with here."

McKechnie motioned for me to join him in the washroom. He pulled down his trousers, took off his shirt and pointed.

One, two, three black and blue welts on his backside and right leg. A bubble of black skin covering the blood blister where he'd been speared in the arm.

"Worse than the spearing was the fact that they laughed at us," he said of the Soviets. "They stood back and just laughed. When the score got to be 6-0 the other night I just flipped out. I couldn't hack it any more. I wanted to hurt somebody bad. I've never felt like that in my life.

"I'm not cut out for this type of hockey. I don't have the makeup to go through something like this that maybe Phil (Esposito) and some of the others do. I've seen so much crap against these guys in such a short period of time it's making me sick. I should never have been asked to play for Team Canada because I became too wrapped up in this nationalism thing."

Goalie Ken Dryden of Montreal Canadiens makes save off Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders in first period of Tuesday's National Hockey League playoff game at Montreal. Islanders Blast Referee in Defeat

MONTREAL (CP) — New York Islanders cannot say they have Montreal Canadiens where they want them in their best-ofseven Stanley Cup semi-final series, but there is no question the Islanders feel they are far from finished against mighty Montreal.

Third-period goals by Jim Roberts, Larry Robinson and Peter Mahovlich and the shutout goaltending of Ken Dryden carried Montreal to a 3-0 triumph over New York Tuesday night and a 2-0 lead in the series which resumes Thursday night at Uniondale, N.Y.

"We have been in this position before," said coach Al Arbour outside the New York dressing room. "We've been down a couple of games before.

"I think we can come back and I think our players believe the same thing. We started off a little slow in the first period and after that we were grinding them and grinding them. We had them looking pretty good."

The teams were scoreless for close to 48 minutes before veteran utility forward Roberts put Montreal ahead with his first point of the playoffs after stealing the puck from defenceman Jean Potvin.

Robinson's shot deflected off Gerry Hart's skate into the goal at 11:31 before Mahovlich wrapped up the victory with a power-play goal at 19:24.

"They had a break on their first goal," Arbour said. "And on their second goal, the puck wasn't even going close to the net and it hits a skate and went in.

"It was a case of breaks deciding this game. I thought in the last part of the second and in the third period, we were coming on very well."

The Canadiens are not about to admit they have the Islanders on the ropes. They know the Islanders have come back from deficits in the past to win series and Dryden said he was sure the Islanders would not be down after Tuesday's loss.

"I would expect that right now the Islanders are extremely upset and disappointed," said Dryden. "By tomorrow they will be less of that and maybe a little bit more encouraged.

While the Islanders did not appear discouraged in the least, a few were incensed with the work of referee Andy van Hellemond.

The most vocal of the group was Denis Potvin, who was speared by Mahovlich in the second period and was forced to leave the game with a muscle spasm in his right leg. There was no call on the play, something which upset many Islanders.

"The only problem we faced tonight was the damned refereeing," said Potvin. "I think it has been the worst I've ever seen. That's our problem."

New York's Pat Price was the target of jeers from the Montreal fans in the third period after he slammed Rejean Houle to the ice. Houle suffered a dislocated left shoulder and is finished for the season.

LEARN WORD 'RESTRAINT'

Canada Snaps Back—Ties Czechs

VIENNA (CP) — General manager Derek Holmes and coach Johnny Wilson preached restraint during Team Canada's eight-game European tour earlier this month.

Their words generally fell on deaf ears until Tuesday night.

The Canadians, criticized in earlier games for poor sportsmanship and retaliating with their sticks after being hooked or held, stuck to hockey in their fourth game of the World Hockey Championship and tied Czechoslovakia 3-3.

It took a brilliant performance by goaltender Tony Esposito, who stopped 26 shots, and top efforts from Ron Ellis, Rod Gilbert, Wayne Merrick, Al MacAdam and Pierre Larouche to provide Canada with the draw.

"It was a tremendous team effort," said Wilson. "Every player really exerted himself. I would have to say it was the best 60 minutes of hockey we have played in Europe."

Wilf Paiement, who was criticized for his aggressiveness which resulted in a tournament-leading 24 minutes in penalties after the first three games, stayed out of the penalty box.

However, referee Raimo Soponen of Finland handed four of the five minor penalties to Canada including a two-minute spearing sentence and a 10-mincte misconduct to Walt McKechnie for arguing the call.

The Canadians were whipped 11-1 Sunday night by the Soviet Union. It was the worst defeat Canada has suffered in world tournament play.

"It's very pleasant," said Alan Eagleson, chairman of international hockey for Canada. "As far as I'm concerned a tie is a reasonable result against a team like Czechoslovakia which has been walloping everybody the way the Russians walloped us."

The tie for Czechoslovakia dropped them into third place with a 3-0-1 record. The Soviet Union and Sweden share the lead with 4-0 records.

In another game Tuesday, Finland nipped the U.S. 3-2 as Timo Sutinen scored the winning goal at 17:44 of the final period.

The Czechoslovaks led 2-0 midway through the second period on goals by Marin Stastny and Jaroslov Pouzar before the Canadians started to hustle, forecheck and buzz around goalie Vladimir Dzurilla. It paid off with three goals by Pierre Larouche, Merrick and Ellis within 80 seconds.

Milan Novy tied the score with his fifth goal of the tournament at 1:01 of the third period, deflecting Bohuslav Evermann's long drive past Esposito.

The Canadians insisted the play was offside. It looked that way from the press area, but the referee and linesmen Martin Erhard of West Germany and Nico Toemen of The Netherlands had other ideas.

Action resumes today with Romania meeting West Germany and Canada playing Finland.

Rookies Looking Good Says Dillon of Irish

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Victoria Shamrocks, one week away from their Western Lacrosse Association season opener against Vancouver Burrards, may be fielding three rookies when the final countdown on the playing roster is made next week.

Coach Nirmal Dillon, while admitting the team is slightly behind last year's program in getting conditioned for the 1977 season, says "we'll be ready, and I've been quite impressed by the rookies."

And those rookies are three members of last year's McDonalds Minto Cup junior Canadian champions — Kenny King, Gerry Cadwallader and Dave Lowden.

"They've all impressed me," said Dillon, "with their ability and diligence.

"Cadwallader and Lowden are big enough to get the job done in the WLA," said Dillon, "and both can hit. As a matter of fact I guess I never noticed before how hard Lowden could hit. Cadwallader also has a good shot and I think he'll be a plus for us.

"As for King, he's really surprised me; and there again I guess I really didn't know what to expect."

"I haven't made up my mind yet on the team" said Dillon, "But right now I would say they have as good a chance to make the club as some of the others."

The "others" include most of last year's players with the notable exception of goalkeeper Skip Chapman and defenceman Tommy Black who have retired. Two newcomers are former professional Glen Neuman, and goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer from Fergus and the most valuable player in the Ontario Lacrosse Association in 1976. Gord Nielsen also has been working out after taking off most of last year, while Bob Turkington is back after a year's absence.

Turkington has had a knee problem, but it seems to be coming around, "and he still has that great shot," said Dillon.

A former junior player here and looking for a berth on the Irish is Bill Marianchuck. "He's small, but a good stickhandler," said Dillon.

The Shamrock coach also had a good report on sophomore Norm Baker.

"He's in better shape than he was this time last season, has been working on the power play, and I think you'll see a big improvement from him. It took him that first year to get acclimatized; and he has such a good shot, he'll score some goals for us, I'm sure."

But back to the rookies. Cadwallader, King and Lowden are primarly expected to add checking strength to the club. King, it may be recalled, led McDonalds in penalties last year with 146 minutes and Cadwallader wasn't far behind with 127.

King had 31 goals and 42 assists for 73 points, Lowden 15 goals and 24 assists for 39 points and Cadwallader 12 goals and 17 assists for 29 points.

"Some of those figures may not look that impressive," said Dillon, "but they've all looked better than that to me in practice. And besides they're keen to play."

Meanwhile, Nanaimo Timbermen have announced they will request WLA commissioner Roy Burton to make a decision regarding Bob Cool.

The Timbermen would like to obtain Cool who was the first-round draft pick of the Shamrocks but so far has declined to come to terms with the Shamrocks.

Cool was a teammate and linemate of Kevin Alexander on McDonalds, Minto Cup junior champions last year and has expressed a desire to play with Alexander in Nanaimo.

Shamrocks have declined to accede to Cool's request and Burton has said it is a matter between Cool and the Shamrocks.

Dillon said Tuesday as far as he knew there was no deal pending with the Timbermen for Cool.

Under existing rules, if Cool does not play for the Shamrocks he could sit out the season.

GETTING BATTERS OUT THE PROBLEM

By The Associated Press

Cincinnati Reds are driving Dave Bristol batty.

"Our pitchers are not putting enough into the ball," says the Atlanta Braves' manager. "We've got to start getting people out. We can't go on like this."

Bristol was all torn up after his pitching continued to be torn apart by the Reds, who blasted 14 hits en route to a 8-1 National League baseball victory Tuesday night.

The Reds' latest assault followed Monday night's outburst at Atlanta Stadium, where Cincinnati scored 23 runs on 18 hits.

That made a total of 48 runs and 48 hits against Braves pitching in the last three games. Los Angeles Dodgers scored 16 runs against Atlanta on Sunday.

While offering little solace to Bristol, the Cincinnati hit parade sounded like sweet music to Reds' manager Sparky Anderson, whose team had been in an early-season slump.

"You're not going to keep a good team down very long," said Anderson. "We've had our problems and I'm the first to admit it. But for seven years this club has won a lot of games. These guys are never going to quit—win or lose."

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Philadelphia Phillies 5-0, Chicago Cubs defeated St. Louis Cardinals 4-1, Los Angeles Dodgers downed San Diego Padres 4-1 and Houston Astros trimmed San Francisco Giants 4-3 in 13 innings.

In the American League, pitcher Doug Bird, who had an earned run average of 4.15, fired six shutout relief innings and was the winner as Kansas City Royals beat Texas Rangers 6-3.

In other American League games, Baltimore Orioles cooled off New York Yankees 6-2, Minnesota Twins downed Seattle Mariners 5-3, Chicago White Sox outlasted Detroit Tigers 10-7 in 14 innings, Boston Red Sox downed Milwaukee 3-1 and Oakland A's beat California Angels 7-3.

Dan Driessen drove in six runs with a pair of homers, Johnny Bench hit another and left-hander Fred Norman gave up only three hits in six innings for Cincinnati.

Power Play Pays

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Aeros, with the unenviable record of five consecutive playoff losses to Winnipeg Jets, will try to find the secret of beating the defending World Hockey Association champions Thursday night in the second game of their semi-final playoff series.

If they want some advice on how to beat Winnipeg, Jets' left winger Bobby Hull has an opinion.

"In order for them to beat us, they've got to skate with us and not take any foolish penalties," Hull said after the Jets beat the Aeros 4-3 in overtime Tuesday in the series opener.

The Jets beat the Aeros four in a row last year in the WHA final series.

Three of Winnipeg's four goals Tuesday came on power plays, including the winning overtime goal when Houston's Rich Preston was called for high sticking on a controversial ruling.

Bruins Win Second In Double Overtime

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — It was a 4½-hour thriller, but Boston had the shots when they counted and beat Philadelphia Flyers 5-4 Tuesday on Terry O'Reilly's goal in the second overtime period.

The second game of the Stanley Cup semi-finals came to a sudden ending at 10:07 when left winger Don Marcotte sent the puck to O'Reilly just outside the crease.

"I just tried to hit the back of the net," said O'Reilly. "I was right at the corner of the net, right on the crease, maybe 10 inches away."

Down 3-1, the Bruins erupted for three second-period goals while the Flyers got another to tie the score at 4-4. The Flyers stormed all over the Bruins in the scoreless third period, but Boston's defence, and a good deal of luck, helped send the game into overtime.

From the moment centre Jean Ratelle scored the tying Boston goal at 15:39 of the second period, until O'Reilly's winning goal, the teams were scoreless for more than 54 minutes.

The victory, the second in overtime for the Bruins, gave them a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven National Hockey League series. The playoffs now switch to Boston for the third and fourth games on Thursday and Sunday nights.

"This has got to be our best game," Cherry added. "We never took any unnecessary chances in this one. The other one Sunday night (Boston won it 4-3), we went out to shoot the works in the first five minutes."

The Flyers outshot Boston 47-33 and hit posts at least half a dozen times.

It was Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers who kept the Bruins alive, especially in the third period when they were outshot 8-1 and the first overtime when the margin was 11-8. But the Bruins took the play in the second overtime and led in shots 7-3.

The double overtime was the first in the NHL since 1971.

Centre Peter McNab put Boston ahead late in the first period when his long shot hit a defenceman's skate. Andre Dupont tied it for the Flyers and Orest Kindrachuk and Paul Holmgren made it 3-1 early in the second period.

Gregg Sheppard pulled Boston to within one when he rifled in Cashman's goalmouth pass at 14:01. Then both teams equalled a record by scoring three goals in 38 seconds.

First, rookie defenceman Mike Milbury tied the score for Boston 3-3 at 15:01. Fifteen seconds later Gary Dornhoefer put Philadelphia ahead and Ratelle scored the fourth Boston goal 13 seconds later.

Applications of 2,4-D Should Be Very Limited

Although I don't believe the issue is as critical as the proposed use of insecticide sprays to control spruce budworm populations in the Fraser Canyon area, the use of 2,4-D to help reduce the spread of Eurasian watermilfoil in the Okanagan Lake system must be monitored very carefully.

It isn't as contentious an action for one reason — the use of this herbicide is only part of a four-pronged attack on the noxious water weed which has been clogging waterways throughout the system in recent years and threatens to spread elsewhere. The other three prongs are mechanical, hydrological and biological control methods.

Consulting biologist Rory Finegan pointed out some of the dangers of 2,4-D in a letter that followed two items I'd written early last December on the weed menace.

He explained the substance "has toxic properties intrinsic to itself."

"In 1952 its mutagenic properties were described in the Canadian Journal of Botany by Unrau, demonstrating that it has the power of damaging chromosomes.

"It causes liver and kidney damage to waterfowl . . . for instance Canada geese feeding on material contaminated experimentally with 2,4-D showed these signs, and more significantly failed to gain weight.

"In a wild population, a young bird which had not put on proper weight would not survive migration," Finegan added.

"My own experience includes an investigation into the deaths of cygnets in Beacon Hill Park where the birds had been feeding in grass contaminated by the closely-related M.C.P.A."

In addition to the mutagenic and chromosome-damaging properties, a Bionetics Laboratory report notes a teratogenic effect, whereby abnormal structures in mice and rat embryos were induced by 2,4-D.

Finegan also managed to prick a hole in one oft-cited advantage of the herbicide.

"It is untrue to claim that it disappears rapidly from the environment, as there are cases on record where wells were contaminated many miles and years distant from 2,4-D application sites."

The fact that Eurasian watermilfoil grows in an aquatic environment compounds the difficulties with using chemical treatments.

The rate of application for aquatic weed control is 20 pounds per acre of the active ingredient. In contrast, control of land-based weeds for right of way maintenance and forest management purposes is achieved with an application rate of about two pounds per acre.

Despite this massive application rate, Finegan said the "label for 2,4-D for aquatic weed control advises that repeat applications are sometimes needed after six to eight weeks, and in any event at eighteen month to two-year intervals."

"Thus a program of chemical weed control once started might have to be continued indefinitely without a real solution being achieved."

Luckily, the application of 2,4-D to Eurasian watermilfoil will be limited to the sites which aren't suitable to treatment by any of the other three methods.

Hopefully, these areas will be extremely limited and the herbicide, when applied, will be used with extra caution and only after specific examination of every possible ramification by all resource agencies.

Possible dangers make this absolutely mandatory.

Ideally, biological control methods are the best long-term hope for control of this plant pest and I hope a crash program to isolate such an organism has been instigated.

Pouring chemicals into an ecosystem is bad enough on a strictly short-term basis. But relying on herbicides because of cost factors or ease of treatment in even a minor capacity over many years would be a grave mistake.

NIBBLES: Off-hand I'd say a little more emphasis should be placed on enforcing the fishing regulations on the Cowichan River—especially in the fly-fishing-only area of the upper reaches . . . I've heard several reports of violations lately . . . Some of these could perhaps be avoided through posting the boundaries of regulatory areas by the fish and wildlife branch — or by an on-site warning from a uniformed official.

CAPTAIN MUST FINGER EAR-NIPPING PLAYER

ROME (UPI) — The Italian Rugby Federation Tuesday gave Wuehrer club captain Luciano Modenesi 15 days to say which of his players bit off an opponent's ear.

If Modenesi fails to answer, the federation said, sanctions will be adopted against the captain himself.

The federation said a medical examination confirmed the complaint of Giorgio Monacelli, a player of the Reggio Calabria team Caronte, that someone bit off part of his ear during a game against Wuehrer No. 20. It said there is no conclusive evidence as to who did it.

Wuehrer player Paolo Paletti, who was originally charged with the biting attack, was imprisoned for one month and then released pending further investigation.

Orr Out For One Year

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey star Bobby Orr will be on crutches for the next four months and has been told by doctors not to think about playing hockey for the next 12 months following a sixth operation on his battered left knee.

Dr. John Palmer, who last week performed the most recent of the series of operations Orr has had during the last 10 years, said it was "a pretty major operation."

"Putting Bobby back on ice as a big league hockey player was not a major part of the decision in this operation, although I'm sure Bobby is hoping for that one-in-ten chance that he will be able to play again," said Dr. Palmer.

"This was a pretty major operation on the knee. We opened it up quite widely to remove bone chips and loose articular cartilage. Bobby understands that he must not even think about hockey for the coming season.

"He has agreed to one whole year of treatment for that knee. What we want is free movement and muscle development. As I said, Bobby will not be able to bear weight on that knee in the next four months. He will, however, be using a cycle."

Orr, a former all-star with Boston Bruins where he set National Hockey League scoring records for defencemen, appeared in only 20 games with Chicago Black Hawks last season because of his continuing problems with the knee.

He had just recovered from his fifth operation, performed in December, 1975, when he went into the Canada Cup tournament last September.

Cardiff Side To Play Here

Cardiff, one of the foremost rugby sides in the world today, celebrates its centenary this year with a trip to North America.

And the tour opens with a match against the Vancouver Island Rugby Union's Crimson Tide on May 23 at Royal Athletic Park.

Numerous international players and two outstanding performers who turned down a tour to New Zealand with the British Lions in order to travel to North America make up the prestigeous Welsh side.

Gareth Edwards, Cardiff's 28-year-old scrum half, has been capped 49 straight times for Wales, has played for the British Lions and is a member of the famed Barbarians.

Winger Gerald Davies, who has 41 caps for Wales, figured in two tours with Lions and is a former member of Cambridge Blues.

Mike Knill is a prop in the current Welsh international side while clubmate Barry Nelms fills a similar post for England. Centre Alex Finlayson also has been capped numerous times for Wales.

The May 23 match is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. and should be the highlight of a program of three top-flight matches here within a 12-day span.

Other matches are a game between Crimson Tide and Canada's national team on May 17 and a May 28 tussle between the England Under-23 side and British Columbia Reps.

Admission to each game will be $3 for adults and $1.50 for students with tickets only available at Royal Athletic Park on the day of the match.

Bruins Take Opener

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Brandon Wheat Kings dropped a 3-2 overtime loss on home ice Tuesday night to New Westminster Bruins in the first game of their best-of-seven Western Canada Hockey League final.

The series resumes here tonight before moving to New Westminster for the fourth and fifth games Friday and Sunday.

Randy Betty, an 18-year-old leftwinger, scored the winning goal for the Bruins, knocking in a loose puck during a goalmouth scramble.

The first two periods were classic goaltender duels with Bruins' Blaine Peterson and Wheat Kings' Glen Hanlon taking the spotlight.

Kelly Ferner gave the Wheat Kings a 1-0 lead after one period but Barry Beck, the league's most valuable player and top defenceman, put the Bruins into a 1-1 tie after two.

Ray Allison of Brandon and Brad Maxwell of New Westminster exchanged goals in the third period to force the overtime.

Peterson ended the game with 38 stops while Hanlon handled 41. The Bruins took six of nine minor penalties and two of four majors.

Blazers, Rockets Bolster Chances

By The Associated Press

Bob Gross and Mike Newlin have put their teams in good positions in the National Basketball Association playoff quarter-finals.

Gross scored 12 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter Tuesday night, leading Portland Trail Blazers to a 115-106 victory over Denver Nuggets and a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven series.

The Blazers can clinch the series Sunday at Denver.

Newlin, a rugged guard, scored two baskets in the final 20 seconds, helping Houston Rockets beat Washington Bullets 107-103. That road victory tied the series 2-2 and regained the home-court advantage for the Rockets.

In Tuesday night's other game, Golden State evened its series with Los Angeles at 2-2 with a 114-103 victory over the Lakers. Forwards Rick Barry and Jamaal Wilkes combined for 53 points for the Warriors, offsetting 41 points and 18 rebounds by Lakers centre Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

The other series resumes tonight at Philadelphia, with Boston Celtics and Philadelphia '76ers tied 2-2.

Instant Millionaires Can't Get Job Done

NEW YORK (AP) — The early-season travail of Wayne Garland, Cleveland's $2.3-million pickup from the free agent pool, points up one of the dangers of facing baseball's 1977 instant millionaires.

Garland, 26, the right-handed pitcher who signed a 10-year contract with the Indians after playing out his option with Baltimore Orioles, was shelled for 13 hits and eight runs in his first two starts for an earned run average of 9.00.

Manager Frank Robinson said he probably would take Garland out of the regular pitching rotation to let him get his sore shoulder and perhaps his head straightened out.

Garland said he had been bothered by tendinitis. His pitching coach, Harvey Haddix, said the trouble might lie somewhere else.

"I think he's bothered by pressure," Haddix said. "It's a combination of things — new surroundings, his contract, the fans."

Is this the same malady afflicting Bill Campbell, Boston's $1.5 million mound addition who survived only six innings in his first three games, allowing 10 hits and eight earned runs.

Is what caused Don Gullett, the New York Yankees touted $2-million acquistion from Cincinnati Reds, to yield 22 hits and 12 earned runs in his first three starts for a 1-2 won-lost record.

Yankees's owner George Steinbrenner was among the first to recognize the perils lurking for players and teams tagged with the "fat Cat" label after the free-agent sweepstakes.

"No doubt about it, we'll be on the spot," he said. "The fans will expect immediate results. If they don't get them there will be hell to pay."

True of the prophecy, the Yankees were booed after dropping eight of their first 10 games. Garland was almost hooted out of the park in Baltimore on Wednesday night.

Reggie Jackson, the Yankees' $2.9 million piece of bric-a-brac, acknowledged that the Yankees' faltering start probably was the result of players trying too hard — the gold-plated merchandise trying to live up to price tags, the holdovers trying to show up the millionaires.

The cascade of dollars which a fraction of the clubs dumped into the free agent pot so far has returned lean dividends. Cleveland, Boston and New York are mired in the second division of the American League East. California Angels, who shelled out more than $5 million for Don Baylor, Joe Rudi and Bobby Grich, are struggling to keep out of the cellar of the AL West.

Texas Rangers, who paid close to $2 million for Bert Campaneris and Doyle Alexander, are puffing around the .500 mark. San Diego, which went for $2.7 million to nab Gene Tenace and Rollie Fingers, is battling it out with the Reds for the basement in the National League West.

On the other hand, Milwaukee, Atlanta and Montreal, who participated in the free agent sweepstakes, are off to a creditable start, although Sal Bando, the Brewers $1.5 million pickup, was batting only .214 with only two hits in the weekly averages, not including weekend games.

EXPOS GET SPEIER

SAN FRANCISCO(AP) — Chris Speier, disgruntled shortstop of San Francisco Giants, has been traded to Montreal Expos for Tim Foli, the National League baseball team announced Tuesday night. It was a straight player-for-player deal with no cash involved, the team said. Foli recently signed a three-year contract with the Expos. Speier, who has been on three National League all-star teams, said Tuesday night before the announcement: "I have been told the Giants are desperately trying to trade me, and I say the sooner the better."

Thorburn Near Snooker Final

SHEFFIELD, England (AP) — Canadian snooker champion Cliff Thorburn of Victoria drew within sight Tuesday of becoming the first Canadian ever to reach the final of the world professional snooker championship.

The Victoria native led Irishman Dennis Taylor 12-9 at close of play Tuesday in their 35-frame semi-final and needs only six of today's possible 14 frames to qualify for the final.

Resuming at 7-7 overnight, Thorburn recorded his first century-break of the semi-final — a clearance of exactly 100 — in winning the first frame. He then went two ahead but the Irishman levelled at 99 before 27-year-old Thorburn, showing consistent and precise control in his break-building, compiled runs of 44, 57, and 53 in again going two-up. He won the last frame of the day on the black after a tense duel to earn his three-frame, close of play advantage.

Scores, Thorburn first, were 104-16, 84-41, 30-69, 44-62, 104-27, 79-36 and 68-61.

During the tournament, Thorburn has set one world tourney record by sinking 13 straight black balls and tied another by making two century breaks — 100 or more points — in a row.

The previous high for black balls was 11 in a row.

Gullett Slips, Leaves Game

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pitcher Don Gullett of New York Yankees, injured on a fielding play in Monday night's American League baseball game against Baltimore Orioles, was sent back to New York on Tuesday for a medical examination. The left-hander slipped on wet grass while trying to field a fourth-inning bunt by Rick Dempsey. He left the game later in the inning.

A team spokesman said Gullett has a sore left ankle and the left side of his neck and shoulder was injured. The injury is not considered serious but it could not be determined immediately if he will miss a start.

'VERSATILE PLAYER'

Randle Traded to Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets acquired controversial infielder Lenny Randle from Texas Rangers on Tuesday in exchange for an undisclosed amount of cash and a player to be named later.

The deal was completed one day before Randle completed a 30-day suspension imposed by the Rangers after he slugged Texas manager Frank Lucchesi on March 28 during spring training. Lucchesi suffered a broken cheekbone, required surgery and spent five days in hospital.

Randle was fined $10,000 for the incident in Orlando, Fla., which occurred after he had lost his job to rookie Bump Wills.

"I first talked to the Rangers in February, before the incident," said Mets general manager Joe McDonald. "We are not condoning what he did and I am quite certain he would like to have it all behind him. It was wrong and the player acknowledged that by accepting the suspension and the fine.

"Lenny is a versatile player who can play all three outfield positions and three infield positions other than first base."

Randle batted .224 with the Rangers last season and had a career average of .253 in parts of six years with the club.

"All the reports we have had indicated that Randle is a 100 per cent ball player and a gentleman," McDonald added.

Randle will not be added to the Mets roster until he reports to the team. At that time another player will have to be dropped.

As a result of the Lucchesi incident, Florida authorities have issued an arrest warrant charging Randle with aggravated battery.

Third Quilt Inquest Ruled Out by Gardom

Attorney-General Garde Gardom plans no further action in the case of Chilcotin Indian Fred Quilt whose wife in a deathbed confession said she was responsible for his death.

Gardom told a news conference Tuesday he will not order a third inquest into the 1971 death.

"A third inquest would neither lessen or eliminate the tragedy for his family and friends," Gardom said.

"It would reopen old wounds and be counterproductive to the improvement of relations between native people and law enforcement personnel," he said. RCMP Chief Supt. Gordon Dalton revealed last month that Quilt's widow, Christine, confessed before her death in the fall of 1976 that she had accidentally backed her truck over her husband the night he was fatally injured.

She also confessed to the 1968 fatal shooting of Rose Setah on the Stone Lake Indian reserve near Williams Lake.

Gardom said he has forwarded all details of the confession to the National Parole Board so it may consider an unconditional pardon for Stephen Hink, who was convicted of manslaughter in the Setah killing and served three years in prison.

Gardom said it's not up to him to recommend that the parole board issue the pardon, "but the fact we are forwarding it is indicative of one's feelings."

Quilt's death at the age of 55 in Williams Lake Hospital two days after an incident on the Chilcotin Road started a controversy that raged for several years. Quilt's family and Indian leaders claimed an RCMP officer jumped up and down on him after he fell out of the cab of his pickup.

Two inquests were held, one for three days in January, 1972 and the second for 22 days in July and August, 1972. Both inquest juries blamed no one in the death.

Mrs. Quilt confessed before she died of cancer that Quilt was urinating behind the pickup when she backed up the truck and knocked him down.

RCMP said Mrs. Quilt's confession contained the information that she put Quilt into the cab of the truck before the RCMP arrived.

Gardom said the reopening of the case would serve no useful purpose "simply to test the value of the statement of Mrs. Quilt."

The attorney-general also told the news conference the B.C. Police College will definitely have a place to locate at the end of the year.

The college's lease at Seaforth Armories in Vancouver expires at the end of the year, but Gardom said there are no difficulties with finding a new home for the college.

"It will be open and operating," he said.

Gardom promised that legislation providing secure facilities for juvenile delinquents and the Ombudsman Act will be introduced when the legislative session reconvenes, probably in late May or early June.

TEAMSTERS ASK TWO-YEAR PACT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Local 213 of the Teamsters Union will seek a two-year contract in B.C. construction industry bargaining while other unions seek one-year pacts, Jack Vlahovic, secretary treasurer of the local, said Tuesday.

In proposals scheduled for discussion with the Construction Labor Relations Association next Monday, the union's main demands are for a $1.30-an-hour wage increase this year and $1 next year.

The $1.30 demand is the same as the B.C. and Yukon Construction Trades Council presented to CLRA in March, but instead of a second-year demand the council asked for a wage protection clause in case the federal anti-inflation program concludes before its new agreement ends.

The teamsters, which once bargained as an affiliate of the trades council, represent 1,200 construction industry workers who now receive wage and fringe benefits totalling $12.21 an hour.

More Education Cash Coming from Ottawa

The federal government has begun payment of an estimated $20 million extra to the B.C. government for post-secondary education, deputy education minister Walter Hardwick said Tuesday.

Hardwick said in an interview that through a new interpretation of the fiscal arrangements act, B.C. is starting to receive extra money owed it for the years 1972 to 1974.

Under the terms of the act, the federal government shares 50 per cent of the costs of post-secondary education with the province.

However, the act stipulates that the net amount paid by the federal government cannot increase more than 15 per cent in one year.

Hardwick said the federal government had been interpreting this clause on a province-to-province basis and, therefore, B.C. — with jumps of about 25 per cent in each of those years — was not receiving the full 50 per cent.

The deputy minister said it was the province's position that the clause applied to the country as a whole, and that, through lengthy negotiations, the federal government finally agreed to this stand.

Hardwick said the exact amount of extra funds coming to this province was not known, and that the funds would take about two years to be paid.

He said he did not know how much the province received each year from the federal government for post-secondary education.

Kiwanian Predicts Grim Future

Times are tough and if anybody thinks they're going to get better they are kidding themselves, Victoria Kiwanis Club was told Tuesday.

The warning came from Jack Delf of Richmond, a Kiwanis International trustee who is a candidate for the post of vice-president of the international.

"At best they could be traumatic, and they could be catostrophic," he said. "The crucial question is whether we can create a workable order for an increasingly interdependent world."

Delf was invited to speak in connection with Canada-U.S. Goodwill Week, an observance initiated by Kiwanis International in 1922.

Goodwill Week marks the 1817 Rush-Bagot agreement which virtually demilitarized the 3,000-mile border between the two nations.

Delf said the greatest danger facing society is public apathy.

"Our society is too complacent," he said, pointing out people don't want to become involved in matters of public importance.

He said there is public apathy towards crookedness in high places, moral laxity, murderers released into the community after serving only an insignificant fraction of their sentences, sexual perverts returned to the community to repeat their offences, and government handouts to young people who don't want to work.

"We have become soft," he said. "We are responsible for the present."

Delf said if a world catastrophe is to be avoided, a high level of leadership will be required, plus understanding and a generosity of spirits.

"Never before have there been so many profoundly important causes crying for intelligent social co-operation from adult men and women," he said.

Deep Throat Showing Flunks Out Teacher

MOUNT PLEASANT, Pa. — To Ed Lewis,, a screening of X-rated Deep Throat for his students at Mount Pleasant High School was an educational experience. To the parents in this rural school district, it was an outrage. So today, Lewis needs a new job. Deep Throat — starring Linda Lovelace — exposes "students to issues they find critical in their lives," Lewis said, so he felt the pornographic film would make a good teaching aid.

BERLIN — A group calling itself the Moby Dick Command smashed the window of a delicatessen that sells whale steaks, but owner Knud Lomborg vows he will continue stocking them. Lomborg said the trouble started Monday when environmentalists put a sign in his window warning him to stop selling whale steaks. After he took down the sign, the group returned early Tuesday, smashed the window and left another poster reading in English: "Save the Whales, Save the Earth." Lomborg, 47, put up a sign of his own saying he will continue to sell whale steaks.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Former trash collector Ray Valine decided recently to use his head, and now says he's making $100 a day in advertising revenue. On one recent day he was advertising a downtown bar on the left side of his scalp, a steel company above his right ear, and a restaurant on the back of his head. He said the idea came to him when he was shaving his dark, curly locks so he could paint his head like an Easter egg "and be Captain Easter Egg for a gas station."

LOS ANGELES — Mae West's first new film in 30 years, Sextette, will have its world premiere on Aug. 17 in London, a spokesman for her movie company said Tuesday.

The film, also starring former Beatle Ringo Starr and Timothy Dalton, is adapted from Miss West's play which got her jailed on censorship charges in New York in 1927.

LOS ANGELES — Sixty-five years after her film debut, Lillian Gish is still appearing in films. The silent screen star has been signed for a role in A Wedding, produced and directed by Robert Altman for 20th Century-Fox. She joins a cast that includes Geraldine Chaplin, Viveca Lindfors, Nina Van Pallandt, Peggy Ann Garner, John Considine.

Pope Paul Meets Primate

VATICAN CITY — The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Donald Coggan, arrived today for a visit with Pope Paul that the Vatican hopes will help remove some of the bars to unity of the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches.

The primate of the Church of England and spiritual leader of the worldwide Anglican communion will meet twice with the Pope, and the two religious leaders will pray together in the Sistine Chapel.

It is the third visit by an Archbishop of Canterbury to a Pope since Dr. Geoffrey Fisher and Pope John XXIII broke the ice in 1960 after four centuries of separation.

It comes three months after a joint Anglican-Roman Catholic commission agreed that unity between the churches is possible despite the Anglicans' refusal to accept the Roman Catholic doctrines of the infallibility and primacy of the Pope.

A united church would join more than 600 million Roman Catholics and 69 million Anglicans.

NO LUCK WITH CONTESTS

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Grand Forks radio station KKXL isn't having much luck with its contests.

Four years ago, when the station held a giant cookie contest, somebody swiped the 400-pound winning entry, along with a rental van containing the big biscuit.

A year later, during another KKXL contest, someone slipped off with a nine-foot-long banana.

Monday night, in keeping with tradition, someone carted off a five-foot-high, pink-eared glassfibre bunny and the compact car on which it was mounted.

The auto had been parked in a department store parking lot in the city's east side. The station says the bunny weighs nearly 100 pounds and is valued at $500.

A Grand Forks car dealer who owns the compact is offering a reward — the use of a new car for one week.

KKXL, weary of losing cookies, bananas and bunnies, has put up a $100 reward.

UVic's Recreation Centre Open To Public First Time This Summer

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

The University of Victoria will open its $2½-million sports and recreation complex to the public for the first time this summer.

The McKinnon Building, completed two years ago and used by students, faculty and staff at UVic for athletics and recreation, will be available to the public from May through August for a series of recreation classes organized by Penny Lough, the school's intramural and recreation director.

UVic personnel will teach many of the courses.

"The public is eligible to use the facilities here only for the recreation and instructional classes," Miss Lough explained, "not for individual recreational purposes." Course fees, ranging from $8 for children's swim lessons to $65 for extensive scuba diving, are slightly higher for the public than for UVic students and staff, who pay annual dues.

Classes in May and June will focus on family and children's activities.

Courses include acrobatics for children age 8 to 15, tennis and squash instruction, beginner's contemporary dance, Hawaiian dancing, jazz dance, beginners' ballet, women's keep-fit, swimming stroke improvement, bronze medallion and advanced lifesaving, women's slim, trim and swim, children's swim lessons (7 years and up) for pre-beginners, beginners, pre-juniors, juniors, pre-intermediates and intermediates, scuba diving, sailing at Oak Bay marina and hatha yoga instruction at levels one and two.

LOUGH
. . . organizes courses

July and August classes will emphasize outdoor activities, including canoeing, orienteering and hiking.

"We've been trying to open up the facilities and programs to the public for the past two years," Miss Lough said. "Until now it was just the students, faculty and staff who could participate in the recreation classes, or even get into the facility.

"With most of the students gone for the summer, we're number of participants in very anxious to increase the family and children's programs, she continued. "We have facilities here that aren't readily available elsewhere in the community, including the squash courts and the swimming pool, and it would be a shame not to put them to use by opening them to the public."

Mike Elcock, UVic athletic director who leaves next week for a year of physical education study at the University of Edinburgh, sees the program is a first step to more public use of the McKinnon facilities.

"We've only now been able to get permission from the authorities at the university to embark on this program," Elcock said. "There was a fear — probably a justified one — of undercutting existing community recreation programs.

"We hope eventually to open up the facilities even more, but for the time being we've been instructed to start slowly."

Miss Lough stressed that the courses are designed to augment other recreation programs in Greater Victoria, not to run in opposition to them.

UVic has operated a similar program for students and staff under Miss Lough's direction for the past two years, with considerable success. The school has one of the highest participation levels of any university in Canada.

Last year, more than 1,000 students signed up for instructional classes and 1,200 for intramural competitions, representing 26 per cent of UVic's enrolment of 7,200.

"We found that men lean to intramural competition while women make up almost 75 per cent of the instructional classes," Miss Lough said. "The most popular classes were in dance, swimming, yoga and scuba. Co-education volleyball really took off this past year. We had so many teams register we had to press the old gym into service."

Registration for the public takes place starting May 3 at the athletics and recreation office, Room 121, McKinnon Building. More information is available there or by phoning 477-6911, local 4355.

"I don't quite know what to expect in terms of numbers," Miss Lough added, "but I don't think there will be a problem accommodating everyone."

Bid To Free 60 Acres

Sidney council agreed Tueday to appeal to the provincial cabinet a B.C. Land Commission decision rejecting an application to release 60 acres from the agricultural land reserve.

The land is in Sidney's south end, bordering North Saanich and Victoria airport.

Council's action follows a brief submitted by property owners in the area and Leisure Villa Estate to have the land taken out of the reserve.

Leisure Villa Estate wants about 30 acres of the land rezoned for an adults-only mobile home community park.

Union Rejects Cominco Offer

TRAIL (CP) — Union members at the Cominco Ltd. operation here have voted to reject a company contract offer, and to reject a "no contract-no work" stance.

A strike vote will begin today.

Marv McLean, chairman of the unions' joint bargaining council, said Tuesday 800 members of the United Steelworkers of America and the Association of Commercial and Technical Employees voted overwhelmingly against the contract offer, but only narrowly rejected the suggestion to stop work when the current contract, which affects 4,000 workers in the Kootenays, expires April 30.

McLean declined to provide figures on the votes.

McLean said the company's offer was "a slap in the face."

He said the offer represents a 4.5-cent-an-hour increase, because "the rest was negotiated in a cost-of-living clause in the last agreement."

District 63 School Tax To Increase

School taxes in rural Saanich will increase slightly this year while taxes in Sooke school district will decrease.

School District 63 set a mill rate at 45.9 mills, 1.47 mills higher than last year, but still below the provincial average of 47.5 mills.

And although Sooke school trustees set a record budget of $13.8 million, the tax rate has been reduced by two mills. The reduction is due to an increased tax base and a surplus from 1976 budget.

The Saanich increase is necessary to pay for the new high school being built at Stelly's Cross Road which is costing the equivalent of three mills.

"So we are pleased that we've been able to keep the mill rate down as well as we have," board chairman Gerry Kristianson said.

Sooke's record budget includes a $2.3 million capital expenditure program including a $1.1 million designated for a new elementary-junior school.

The mill rate in Sooke — 40.2 mills — is more than seven mills below the provincial average.

Duncan Holds Line On Taxes

DUNCAN — City council Tuesday approved a no tax increase budget.

Finance chairman Ald. Michael Coleman described the budget as "non-inflationary."

"We didn't arrive at this by magic," he said. "Lots of work went into the budget."

The budget provides the public works department with $55,000 for new equipment and $145,000 for roads and drainage.

Total expenditure this year from general revenue will be $2,399,890.

This is a decrease of $40,000 from the previous year, but this year's figure does not include the expenditure of $208,000 for sewers which under municipal regulations had to be treated separately in 1977.

City treasurer Keith Belliveau noted the value of the mill has also increased from $16,715 to $18,278.

But he said that increased expenditures have been met in 1977 by new construction.

"Basically, we have raised most of it because of new developments in the city, which have offset increased costs," he said.

N.I.P. Cash Refused

DUNCAN — The federal housing department has rejected a city application for additional funding for its Jubilee Street neighborhood improvement program.

The city requested an additional $150,000 after it was established that a recreation building would complement the new 133-unit Duncan Manor adjacent to Centennial Park.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

There are certain specific plays in bridge that all students of the game have read about. In some cases, one has to wait for years for one of them to actually arise at the bridge table.

Today's deal features one of these plays. It came up during the 1973 National Championships, in the Reisinger Team-of-Four event.

♠ Q 5
♡ K 6 5
◇ K 10 7 4 2

WEST

◇ Q

SOUTH
♠ A 10
♡ J 10 9 8 3 2
◇ A J 5

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 NT	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♣.

Had West decided to lead a spade at trick one, there would have been no story to tell, for a spade trick would then have become established for the defenders. But West made the more normal lead of the club ten.

The trick was won by the board's king, after which declarer led a diamond to his ace, catching East's queen en route. He next led the jack of trumps, and when West followed with the seven-spot, declarer played the five from dummy. It was declarer's hope, of course, that West was the possessor of the trump queen.

East captured the trick — but not with the queen! He won it with the ace, and thereby convinced declarer that West possessed the queen of trumps. To trick four East returned the eight of spades.

As is evident, had declarer played low from his own hand, his ten would have won the trick. But declarer was certain that West had the queen of trumps, and that via another finesse against that card, he would gather in the adversely held trumps without the loss of another trick. On dummy's fourth diamond, he would then be able to discard his losing ten of spaces.

So he put up the spade ace and led the ten of trumps. He was amazed when West discarded a spade. Upon winning the trick with the board's king, he next led a diamond to his jack. East ruffed with the queen, and then cashed the spade king. And so the defenders made a spade and two heart tricks.

Had this deal arisen in a rubber-bridge game, it would have been of no import, since only an overtrick was involved. But in a tournament, where scoring is on a relative basis, the overtrick can be worth its weight in gold. And so it was on this deal — to East and West.

"Wow! You look great," Val exclaimed when her husband came in. "New jacket, new shoes, new tie. Did we win the lottery?"

John smiled, shaking his head. "I got a small raise, and anyway these were only two hundred bucks in all. The coat was just three times as much as tie and shoes together, and the shoes were a quarter as much as coat and tie together."

What were the prices?

Pr. George Sees No Evil

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Nine city aldermen said Tuesday they have seen no evidence of impropriety by elected officials in land development here.

They made the statement in response to the current British Columbia Television series on the city's land development policies.

Alderman Vic Litnosky, who has called for a public inquiry into allegations that developer Stewart Wood was able to make large profits from Carma developments through his friendship with Mayor Harold Moffat, was not asked to sign the statement.

The aldermen said "freedom of the press does not give a television station licence to act irresponsibly."

"The techniques used by BCTV can effectively destroy the morale of a community."

They said it seems probable that an outside development company and a few local land dealers have been unsuccessful in some of their representations to city council and would like to intimidate it with strongarm tactics and replace the mayor with one of their puppets.

Meanwhile, RCMP and attorney-general's office spokesmen said a preliminary inquiry has not turned up any evidence of illegal land transactions involving city council.

Hal Yacowar, legal officer for the attorney-general, said an anonymous letter from Prince George concerning land deals would be turned over to the RCMP and might prompt further investigation.

Gordon Jager, a builder here, said Tuesday he and other opponents of city council "are branded as nuts in this town if we say anything against city council."

"We've been begging and bellyaching for an inquiry because this has turned into a very ugly little war," he said.

RCMP Supt. Scotty Gardiner said in Victoria Tuesday that a commercial crime unit from Kamloops had investigated the matter earlier this month and handed its findings to Prince George regional crown counsel A. S. K. Cook.

Cook said he has reviewed the report and passed it back to the RCMP with his comments. He did not say what those comments were.

Yacowar said the attorney-general's department does not think there is enough evidence of illegal land transactions involving council members to justify a public inquiry.

Penthouse Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP) — An appeal was launched Tuesday by the five individuals and the company convicted in the Penthouse morals trial. The appeal is based on grounds that Judge William Trainor erred in convicting Joseph Philliponi, Ross Filippone, Rose Filippone, Jan Sedlak and Minerva Kelly, plus Celebrity Enterprises, of conspiring to live off the avails of prostitution.

The appeal claims there was no evidence that they participated in a single, overall conspiracy.

DROP EXCISE GAS TAX: CAA

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 10-cent excise tax on gasoline should be removed to help equalize gas prices with those in the United States, C. J. Clark, president of the Canadian Automobile Association, said Tuesday night.

Clark said the tax is inequitable and discriminates against one user of petroleum products to assist all other users.

"It is unfair to expect to subsidize industrial, commercial, agricultural and home heating users," he said.

He also said the CAA is seeking changes in federal legislation to permit Canadians duty-free shopping at international land border crossings.

"We feel the Canadian motorist should enjoy the same duty-free privileges as air or sea travellers," he said.

Dorothy Martin of White Rock, a registered nurse and farmer, became the first woman to be elected to the association's board of directors in its 66-year history.

B.C. Road Work Still At Low Ebb

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's road building industry is still at a low ebb, Derek Spooner, general manager of the British Columbia Road Builders Association, said Tuesday.

Spooner told the association's annual meeting the lull is due to lack of carryover of work from last year and the provincial government's decision against new highway projects for at least two years.

He said the work shortage was briefly alleviated last year when the government released some projects, after the road builders and other construction representatives made a special plea.

Spooner said the flow of projects from September to year-end temporarily reduced the industry's unemployment to 25 per cent from 35 per cent but there now are worries about delays in calling contracts.

The cancellation of two British Columbia railway contracts has put an additional 500 persons out of work, he said.

Spooner said the government should act quickly and call whatever projects it has planned, especially in the Dease Lake area, so contractors and crews there can use equipment from the cancelled railway jobs.

REVERSAL ON REZONING SHOCKING TO CAR DEALER

CHILLIWACK (CP)—Chilliwack township council has reversed itself and voted not to rezone eight acres of land on Airport Road where car dealer Doug Brett wanted to relocate his operation.

The controversial eight acres were only released from the agricultural land freeze three months ago, on order of the provincial cabinet.

The cabinet decision drew charges of political patronage in the legislature.

Brett said Tuesday he is shocked and surprised at council's decision Monday. He said he can't understand the council reversing itself because of the support it gave to his proposal in the past.

He noted that last September, council asked the regional district that the property be rezoned, and appealed to the cabinet that the acreage be taken out of the land freeze.

Township mayor Bill Simpson said the decision not to allow rezoning was difficult, and added that council would probably be willing to assist Brett in finding an alternative site.

U.S., Soviets to Resume Arms Curb Talks May 11

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Soviet Union will resume nuclear strategic arms limitation talks at the specialist-negotiating level starting May 11 in Geneva.

The resumption does not signify a breakthrough at the critical political level of decision making, informed sources said.

Talks at the political level, however, will continue in Washington, pointing toward a Geneva meeting a few days later in May between U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andre Gromyko.

State department spokesman Hodding Carter announced the May 11 meeting where the American delegation will be headed by Paul Warnke, chief U.S. SALT negotiator and also director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. This will be the Carter administration's first participation in the SALT experts' talks in Geneva.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, made a similar announcement, also noting that in addition to resumption of discussions at the specialist level, the two sides also are continuing SALT talks "on other levels."

In the Kremlin last month, the United States and the Soviet Union rejected each other's proposals for breaking the SALT deadlock. Vance and Warnke have been meeting in Washington with veteran Soviet ambassador Anatoliy Dobrynin, in search of a path through that stalemate. Warnke told a Senate subcommittee last week, "It is my impression that we will find a negotiating framework."

That political search will go on while the specialists confer on the technicalities of a new accord: A 1972 temporary U.S.-Soviet limitation on intercontinental nuclear weapons expires Oct. 3.

A Carter spokesman said "the important thing" about the talks "is that the process of discussion and of negotiation is going forward."

There was a Vance-Dobrynin meeting on Monday for about 30 minutes, Carter said, but he did not say it was on SALT. Other sources indicated that the Monday meeting, unattended by Warnke, was on other U.S.-Soviet matters apart from arms control.

Subjects listed by Carter for the next Geneva technical negotiations did not include the central topics in which Moscow and Washington are most divided. At the top of this unresolved list are American long-range Cruise missiles, the pilotless planes that the Soviet Union wants to restrict, and Soviet bombers known as Backfire, that the United States wants to restrict.

In Moscow last month the United States unsuccessfully proposed, as one alternative, putting both those disputes aside and confirming the limits on strategic weapons set by former U.S. president Gerald Ford and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev at Vladivostok in 1974.

The U.S. preference, however, was for leapfrogging the SALT negotiations by making "drastic cuts" in the missile and bomber levels projected in 1974. The Soviet Union balked at both plans.

6 Resign Over Natives' Rights

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Six civil servants have resigned because they say they cannot accept the territorial government's stand on aboriginal rights.

The six are members of a division of the N.W.T.'s local government department which was involved last month in controversy over a training program for northern settlement officials.

The group's position is that the natives should have the same rights as Canada's two founding peoples (the English and the French) in deciding how they want to be governed.

The officials say they understood it was their job to help the native people in this process of political self-determination.

But now they say their worst fears have been confirmed and that the N.W.T. government simply wants northern natives to be trained to fit into the pre-determined English-French Canadian political system.

The resignations followed receipt of a 14-page letter from N.W.T. Commissioner Stuart Hodgson which outlined the official territorial stance on the issue.

Hodgson noted that political self-determination was not acceptable if it was based solely on racial lines and didn't fall "within the scope of the Canadian constitution."

The commissioner stated that the N.W.T. government recognized that in the future there could well be "political units" set up to ensure one ethnic group would have numerical sway in a given geographical region.

But he said that all regional residents, whether part of a racial majority or minority, would have equal political rights.

Hodgson quoted Prime Minister Trudeau's apparent rejection of distinct Inuit or Indian native states to support his administration policy.

VANCOUVER POLICE PINCH A PINCHER

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — A romantic Roman with a penchant for pinching pretty posteriors has had a Roman holiday for a year or so on t B.C. Hydro bus.

While some of the victims may have suffered in silence or even turned the other cheek, so to speak, enough of them registered protests for B.C. Hydro to call in the police.

In Italy, tourists say, women can expect some playful pinching as a form of compliment, but here police take a sterner view. Det. Ken Stewart was assigned to get to the, er, bottom of the matter.

He boarded the bus at Clark and Hastings at the same time as a suspect. He saw the suspect reach and tweak the bottom of the woman behind him.

But before the detective could act, the victim responded. She shrieked and loosed a roundhouse swing that landed square on the suspect's Roman nose.

Then the detective made his own pinch.

Achille Faccone, 29, of the 1300-block Renfrew, appeared in provincial court Tuesday charged with indecent assault. He was released on a $500 bail bond asd remanded to May 3.

Business Blackmail, Quebec Charges

QUEBEC (CP) — Lise Payette, Quebec minister of consumer affairs and financial institutions, says the business world is engaging in a "shameful blackmail" of the provincial government.

Mrs. Payette said in an interview Tuesday that "for six months we have all made efforts to explain to the business world what we are trying to do for Quebec."

"I want myself to meet with the Conseil du Patronat du Quebec, and I must admit that it was a difficult evening for me because they are people I usually do not try to see."

The conseil, an influential employers group including both French and English speaking representatives, has criticized the Parti Quebecois government on matters ranging from reform of the labor code to language policy.

The government has the responsibility to continue a dialogue with all elements of society, Mrs. Payette said, but "they will have to understand that they must stop playing personal interests against the interest of Quebec."

"I have told pressure groups like these employers groups, that if we found a little more real Quebec blood in them, it eventually would come to the surface and we would be talking about the same things in the end."

Instead, she said, she feels that many businessmen "end up belonging to only one group — that of finance, which has no heart, no flag, no nationalism and no identity."

She said the door has been open since Nov. 15 for "those who have isolated themselves in this way, to ask them to reintegrate into the collectivity, to join with us to try to do it together."

Levesque Liar: Danson

HAMILTON (CP) — Defence Minister Barney Danson said Tuesday that Quebec Premier Rene Levesque is devious and guilty of deception.

He told about 400 students at Sir Winston Churchill secondary school that Levesque fought Quebec's last election on the issue of changing the government.

But, Danson said, as soon as his Parti Quebecois was elected, Levesque started talking of separation.

"He pulled a dirty trick and he didn't keep his word," Dason said.

Most Quebecers, he said, want to remain united with the rest of the country.

At Sir Winston Churchill school, and later speaking to 1,300 students at Bishop Ryan high school, he was asked, what role the armed forces would play to prevent Quebec from separating.

"As long as the democratic process is working, we don't move," he said. "If violence takes place, we (the armed forces) have a role."

He added that the question of Canada's unity would not be answered by the use of arms.

"If he (Levesque) wants to come and talk about dividing the country, he can stay home."

Danson also said that at the same time, the rights of the English-speaking minority in Quebec must also be preserved.

Soweto Protests Rent Hikes

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — Police fired warning shots today to disperse a crowd of about 2,000 black students marching through the black township of Soweto to protest rent increases.

Police officials said officers throughout Johannesburg were placed on alert following the incident.

The shooting took place near the Morris Isaacson High School in the segregated township, 15 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

Soweto was the center of the worst racial rioting in South African history last year. At least 140 blacks died in the Soweto disturbances in June and July, which later spread to other areas of the white-ruled nation.

Michiel Botha, Minister of Bantu (African) Administration appealed to students Tuesday to call off their march.

"I want to point out very seriously that such action is in no way a matter for pupils . . . the more so because their parents and other adult residents in Soweto have bodies which can discuss the (rent increase) matter with the authorities," Botha said.

Jaap Strydom, Regional Director of Soweto Education, warned Tuesday that "demonstrations can only lead to clashes with the law, some times with fatal consequences." He appealed to all persons "who have the interests of the children at heart," to prevent school children from being exposed to danger.

Jan Bossman, of the West Rand Administration Board, which governs Soweto, Tuesday warned that residents would be evicted if they failed to pay the new rent rates, scheduled to take effect on May 1.

He said rent increases in older sections of Soweto would average 80 per cent and rents in newer sections of the vast black burban township would be increased between 30 and 40 per cent.

HUSSEIN ADVISES CARTER

WASHINGTON (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan, winding up his Middle East talks with President Carter on a cautious note, says an ill-prepared Geneva peace conference would be a disaster.

"We in the Arab world haven't had a chance as yet to sit and evolve a common approach" on representation for the Palestinians, Hussein told a news conference Tuesday.

Wall Posters Fight Bhutto

KARACHI (AP) — Borrowing a political tool from China, Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's opponents are using wall posters against him despite his ban on political activity.

The posters carry anti-Bhutto slogans and political news that the censored newspapers cannot print.

"The wall posters have more credibility than Dawn, the premier newspaper of Pakistan," said one of Dawn's reporters.

Government employees, police and soldiers rip down the posters, but new placards soon appear. Many are plastered along the walls of mosques where people see them as they go to pray five times a day.

Bhutto declared martial law in Karachi, Lahore and Hyderabad last week, put them and several other cities under curfew and ordered censorship of the country's newspapers in an attempt to check the opposition Pakistan National Alliance's campaign for his resignation.

The wall posters are the work of a network of PNA workers and sympathizers who relay the news by telephone calls or handwritten notes delivered at clandestine meetings.

Ethiopia Backs Down

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Ethiopia has backed down on its demand that 320 American government employees and their dependents leave Ethiopia by today, but the U.S. Embassy said all except 10 persons were leaving anyway.

The government today said some 200 or the expelled Americans still left in the country could stay on until Saturday. The embassy said most were planning to leave today on a chartered World Airways flight for Athens.

When the leftist government issued its expulsion order Saturday, it said all of the persons connected with five U.S. agencies it was shutting down would have to be out of the country in four days.

Zaire May Bargain With Katangans

KINSHASA (AP) — The Zaire government's recapture of a strategic village has improved the prospects of Nigeria arranging negotiations between Zaire and Angola to end the rebellion in Shaba province, an African diplomat said.

"Some equilibrium has been established and now there may be something to talk about," said the diplomat, who declined to be identified.

Foreign Minister Joseph Garba of Nigeria, which is on good tems with both countries, arrived in Kinshasa on Tuesday for talks with President Mobutu Sese Seko.

Mobutu's army recaptured Mutshatsha village on Monday, and the president paid a visit to his forces there Tuesday. Military sources said the rebels fled and put up no resistance as the government force approached.

How to stretch 12-ounce can into main dish for family

'Different' Corned Beef Hash

Mary Moore

When we were young teenagers going to school in Toronto, my sister Peady, would take me out to lunch on Saturday. Our favorite was Corned Beef Hash with a poached egg on top at Child's restaurant.

Almost anywhere in Canada you can buy canned corned beef in the 12-ounce size. I decided to stretch those 12 ounces of meat to make a main supper dish for four adults or two adults and four small children. To give it a little lift with a difference I used stuffed hard-cooked eggs. Judge for yourselves.

CORNED BEEF CASSEROLE
(serves 4 to 6)

4 hard-cooked eggs (see below)
3 large potatoes (at least 1 lb.)
2 tbsp. margarine or bacon drippings.
1 medium onion chopped
1 12-oz. can corned beef (room temperature)
2-3 cup milk
2 tbsp. mayonnaise
¼ tsp. prepared mustard
1 tbsp. chopped parsley or chives

Hard cook eggs first by covering them with cold water. Bring to boil covered, remove from heat and let stand ½ hour. Flood with cold water to chill.

Next wash and pare potatoes and cut into eighths and cook in minimum of boiling salted water until tender. Drain.

In large frying pan melt margarine (or bacon drippings) and in it saute onion until limp, not brown. Add drained potatoes and gently saute chopping until they brown a little.

Flake and add corned beef, stirring and mixing for two or three minutes. Turn into greased 8½" diameter casserole. Pour over evenly the milk.

To prepare eggs cut into halves crosswise. Working carefully turn yolks into small bowl and mix with the mayonnaise, mustard, parsley or chives until smooth. Refill the eight whites, mounding a little.

With the back of a spoon make a 1" depression in the corned beef hash at eight even intervals. Lower stuffed eggs into them. Cover with foil and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until heated through — 20 to 30 minutes.

We served ours with spinach and fresh homemade bread.

SLOW COOKER GAINS FAVOR

The crock-pot or slow cooker has gained tremendous popularity over the past couple of years.

This relatively inexpensive appliance has several advantages:

Because there is little evaporation, combined with low cooking temperatures, the flavor and nutritive value is retained in the food.

The crock-pot saves energy. You can cook all day at small cost.

It can be left unattended for several hours, while you work or go shopping.

It does not heat your kitchen in the summertime.

It enables you to make inexpensive dishes such as stews and pot roasts with ease. The pot makes them deliciously tender and there is less shrinkage.

It is very helpful when entertaining, since it allows you to do the preparation early in the day. This reduces last-minute fussing to a minimum.

However, there is one caution! Because the crock-pot cooks at low temperatures, you should check to ensure that liquids reach at least 185 degrees F — preferably the boiling point (212 degrees F). This temperature range is necessary to destroy most bacteria. Since beef does not need to be cooked as thoroughly as chicken or pork, it lends itself well to slow cooking.

Many of your favourite beef recipes can be easily adapted for the slow cooker.

Odd Colors Mixed

NEW YORK (CP) — The strength of Dawn Aronson's first complete dress and separates collection, ranging in price from $25 to $60, is the unusual color combinations — grey and mauve, peacock blue and raspberry and brick and kelly green. Her fabric choices include raw silk, silk crepe de chine, linen and polished cotton.

Weight Problem ... What to Do?

By RUTH FREMES and ZAK SABRY

The obesity problem in Canada has reached epidemic proportions. Nutrition Canada found at least half the adult population has a weight problem and one in six adults to be grossly overweight. If you think you have a weight problem, you are not alone. But, what are you going to do about it?

The safe way to slim down is to eat less and exercise more. Don't expect fat to melt away overnight. So, be patient and persistent and accept small losses of one or one and a half pounds per week. Whatever you do, beware of any diets, slimming aids or devices that promise to take fat off you fast and painlessly.

We looked at a number of the so-called slimming aids that you get at your friendly neighborhood drug store and we think that all the ones we saw were pretty useless. There are three types of slimming aids on the market.

One is a chewy caramel type with a variety of flavors, such as vanilla, chocolate and butterscotch .It is basically a caramel supplemented with few vitamins (A, B1 and B2) and minerals (calicum, phosphorus and iron). We can't see how this kind of formula would help anyone lose weight or curb your appetite, as the manufacturer hopes it would.

The second reducing plan consisted of a mild laxative, or so the label said, which you take morning and night. In addition, there was a vitamin supplement that contained B6, B3 and C. Inside the box, there was an insert that outlined a diet plan for a week which is reported to provide about 1200 calories a day.

The diet is designed to appeal to most tastes by allowing bacon and potato chips. If you find yourself stuck with one of these plans, check with your doctor and dietitian. They will probably tell you that the insert is probably the only part of the package of some value. Certainly, don't use laxatives or unbalanced vitamin preparations to lose weight. You only hurt yourself.

The third type of reducing aid we found was in the form of chewing mints. You are advised to take them "before meals to help control your appetite, after meals instead of high-calorie desserts and between meals instead of fattening snacks and sweets." Each time you are told to chew one or two of these mints and then the label warns you not to exceed eight mints per day.

If we eat three meals a day and follow the instructions we figured that we will need between 10 and 15 of these mints.

However, the warning against taking too many is real. The active ingredient in these mints is an anesthetic which literally puts your taste buds to sleep for a while. So, if you eat any food, you are not likely to taste it. We find this approach not only gimmicky, but simply dangerous. At any rate it will not take pounds off.

Once you decide to "diet," do it sensibly and safely. Spend a week studying your own eating pattern. You may find the scoring system we outlined in our book, 'NutriScore' helpful.

If you are the kind of person who has to have a diet from a book or a magazine, you will find our analysis of various diets in 'NutriScore.' The ones we felt are safe to follow included 'The Prudent Diet,' 'The Ladies Home Journal's Diet' and 'The Weight Watchers' Diet.' The first two are available in paperbacks and the third one is available through your local Weight Watchers International. There are others that might be equally as good and safe. Again your doctor and dietitian should be able to give you the best advice.

Single Longer

NEW YORK (AP) — The proportion of unmarried American women between 25 and 29 has increased by more than one-third since 1960, the American Council of Life Insurance says. Between 1965 and 1975, the average amount of ordinary life insurance purchased by single women climbed to $8,680 from $3,960.

dear abby

Ignorance Not Always Bliss

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote to you saying that ignorance was bliss, and you replied, "No one said ignorance was bliss. The quotation to which you refer is: 'If ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise.' "

Abby, IF you attempt to correct someone's misquotation, be sure to get it right yourself. It is "WHERE ignorance is bliss . . . etc."

Yours, for more careful writing.

J.M.L.

DEAR J.M.L.: I was indeed blissful until you pointed out WHERE my own ignorance lies. I'll take 10 whacks with "THE CAREFUL WRITER" by Ted Bernstein, a most valuable book that has been on my desk for 10 years.

DEAR ABBY: I detest cards. Don't get the idea that I don't have the brains to play cards because I played an excellent game of contract bridge at one time. (My parents were tournament bridge players.)

A few years ago I made up my mind that cards were a stupid waste of time and energy, and I gave up the game. My husband says I am being foolish, that being able to play a good game of bridge is a social asset, and I should take it up again.

I was recently talked into being a "fourth," and I couldn't wait until the game was over. Am I stubborn, selfish and inconsiderate? My husband says I am.

DETESTS CARDS

DEAR DETESTS: Anyone who "detests" cards as much as you apparently do wouldn't add much sociability to a card party, so stick to your original decision, and pass.

DEAR ABBY: I want to say something in defence of women who go out in public with their hair in curlers. I do, and I'm sick of being put down because of it.

My hair is very delicate and easily damaged, so permanents and hair dryers are out for me. In order to look halfway decent, I have to set my hair every day and let it dry naturally without intense heat.

My husband works days, and it's more important for me to look nice for HIM when he comes home than for some joker I never saw before who happens to be in the corner store.

Please print this, Abby. There are a lot of us women in the same boat.—WAUKEGAN WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I understand your plight. If you feel there is no need to apologize for your appearance — don't apologize.

A Bright Suggestion For Preparing Food

hilda beastall

As sunlight increases air temperatures in spring it becomes more believable that we everyday homemakers should put it to better use. In pioneer days of early 1900's, solar energy was used by everyone under the name of "sun warmth." Now with the name of "solar energy" we are inclined to believe the idea is beyond our mental ability.

But think for a moment. Many of us still dry and bleach our laundry by solar energy. Right? And with undraped windows by day we welcome the sunshine to warm our walls, floors and furnishings. Right again? Indeed yes.

These are real savings on our hydro bills, and reflect as a hydro energy saving as more homemakers consider these ideas important.

Later in the season we shall use solar energy to save on the use of clothing. In warm weather less clothing will be needed. Winter weight clothes will be carefully and thoroughly washed, dried, and stored for use again in fall days of less sunpower.

Bringing them out again in early fall, fresh and clean needing only perhaps a light pressing to smooth a few wrinkles, the garments will seem almost as new. This can be in contrast to having those same garments around on hooks, in cupboards, or thrown in a heap as sometimes happens. That is how much waste of clothing occurs.

Gardening makes use of solar energy in a great way. An outdoor glass greenhouse requires no artificial heating on sunny days from April on. Conserving the warmth of the sunwarmed benches, and other inside woodwork, and the warmth of pots and the plants too, by closing vents and doors by four p.m. saves on whatever fuel may be needed for a few hours on cool nights.

In summer the closing hour will be later and later until a nine p.m. closing time is reached, with no additional night heating required.

Solar energy is cheap fuel for raising healthful food plants outdoors all year around in this climate; hardy green vegetables not only survive our normal winters but produce new growth which is both tender and nutritious as used daily in a fresh condition.

For the rest of the year, let us use sunshine grown vegetables and sunripened berries picked minutes before enjoying their unequalled flavors.

In small ways it is possible to prepare food by using solar energy, and at least cut down on hydro energy by using the sun's warmth as one phase in preparation.

Not so long ago all culinary herbs were dried by sun warmth. We did not expose them to bright sunshine but put the bunches of different kinds into separate large brown paper bags with a tie around the open end and the stems.

The bags were then suspended from hooks or nails in an open shed where sun reached for part of the day but rain could not damped the bags.

A similar method of sun drying was used to dry sliced fresh apples, pears and apricots. Mature peas and beans were "finished" by sun drying for a day or so. Nuts in shells are still sun dried after gathering from home grown trees.

Thinly sliced meat was probably the first food to be sundried for keeping for winter use. Native peoples of every land have used the same method for preserving berries, roots and leaves.

Yogurt making likely originated in the sunny climate around the Mediterranean Sea. We read of the gourd containers being set in the sun for warming the contents to the appropriate temperature to make a "set."

The cooling is not mentioned but the cool depths of wells were much used for food chilling by Canada's pioneers and probably every country had the same idea.

As sun warmth increases by the end of April I shall be trying out solar energy for making yogurt. One jar of the new yogurt mixture willl be put into a covered metal saucepan and set in full sunshine, probably in the enclosed porch. It will be timed to see how many hours are needed as against the jars in another covered saucepan near the radiated warmth of the hot water tank.

Wrapping in an old woollen garment may hold a more equal warmth.

Small quantities of water for frequent hand washing while preparing meals, or doing housework, quickly lose the tap chill if set on the drainboard in sunshine. But a north facing kitchen is lacking this advantage.

This brings us to planning of window space in future homes to admit more sunlight.

Call me Scrooge if you like while I soak up sunshine indoors and outdoors finding ways in everyday homemaking to use solar energy.

Microwave owners who plan to dry a bridal bouquet in their ovens will be disappointed with the results if the bouquet is well-used before it is taken apart and dried. One way to freshen mature blossoms is to place stems in water then refrigerate overnight. If, after oven drying, a few petals fall, a white glue will hold them in place. But, better practise with other flowers before you microwave oven-dry such a treasured bouquet. Crafts books (at the library) will tell you how to dry them, but no one set of directions suits all flowers or all ovens.

Stick one of those nylon mesh produce bags into the trunk of your car. As warmer weather becomes buggier, the mesh is great for cleaning dried bugs off windshields. And the throwaway bag becomes a scratchless cleaner for caked-on dirt when you wash the car.

Vegetarian Diets: Some Are Sound but Others Risky

A New England physician wrote to the Journal of the American Medical Association a few years ago to protest a consulting editor's statement that it was unwise and unsafe to raise children on a vegetarian diet.

He said, "My three children are now the third generation of my family to have never tasted meat, and it certainly has not been detrimental to our health. My 13-year-old high school boy at six feet, three inches and size 14 shoes can hardly be accused of retarded physical growth, and all three children are at the top of their classes at school and are socially well adjusted."

Although the doctor's anecdotal case can hardly prove the point, it does show that growing up a vegetarian can be compatible with good health and full mental and physical development. In fact, various studies have suggested that vegetarians who adhere to a balanced, varied diet may indeed be healthier than persons who regularly eat meat, fish and poultry.

On the other hand, certain limited "cult" vegetarian diets, so just knowing a person is a vegetarian really tells you very little about his diet. The three main types of vegetarian diets can all be nutritionally sound if foods are selected wisely. They are:

Strict vegetarian — These diets contain no foods of animal origin. All protein is derived from plant sources.

Lactovegetarian—Animal protein in the form of milk, cheese and other dairy products is included, but no eggs, meat, poultry or fish.

Ovolactovegetarian—Animal protein in the form of dairy products and eggs is included, but no meat, poultry or fish.

In addition, many people are partial vegetarians, eating meat, poultry or fish on occasion. An adult can easily obtain enough protein on any of these traditional vegetarian diets, but a strict vegetarian diet is generally not recommended for young children since some essential vitamins and minerals are in short supply and it is difficult for small children to eat enough plant foods to meet their protein needs for proper growth.

An infant needs four times more and a preschool child needs two times more protein per pound of body weight than an adult.

However, children as well as adults have little difficulty obtaining needed protein and essential vitamins and minerals from vegetarian diets that include dairy products and or eggs.

To understand the nutritive value—and potential pitfalls—of vegetarian diets, it is important to know something about human protein needs and the protein content of various kinds of foods.

About 20 amino acids—the chemical building blocks of protein—are needed to make the proteins that form our muscles, enzymes, organs and other tissues. The human body can make all but eight of these amino acids out of any kind of protein-containing foods—plant as well as animal sources. But the eight—called "essential" amino acids—must be supplied ready-made in the diet, and all must be present in the same meal for the body to use dietary protein to build body proteins.

Animal proteins are called "high quality" because they contain the eight essential amino acids in nearly optimal amounts. However, plant proteins are considered lower quality because they are missing or deficient in one or another of the essential eight. Fortunately, they are not all deficient in the same ones.

But to use plant proteins efficiently, complementary plant proteins—where one supplies the amino acid that is deficient in the other, and vice versa—should be consumed together. Otherwise, the plant protein will be "wasted"—the body will excrete the nitrogen as urea and the carbon will be stored in the fat depots. But no new protein will be constructed.

Cereal proteins, for example, are low in the essential amino acid lysine. Legumes (peas and beans —the dried, not the green, ones — and peanuts) have plenty of lysine but are low in another essential amino acid, methionine, which is high in cereal proteins. If cereal protein — for example, wheat bread — is eaten with a legume — for example, peanut butter — you have the makings of complementarity, the equivalent of animal protein in a peanut butter sandwich.

Other combinations that provide high quality protein are beans (dried) with corn, beans with rice, and soybeans with sesame seeds. Complementary proteins don't have to be mixed into the same dish, but they should be consumed in the same meal.

CHILDREN REQUIRE SPECIAL CARE

Even on a strict vegetarian diet, adults rarely have trouble consuming the approximately 40 grams (1.4 ounces) of pure protein needed to maintain good health. Studies have shown that both vegetarians and people on traditional American diets generally consume at least twice the needed amount of protein each day.

To meet protein requirements, the National Academy of Sciences recommends that vegetarians should consume two servings each day of high-protein meat alternatives, such as legumes, high-protein nuts, peanut butter, dairy products, eggs or meat analogs.

A wide variety of analogs, or "pretend" meats, made from vegetable protein are commercially available. Check the ingredients list (some analogs contain milk or eggs) — the contents are listed in descending order of predominance. However, analogs are not yet covered by proposed Federal regulations that would require them to be called "imitation" if they are nutritionally inferior to the foods they mimic, so you cannot be sure that a "chicken" analog has the same food value as chicken.

In addition to supplying protein, legumes, nuts and other seeds contribute iron and B-vitamins; grains are good sources of thiamine, iron and trace minerals, and dark green leafy vegetables supply calcium, riboflavin and a precursor of vitamin A (and should be consumed in liberal quantities if dairy products or fortified soy milk are not eaten).

Vegetarian diets that contain no animal products can result in a deficiency of vitamin B-12, and nutritionists recommend that strict vegetarians of all ages drink fortified soy milk or take a B-12 supplement to prevent anemia and neurological damage. Without mother's, cow's or fortified soy milk, it is hard for a growing child on a strict vegetarian diet to get enough calcium, vitamin D (in winter) riboflavin and iron. Milk also is important for pregnant and nursing women.

Haphazard vegetarians who eat no animal products and pay no attention to complementarity, those who eat only a few types of plant products, and adherents to some cult diets — such as the "higher" forms of the Zen macrobiotic diet, which consist almost entirely of cereals — risk severe nutritional deficiences. Infants on a Zen diet have suffered starvation, growth retardation and mental deficits.

indoor gardens

by LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel: I have read every one of your columns in the paper and have kept most of them in a scrapbook. I would like very much for you to tell how to take care of shrimp plants. Thank you.—Mrs. J. R.

Dear Mrs. J. R.: Shrimp plants, or Beloperone guttata, are evergreen plants native to Mexico and can be grown successfully anywhere as an indoor-outdoor plant, or as an annual.

The plant will take sun, but prefers partial shade if you wish the large, colorful "bracts" (long, spikelike flowers) to flourish and not fade Usually these bracts are coppery in color and appear in the springtime, when the plant should be fed with an acid-base food. When the bracts die, cut them off: remember they're only sapping nutrients from the plant and cutting them off will encourage continued business. The shrimp plant, properly cared for, can be beautiful in entryways, or outside on porches. But please, don't try to serve a shrimp plant up as an hors d'ouerve.

English Cooking

LONDON — London needs an official gastronomical centre to sell real English cooking to tourists, says the latest issue of the Good Food Guide, the bible of British gourmets.

Author of the guide, Christopher Driver, says the centre, placed under the authority of the Ministry of Tourism, would remedy the often unhappy gastronomical experiences of tourists, which are often too stamped with incompetence and avarice.

The 1977 guide has downrated four of London's temples of real English cooking — Simpson's-in-the-Strand, the restaurant of the Savoy Hotel, lose their mention "recommended" for "passable."

LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I've been told that I have a hydrocele of one testicle. I'm worried about the fact that this may affect me after I'm married and that this will keep me from having children. I'm 20—Mr. A.M.

Dear Mr. M.:

In the rest of your letter you tell me that your doctor assured you that this collection of fluid around the testicle would not endanger the testicle itself.

The fluid secretion is contained in a thin-walled sac that surrounds the testicle. This fluid does not put any pressure on the testicle. When taken care of early, it can do no damage to it.

In simple cases, the fluid is withdrawn painlessly through a syringe. In those cases that tend to recur, a small incision is made, the fluid is liberated and the sac is surgically left open.

It may be of interest to you to know that some children are born with a hydrocele. These, too, are not dangerous and almost always disappear completely.

When I was a child, boric acid was used extensively for the eyes. Boric acid was a household remedy and kept in our medicine cabinet. I notice that it has disappeared from the household scene. Why?—Mrs. F.J., Ill.

Dear Mrs. J.:

For years, boric acid was used as a mild antiseptic, as an eyewash, as a disinfectant, and as a gargle.

Recently, a number of fatailities among infants and children were traced to the boric acid that was absorbed from the diapers that were rinsed in it.

Since the toxic effect of boric acid became known it has been strictly forbidden in hospitals for newborn infants and children.

There are so many excellent anticeptics available that there is no longer any need for using boric acid as a common household antiseptic.

Things That Can Be Done With Economical Celery

tiny bennett

Celery is one of the best vegetable buys on the produce shelves these days, for a great many reasons.

This is a betwixt and between time for produce shopping. Prices are high and won't come down until the fresh market items are available, and although it is seldom the fault of the produce manager some of the vegetables on display are not really what I would call prime.

Celery, however, is still reasonable in price and in quality. Just last week, for example I bought a very large head of celery that was clean and lacking in bruises or bad parts for 56 cents — which made up a number of individual servings at good budget shopping.

Give the whole head a thorough wash, pare off any grubby root ends, and leaving the root intact wrap in foil for fridge storage which will retain crispness for up to eight days. If you store it unwrapped it will go as limp as a wet noodle and be of less cooking value.

For all dishes that include chopped vegetables, such as Chinese vegetable or meat dishes, stews, soups and even chili, chop the cleaned stems into small dice. To add extra flavor to a fried rice or rice pilaf dice very small indeed and sautee for a few minutes before adding. You can give it the same treatment for omelettes or burger mixes, and I always add at least two tablespoons of sauteed celery to a stuffing for any bird.

Celery being so deliciously fresh tasting and crunchy, is served raw in innumerable ways. A popular system is to cut the inner blanched stalks into short lengths and then make lengthwise cuts and drop into ice water so that it curls to make a decorative dish for the buffet or dinner table. When done in this manner the celery is often drained and put in a shallow bowl with pitted olives to be set out as "munchies" to go with cocktails of pre-dinner chilled white wine, or as tidbits for guests to crunch before the courses begin to arrive.

When I was a child in England and celery glass was in vogue and I understand that this, too, was popular in North America. The celery was simply prepared in slim long sticks and thrust into what looked like a tall, fancy cut glass flower vase with ice water in which the celery sticks stood to keep them crisp.

The deep groove in the outer sticks of celery are perfect for making all kinds of delightful cocktail snacks, or even a salad course to go with a meal.

Nice clean stalks with a good groove are simply cut into two-inch lengths and then filled with a flavorful dip or special concoction, in all kinds of combinations. Pates and cream cheeses are good bases and one that I came up with was widely acclaimed. I laid in the bottom of the groove a length of anchovy, cemented this in place with mild fish paste (cream cheese is just as good) and then topped it off with a a thin slice of bottled green olives.

The use of celery as cooked vegetable is less frequent, however, which is rather strange since it is a really excellent and very cheap item that can be cooked in a dozen ways, including just plain boiled.

I put one inch of water, or better still stock into a saucepan, bring it to the boil, add ½ teaspoon of salt and then enough celery to serve each person. I dice or thinly slice the vegetable before popping into the pot, cover and cook for 15 minutes.

The water or stock is drained back into the stockpot, I add one tablespoon butter and a light sprinkle of x-celery* seeds and shake the pot from time to time to blend over low heat, while busy with the rest of the dinner or meal serving preparations.

A more fancy way of cooking celery is by braising, a dish that the French really understand and so superbly.

Simply cut the celery into three to four-inch long sticks trying to keep them all of a size so that they cook evenly. Add a half cup of chicken stock, half teaspoon salt, and two tablespoons butter for about 1½ pounds of celery, put in the celery, cover tightly and simmer for 30 minutes giving the pot a good shake from time to time.

I usually serve this as is, using the liquid as a delicate sauce, however if you wish you can remove the celery to a warming dish, reduce and thicken the liquid and serve.

Fried celery is unusual and a style I can recommend to jazz up an otherwise rather bland dinner such as poached fish. Pour equal quantities of cooking oil and butter into a skillet, dip boiled celery into beaten egg and then coat in a mixture of fine bread crumbs and grated parmesan cheese and then brown in the hot fat, drain and serve.

Let me finish by suggesting that if you enjoy raw celery, you will relish it cooked.

COLLEGE OFFERS DRINKING COURSE

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — A course in drinking skills, believed to be the first of its kind in Ontario, is being offered to students at Niagara College.

Bruce Tallon of the students service branch said the program, which consists of six sessions and is open to students 18 and over, is designed to teach students their drinking limits and how to stay within them.

"Many times pressure is exerted by peers and friends to have just one more drink," Tallon said.

"I think there is an obligation on people such as myself to make students aware of how to drink alcohol to remain within the socially accepted limits."

Consultant William Riddell of the Hamilton branch of the Addiction Research Foundation conducts the course.

The 10 students enrolled in the free course sit in comfortable chairs in a carpeted lounge, chatting while drinking beer or whiskey, Tallon said. They are taught to recognize their blood alcohol levels by associating body sensations with readings from a breath analysis machine.

The students, who said they had no drinking problems and enrolled in the course out of curiosity, drank mostly draught beer.

Douglas Dyer, 21, a surveyor-technician student, said:

"I enjoy the odd weekend bash but I was curious to know what my drinking capacity was. I have a job lined up in Calgary and I will be drinking with a few friends. I want to be able to pace myself and keep out of trouble."

Dyer said he learned that drinking ginger ale between drinks helps but complained that bars charge a dollar for a small glass.

First Profit In 20 Years For CN Rail

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite a troubled economy, Canadian National Railways earned an $11.8-million profit in 1976, its first surplus in 20 years, says the corporation's annual report.

But the report, tabled in the Commons Tuesday, said the publicly-owned corporation hopes to improve its financial performance by obtaining government compensation to cover unprofitable services carried out in the public interest.

CN, which has hotels, trucking, marine and telecommunications divisions as well as rail interests, had a $16.4-million loss in 1975.

The report, signed by CN chairman Pierre Taschereau and president R.A. Bandeen, said the main reason for last year's profit is a whopping increase in CN Rail's operating surplus.

Freight rate increases and a modest increase in traffic helped boost CN rail's 1976 operating surplus to $157.1 million from $23.2 million in 1975, the report said.

The report said the corporation has also been keeping a tight rein on spending, reducing the number of employees to 80,073 in 1976 from 84,436 the previous year and increasing worker output.

Replying to critics who have said that the government-owned corporation should be more concerned with social needs than profit, the report said a businesslike approach is not incompatible with CN's public service responsibilities.

It would be socially irresponsible for CN to provide services without thinking about whether they could pay their way. It should not be up to CN management to decide whether to take on money-losing services — that should be left to Parliament to decide.

Transport Minister Otta Lang has asked CN management to prepare for a possible future sale of shares to the public. The Crown corporation should decide which of its "profit centres," such as rail, trucks and hotels, make enough money to be attractive to investors.

Last year, CN Rail was the biggest money-maker of the corporation's divisions.

However, Grand Trunk Corp., a U.S. subsidiary operating some American rail lines, also had a surplus of $13.9 million. Other profit-making divisions included: CN Telecommunications, $20.1 million; CN Trucking, $1.6 million; CNAC Consultants Ltd., $800,000; and real estate operations, $6.4 million.

CN Express lost $35 million, CN Hotels dropped $100,000 and CN Marine broke even with the help of government subsidies.

CN Rail passenger services lost $50.6 million, an improvement over losses of 70.9 million in 1975. CN passenger train operations are to be gradually turned over to the new Via Rail Canada Inc., set up by the government to handle all inter-city passenger train services.

CN Rail freight business rose four per cent in 1976, bringing in an extra $60 million in revenue. Rate increases boosted freight revenue by an additional $160 million.

Government subsidies for operating uneconomic branch lines rose to $60.7 million in 1976 from $36.8 million.

The corporation also received $156.4 million in government payments for operating unprofitable passenger train services and $85.9 million in subsidies for ferry services on the East Coast.

$17.4M Approved

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greater Vancouver Regional District Tuesday approved the expenditure of $17.4 million for the expansion of services and the provision of a parking structure at Lions Gate Hospital in North Vancouver.

Baby Seal Wipeout?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greenpeace Foundation says that federal statistics on the eastern Canadian seal hunt this year prove the environmentalists' claim that the hunt must be stopped to avoid extinction of the harp seal.

Patrick Moore, Greenpeace vice-president, said: "it means that the baby seals born this year have been virtually wiped out by the commercial hunt."

The figures, announced by fisheries officials following the end of the annual hunt off Newfoundland on Sunday, show that Canadian ships got 46,700 seals compared with their quota of 62,000.

Paul Watson, who led the expedition, said the ice was much softer than usual, which made it easier for ships to reach the seals.

Sculptures Stolen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five pieces of wood sculpture valued at about $15,000 have been stolen from a hangar at Jericho Beach, but one of the pieces was later discovered nearby in a pile of driftwood.

'GOOD SAMARITANS' BALK AT BILL

TORONTO (CP) — The $33,000 cost of sending two snow-melting machines to help Buffalo, N.Y., dig itself out of a snowstorm has turned the hearts of some Toronto politicians to ice.

It was great playing the role of good samaritan in February but now that the bill is in, members of the region's executive committee are questioning whether the recipient of their largesse might share the tab.

Dennis Flynn, committee member and mayor of the borough of Etobicoke, said the $32,000 cost is "a total disgrace."

"I said we should just pick up the cost to the border," he said during Tuesday's committee meeting.

Roads commissioner Sam Cass said it cost $14,000 to transport the machinery to the border and another $18,000 to pay salaries of men during the four days they spent clearing Buffalo streets.

He said Buffalo paid fuel costs for the machines and provided housing and meals for the work crews.

Flynn said he was told the cost would be about $10,000.

John Bosley, committee member and a Toronto city councillor, complained that he was under the impression Buffalo was going to pick up the operating costs for the snow melters.

Metro Chairman Paul Godfrey recalled that he telephoned each of the borough mayors and asked them about sending the machines and each thought it was a good idea.

He said it was Ned Reagan, Erie County commissioner at Buffalo, who mentioned in an informal telephone conversation the possibility of sending the snow melters.

"We didn't talk about specific costs," Godfrey said.

On breaking the news of the large bill, Cass said Buffalo did not ask for help.

"You wished it on them," he told the committee, adding that Buffalo should not be criticized because "they were nice to our people."

"If we don't pay the bill," Godfrey added, "we're going to look like cry babies."

ROCK CORNISH CHICKENS . . . SMALL, SAVORY

Chicken has found its way into the proverbs of people in many a land.

The Spanish say: "A chicken is not hatched for itself alone." The French comment: "He that eats chicken, gets chicken." In China there's a saying: "One needn't devour a large whole chicken to know the flavor of a bird." A Rock Cornish chicken does just that . . . small and savory, every bite is flavorful and juicy.

Its original breeding background was a Cornish male to a White Rock female. The cross when fed on a high protein ration under closely confined conditions produced a compact plump bird with a large bulging breast and a coarse textured flesh.

In recent years, certain broiler chicken crosses have been used to produce this specialty product. The term "Rock Cornish Game Hen" is considered a misnomer because of the inclusion of male birds; hence, it's presently identified by the common name "chicken" and called "Rock Cornish Chicken."

The young immature chicken (usually 5 to 7 weeks of age) weighs not more than two pounds ready-to-cook. In comparison, broilers and fryers are 7 to 8 weeks old, while roasters are 12 weeks old. When buying, usually allow one bird per serving. It is usually used for special occasions in the home and in particular by hotels and restaurants for banquets.

To prepare Rock Cornish chickens for roasting, rinse well in cold water and dry thoroughly. Fill the body cavity with stuffing (if desired), allowing ½ to ¾ cup stuffing per bird. Close the opening with metal skewers.

Fold the skin over the neck opening and fasten to the back. Fold the wing tips over the back and tie the drumsticks together. Place the prepared chicken, breast up in a shallow roasting pan and brush with melted butter. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roast 45 minutes and 425 degrees F.

Food advisory Division, Agriculture Canada has developed two recipes using Rock Cornish chickens. Try the "Rock Cornish Chickens with Wild Rice Stuffing" or for those of you with a sweeter tooth, "Sweet and Sour Chickens."

STUFFED CHICKENS

4 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
Giblets
1 cup wild rice
1 cup sliced mushrooms
¼ cup chopped green onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup fat
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup diced water chestnuts
6 Rock Cornish chickens
Salt and pepper
½ cup butter or margarine, melted
½ cup apple juice or dry white wine
2 tablespoons tarragon

Bring water and salt to boil. Add giblets and simmer 15 minutes. Remove giblets from water and chop. Add rice to water and simmer 40 minutes. Drain. Saute vegetables in fat until onion is transparent (about 3 minutes).

Combine giblets, rice, vegetables, salt and water chestnuts. Stuff and truss chickens. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over chickens. Bake 45 minutes at 425 degrees F, basting several times with sauce. Six servings.

CORNISH CHICKENS

6 Rock Cornish chickens
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
Salt and pepper
1 19-ounce can crushed pineapple, drained
1 cup maple syrup
½ cup lemon juice
¼ cup prepared mustard
1 tablespoon soy sauce

Brush chickens with butter. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake 15 minutes at 425 degrees F. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over chickens. Bake 30 minutes more, basting several times with sauce. Six servings.

Ulster Stocks Up for Protestant Strike

BELFAST (AP) — The people of Northern Ireland are stockpiling food and fuel in preparation for an economic campaign threatened for next Monday by Protestant militants.

Informed Protestant sources said the Ulster Unionist Action Council has drawn up plans for a general strike, hoping to repeat the success of a 15-day Protestant strike in May 1974, which wrecked the first coalition government of Protestants and Roman Catholics in the history of Northern Ireland.

Belfast shops reported increased sales of canned food and other essentials following the council's announcement that it will begin "powerful and effective" action next week unless the British government orders a major crackdown on the Catholic guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army and restores the Protestant-dominated parliament suspended by London in March, 1972.

"I'm advising everyone to stock up on emergency fuels and all necessary commodities, such as baby foods, before next week," said former legislator Ernest Baird, co-leader of the council with Rev. Ian Paisley.

The government's cabinet secretary for Northern Ireland, Ray Mason, told political leaders Tuesday he will make no policy changes because of the threat. He said the government will take firm action to break any strike.

That indicated the government is ready to get tougher than it did in 1974, when the army and the police were not ordered to take over fuel supplies and power stations until the final days of the strike.

Moderate Protestant politicians expressed opposition to another general strike. This split might lessen the impact of the threatened action.

Protestant resentment against the British government has been building up for months. The militants say that the army is not being tough enough with the IRA, which is fighting a guerrilla war to end British rule and Protestant domination of Northern Ireland and unite it with the Catholic Irish republic.

Invisible Indians Ignored

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — Mayor Udo Romstedt wants to know why the news media never talk about the invisible Indian—only about the drunken Indian.

"The invisible Indian is the one who works here or who comes to town, does his shopping, goes about his business and you never notice him," Romstedt said. "There are about 50 of him for every one you see drunk."

The mayor said he is fed up with "outsiders coming in here to show us our social problems but nobody coming with a solution."

"Money alone won't do it. Yet, they come in here, make big speeches, drop $100,000 and say: 'Here, solve your problem.'"

He said the situation is caused by a handful of problem drinkers, all of them visible on the streets.

Police Chief C. W. Engstrom said that of 5,417 cases of drunkenness last year, 138 persons were arrested 10 times or more and accounted for 2,410 arrests.

Joseph Morrison, supervisor of a street patrol which watches the streets to head off trouble, said most of the drinking is done at nearby Lake of the Woods but most of the drunks then hang round the streets.

Unfortunately, he said, the street they hang around most is the Trans-Canada Highway and the town's social problem is the view the traveller takes with him.

Governments have spent money trying to help solve the problem. The province has built a detoxification centre and a halfway house, while the federal government has financed ventures such as logging companies and a fur-coat factory.

John Kelly, president of Grand Council Treaty No. 3 which encompasses 5,000 to 7,000 natives in the region, said progress is being made.

"There are all sorts of agencies. We're all trying to eradicate the problem."

He cited the Sabaskong band at Nestor Falls as an example of what may be accomplished.

"It's one of the few bands in Canada to take over the education of its children. They've developed their own curriculum. The band has its own alcohol and drug abuse program. It's just some of the things that are happening on the reserves."

Sold Explosives, CIA Agents Fired

By BOB WOODWARD
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — CIA Director Adm. Stansfield Turner Tuesday fired two middle level agency employees after learning that they had provided unauthorized assistance to former CIA officers allegedly involved in selling explosive devices and other material overseas.

In an interview, Turner confirmed that he had asked for and received resignations from the two employees, adding that he had agonized over the matter and found it "the most difficult decision I have made in 31 years" of military service.

The firings and Turner's willingness to comment publicly runs counter to a long CIA tradition of handling such matters quietly. Turner, however, declined to name the employees who were fired.

Another CIA official said that Turner's action "sends a clear message to everyone that it is a new era and the slightest appearance of wrongdoing will not be tolerated."

Turner said the two employees had done nothing illegal, adding, "They displayed a lack of professionalism and judgment which in my view endangers our agency . . . I lost confidence in the individuals concerned and do not feel that strict control of this agency can be maintained had they been permitted to remain."

A notice of the action was put up on bulletin boards at CIA headquarters Tuesday afternoon and sent to every post abroad.

Turner said he personally began an internal investigation after a published report two weeks ago about the alleged activities of Edwin P. Wilson, a former CIA operative who now heads a small Washington consulting firm.

Allegations against Wilson, according to informed sources, include charges that he:

—Contracted with the Libyan government to supply 500,000 sophisticated detonation timing devices that can be set to go off at any time up to one year.

—Smuggled 500 of the devices in physician's prescription bottles along with explosives hidden in 55-gallon drums on passenger flights to Europe and Libya last summer.

Speaking through his attorney, William O. Bittman, Wilson said Tuesday he "categorically denies" all the charges.

The two dismissed employees, according to sources, assisted Wilson by introducing him to firms that supply the CIA with sensitive equipment. In those introductions, the impression was left that Wilson was acting on behalf of the CIA.

Turner, according to an aide, spent dozens of hours on the investigation, made a secret presentation to the Senate Intelligence Committee last Friday, worked much of last weekend and missed a cabinet meeting this week because of the probe.

One of the CIA employees fired Tuesday unwittingly assisted Wilson in obtaining detonation devices that were provided the Libyan government as the first phase of a $10 million contract for explosives and related equipment, according to sources.

The second CIA employee was an undercover operative who assisted Wilson with contacts in the sale of other material to a foreign government, the sources said.

U.S. Envoy To France Nominated

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Carter administration has selected career diplomat Arthur A. Hartman to be ambassador to France after at least three prominent outsiders turned down the job, informed sources said Monday.

The administration has also decided to renominate Malcolm Toon as ambassador to the Soviet Union. Toon, a career diplomat with a reputation as a hard-liner, is currently in Moscow, but the White House earlier had withdrawn his nomination to that job, which was sent to the Senate late in the Ford administration.

WARNING ISSUED FOR AEROSOL CANS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration announced Tuesday it will require a warning label on aerosol containers using fluorocarbon propellants as a first step toward eventual elimination of virtually all such products.

In Ottawa, it was announced that Canada will not immediately require a warning.

The actions came in response to a National Academy of Sciences report last year that the propellants, formally known as chlorofluorocarbons, rise into the stratosphere and deplete the earth's ozone layer, a thin protective gaseous belt that filters harmful ultra-violet radiation from the sun.

An FDA official said depletion of the earth's ozone layer "could increase the incidence of skin cancer worldwide, cause changes in the climate and have other undesirable effects."

The FDA said that all food, drug and cosmetic containers using flourocarbon propellants and shipped in interstate commerce must carry the following warning after Oct. 31:

"Warning: contains a chlorofluorocarbon that may harm the public health and environment by reducing ozone in the upper atmosphere."

SOPHISTICATED JET SOLD TO IRANIANS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Jimmy Carter has agreed to sell Iran five of the most sophisticated airplanes in the American arsenal at a cost of more than half a billion dollars, administration sources said Tuesday.

Although Carter was critical of the Ford administration for selling massive amounts of arms to Iran, he approved the sale to bolster Iranian radar capability near the Soviet Union, sources said.

The plane involved is the so-called AWACS, which stands for Airborne Warning and Control System. It is a Boeing 707 equipped with complex radar and guidance systems.

At a cost of about $112 million each, the AWACS is one of the most expensive planes used by the United States.

The U.S. has ordered 34 AWACS from Boeing and began taking delivery last month. In addition, it is trying to sell 27 of the planes to NATO allies.

WASHINGTON (WP) House members from 16 states have put together a new coalition to combat the Pentagon, and their first demand is for a moratorium on closing any more bases in the Northeast and Midwest.

Rep. Michael Harrington an old Pentagon foe who is chairman of the newly formed coalition, charged in an interview Tuesday that former president Richard Nixon punished the Northeast and Midwest in military spending as he tried to build a political base in the South and West.

With the blessing of House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Harrington and his allies are demanding that President Jimmy Carter aid the ailing economies of the Northeast and Midwest in the 1970s the way President Franklin Roosevelt helped the South in the 1930s and 1940s.

The economic tide already has turned against the Northeast and Midwest, Harrington said, with the near bankruptcy of New York City only one example of why the federal government must redirect its flow of dollars.

Because he and the other 203 House Democrats and Republicans in the coalition consider their regions' ecnomic survival at stake, Harrington said, they have organized special task forces to play political hardball with the executive branch.

Bribery Traced

WASHINGTON (WP) — At least 13 U.S. congressmen actively assisted South Korean extensive lobbying and business interests, according to "concrete, tangible" evidence developed in the justice department investigation of Korean influence-buying in Washington, informed sources say.

The documentation is the first evidence of a widespread pattern of congressional assistance to Park. It complements previously assembled evidence that Park spent between $500,000 and $1 million a year to influence congressional action on legislation affecting South Korea.

JOB PACKAGE BACKED

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — House and Senate conferees broke a seven-week stalemate Tuesday and agreed on a $4 billion local public works bill that is a key part of President Jimmy Carter's economic stimulus package.

After eight meetings, the conferees, who must compromise on different versions of the House and the Senate, agreed to set aside for now a fight over unrelated water pollution policy to get the public works program into action during this construction season. It is expected to create about 160,000 jobs.

Carter sent word that he was "highly pleased" that one piece of the economic stimulus package he sent Congress three months ago is on the verge of final passage. The final product must be approved by both houses before going to Carter for his signature.

The public works program was a congressional initiative, first enacted into law over former President Gerald Ford's veto last year at a $2 billion level. Congressional leaders persuaded Carter to ask Congress to add $4 billion more this year.

The House quickly approved the public works increase in February. But when the Senate took it up on March 10 it added to the $4 billion for varius types of local public works projects $9 billion for the separate water pollution abatement program to build sewage treatment plants.

But Democratic and Republican members of the Senate Budget Committee berated the Carter administration for suddenly abandoning the $50-a-person tax rebate portion of Carter's stimulus package.

Several Democrats, incldding chairman Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, and Joseph R. Biden of Delaware, indicated they might vote for a permanent tax cut for middle-income taxpayers Republicans will offer Wednesday as a substitute for the defunct rebate.

GARDENING

These Plants Need Good Start

In the warmth of the past weekend, a flat filled with soil from the old compost heap was set on a bench in the sun to warm through. A sprinkling of water added enough moisture to start weed seeds germinating. Most will be up and out of the way before the soil is needed.

Before the end of this week, the squash seeds will be sown in the flat to grow into young plants ready for transplanting to the garden by the last week of May.

Squash (melons and cucumbers, too) are warm-climate plants, growing quickly enough in prairie and eastern Canada's warm night-and-day summer temperatures. But here on the coast established young plants just manage to produce crops outdoors when given a good start under cover.

Instead of a flat of soil, one-litre milk cartons, cut down into squares two inches deep, will fit into either a made-up wood box of the same depth or into another one-litre carton set horizontally with one side cut out.

This forms a base for the open-bottom squares as well as a surplus moisture holder when the plants are watered.

Filled with compost, each square will have two or three squash (cucumber or melon) seeds pushed gently down on edge in a triangle. After germinating and when showing the first true leaves in the centre, cut off at soil level the weakest, leaving one strong seedling in each square.

Keep the container in a warm sunny place with a paper cover to retard moisture loss. It can be either indoors or out, but should be put under protection at night to prevent chilling.

As leaves expand, give full light and air, but still as warm as possible either on a bench outdoors or in a sunny airy porch.

The choice of varieties in squash is a personal one, but do sow more than one kind, for young summer squash are a great delicacy to be used in attractive meal combinations, both raw and cooked.

Fall and winter squash have the more solid nutrition that we look for at those times.

Summer varieties are White Scallop (also called Pattypan), used when three to four inches across; Dark Green Zucchini, at its most delicate when cut at five to seven inches length; Summer Crookneck, equally delicious when gathered young, around five inches in length.

To use in fall and to keep for winter are Table Queen (also listed as Acorn) with dark green ridged exterior and bright orange inside; Buttercup is one of the Turban varieties having the seed cavity at the bottom of the dark green round fruit.

Look for seed of Spaghetti Squash, a novelty squash to be sure, but worth growing for unusual summer supper dishes. The fruits are picked when eight inches long, cooked whole for 30 minutes in boiling water. Then cut in half and scoop out the spaghetti-like pulp discarding the remainder of the fruit.

For winter, sow Golden Hubbard and Blue Hubbard, or the smaller variety called Baby Hubbard, usable earlier because it has less size to reach before maturity.

All squash must have plentiful humus in the planting holes, and soil soaking at the roots throughout summer for quick prolific growth and fruits.

"I'M A LITTLE BIT COUNTRY"
I'm a 1,200 sq. ft. rancher and I'm normally a warm, cozy home with natural wood panelling to highlight my FP, and 3 good-sized bedrooms (master 9'7"x11'3") with h-w floors throughout. I have a large kitchen with built-in stove and oven. My feature window in the LR looks out over the large patio, up and over terraced gardens past a 12'x19' garden shed to a forrested park-like property behind. I have a 250 sq. ft. workshop (wired). My owners are transferred to Florida, and I need another nice family to live with me. $54,900.

Diversion Vital—Upward

The diversion of the Leech River into the Sooke River is necessary to provide an adequate supply of water for Greater Victoria's population in 10 years' time, members of the Greater Victoria Water Board were told Tuesday.

Water commissioner Ron Upward said planning for water needs must take into account the possibility of "droughts of unknown severity."

There was concern about water supplies in the early part of last winter, when little or no rain fell for about four months, he said.

Upward said although the Sooke Lake watershed is now back to normal, "we have learned that our weather can have more extreme variations than previous records have shown."

He recommended te diversion of the Leech River be carried out by construction of a 12,000-foot tunnel, which he estimated could be built for about $5 million at today's costs.

Although the board did not authorize a start on the project, it did instruct Upward to apply to the provincial water rights branch for a water licence.

APPLICATION FOR A WATER LICENCE
WATER ACT
(Section 8)
The Corporation of the District of Saanich of 770 Vernon Avenue, Victoria, B.C., V8X 2W7 hereby apply to the Comptroller of Water Rights for a licence to regulate the flow of water out of Blenkinsop Lake which flows south and discharges into Swan Lake and give notice of our application to all persons affected.
The storage dam is located at Cumberland Road.
The purpose for which the water will be used is land improvement (regulation of lake levels). The land on which the water will be used is the project of the licensee within Lots 42 and 45, Plan 721; and Lot 13, Plan 10607; all of Section 66, Victoria District. A copy of this application was posted on the 26th of January, 1977, at the proposed point of diversion or site of the dam and on the land where the water is to be used and two copies were filed in the office of the Water Recorder at Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C.
Objections to this application may be filed with the said Water Recorder or with the Comptroller of Water Rights, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C., within thirty days of the date of first publication of the application.
The date of first publication is April 27/1977.

THE DAILY COLONIST AND VICTORIA TIMES

The Ensemble's the Thing . . .

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Sir Michael Redgrave said it himself: the ensemble, not the star. That is what one will discover in his presentation of Shakespeare's People, seen Tuesday in the first of three nights at the Royal Theatre.

Redgrave shines, not as a soloist among third-string players, but as a fine and mellow actor among other fine actors. The five people are a richly blended ensemble playing a boroque concerto, each emerging equally from time to time in solo episodes.

As far as the form and material of the program is concerned, Shakespeare's People is a successful, even brilliant concept by its director, Alan Strachan. Bits and pieces of Shakespeare can probably no more fully satisfy the true Shakespeare buff than "highlights" recordings can the pure music lover.

But for many others the familiar and less familiar excerpts spoken by such a group of players will provide a gourmet banquet.

The voices are the first thrill; how too seldom one hears such splendid speech from the stage. Redgrave is still a virtuoso in the nuances and inflections of a line, audible and affecting at a whisper, electrifying when he opens to a resonant fortissimo.

(Incidentially, any suggestion that Redgrave has declined from his eminence should not be taken too seriously. If he is not the total master of his art that he was formerly, Tuesday's performance had only one briefly insecure moment. For the rest, he was a warm, vital and effective presence.)

David Dodimead opens with a prologue and instantly established the quality and clarity that is sustained throughout the evening. A superb and highly versatile actor, he has a shining sense of comedy that is delightfully evident in Falstaff's comments on honor (from Henry IV Part 1), in Bottom's dream, and with Phillip Bowen, a magnetic young actor, performing the two shepherds' discovery of the infant Perdita (from A Winter's Tale).

Rosalind Shanks is an attractive and lyrical actress, at her considerable best in the romantic and comic excerpts, touching as Cordelia with Redgrave's deeply moving Lear; pleasing in her episodes of narration.

Playing guitar and lute, Rod Willmott interpolates songs throughout in a clear, strong and musical voice — songs that link scenes, establish moods, make pointed commentary.

The program takes the form of seasons, springs, summer, autumn and winter corresponding to the periods of Shakespeare's creativity and his progression as an artist. It also includes gems such as Dodimead reading from early actor William Charles Macready's journals, his experiences in performing Hamlet in America

One of the most moving and memorable moments of the evening brings the four male members of the ensemble together as Redgrave creates for us Richard II's humiliation and heartbreak on returning from Ireland to find himself betrayed, his kingdom lost.

Professional Quality To Festival Pianists

Eighteen entries in one diploma level piano session Tuesday made it necessary to split the class into an afternoon and evening session at Christ Church Cathedral Hall.

As it turned out, not all the entrants put in an appearance but those that did were of such quality that they caused adjudicator Phyllis Schuldt to exclaim the sessions revealed a near-professional performance standard.

Performing works of the Impressionists, the young pianists were described as "really making music" which was far beyond simply playing pieces.

"The whole session revealed beautiful and sincere work," said Mrs. Schuldt. A conservative marker up to that point, she placed Arthur La Vertu first with 95 marks and Walter Prossnitz second with 92. Certificates of Merit were awarded to Maureen Nielsen, Heather McLeod and Malcolm Woodland with 90; Pansy Yang and Kelly Charlton with 89, Gladys Lau with 87, and Fiona Coy with 85.

Vocal classes continue to reveal excellent talent and fine training. Three young singers, Susan Pye, Ingrid Attrot and Susan Westmacott, have greatly impressed adjudicator Phyllis Thomson. All three have topped more than one class to date.

Tuesday evening the male oratorio class and a new category — Italian song of the 17th and 19th centuries — made up the program. William Broadhead was winner of the oratorio class with a mark of 87 for his performance of the difficult recitative and aria, The Trumpet Shall Sound, from The Messiah.

Mrs. Thomson commended the Victoria Music Festival committee for providing such a range of song styles and periods, including French, Italian and German art songs.

Roy Rd. Reserve Eyed by Saanich

Saanich council will consider asking the provincial government to donate 70 acres in the Roy Road area for an ecological reserve and turn another 10 acres over to the B.C. Housing Corporation for single-family houses.

The council's lands, planning and housing committee decided Tuesday to recommend this action after being told by mumicipal planner Gil Laurenson only 10 acres of the property is suitable for development.

Housing Minister Hugh Curtis has offered to sell the acreage back to Saanich at the price it has cost the government and to provide interim financing and technical assistance.

Curtis didn't give the price but the committee was told Tuesday it is in excess of $1 million.

Laurenson cautioned against buying back the property, saying development, either by the municipality or though a purchaser, would be both difficult and unpopular.

He said he doubts the economic viability of a reduced subdivision program, even if carried out with the help of the provincial government and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Laurenson warned that to purchase the land and wait for a better economic climate would be a financial drain on the municipality.

The planner said he is unable to assign priority for purchase of the land for a park because of the need for parkland in other rapidly growing areas of the municipality.

Residents and environmentalists crammed the council chamber late in 1976 to oppose the provincial government's plan for the Roy Road area, which was to build 334 housing units on the 75.8 acres bounded by Wilkinson, Roy, Carey and Interurban.

Saanich began assembling the land several years ago with the intention of providing single-family lots at reasonable prices.

The former NDP government bought the bulk of the land in 1973-1974 at a cost of $381,331.

Things have changed drastically since Saanich began assembling the land, Laurenson told aldermen. Noting properties in the area would benefit from storm and drain facilities, he said he doubts grants from a restricted single-family development would provide a substantial easing in the cost of such services.

He said seven years of changing concepts, political housing philosophies, awareness of the environment, legislative land controls and inflation "have totally eroded the purpose and viability of the proposal."

CUBAN BUZZING STORY DIFFERS

NANAIMO (CP) — Two Vancouver Island men who complained to the federal government that they were harrassed by Cuban jets April 8 said Tuesday they were not surprised the Cuban version of the story was different.

Art Williams of Cassidy and Don Bohun of Ladysmith said they have received no official response from Ottawa to their request for an investigation or information about the Cuban story.

When the two were told about a report out of Ottawa that stories from the two sides differed, Williams, pilot of the plane, said: "At least they (the Cubans) do admit that there was an incident, and that is surprising."

He said that once they receive word from Ottawa, they will make public what the Cuban story is.

An external affairs department official said Tuesday that the stories differed but it would be up to the Vancouver Island men to release the details. He said the information was being passed to Williams and Bohun.

The Canadian ambassador in Cuba made inquiries about the incident after the two men said they were buzzed by two jet fighters as they flew their single-engined Cessna near Cuban air space.

Williams has said the jets attempted to force him to land, despite the fact his flight plan was approved by Aero Civil in Havana.

He said he got back to Florida under cloud cover.

Jobless Bill Gives Area $11M Boost

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The federal government moderated its tough stand on unemployment insurance Tuesday — and Victoria comes out as one of the big winners.

Bowing under mounting pressure, including from within his own Liberal party caucus, Manpower Minister Bud Cullen unveiled the relaxed measures at a House of Commons manpower committee hearing.

The result is that Victoria and Vancouver gain $11 million extra in extra benefits, far ahead of any other region in the country.

Only one other province, aside from B.C., picks up benefits — Nova Scotia with an extra $3 million.

With Cullen's new proposal UIC will be more responsive to regional problems. The original changes proposed by Cullen would have no regional flexibility, and MPs from more depressed areas were the loudest in objecting to them.

Although parts of the B.C. Interior lose benefits, Vancouver and Victoria gain a total of $11 million, with the result that the province overall will receive $4 million in additional benefits.

All other provinces but B.C. and Nova Scotia lose benefits.

The original changes boosted the unemployment insurance qualification period. The new proposal streamline the process of qualification for benefits.

Under the old system, still is in effect, the minimum qualifying period is eight weeks, the maximum time for receiving benefits is 44 weeks. The original set of changes, known as Bill C-27, would have increased the qualification period to 12 weeks and the maximum benefit period to 32 weeks. Cullen's latest move puts the minimum qualification at 10 weeks and the maximum benefits at 42 weeks.

The 10-week minimum, however, would be open only to persons in the high-unemployment regions of the country—southern B.C., Quebec's Eastern Townships and the St. Lawrence and Gaspe areas, and the four Atlantic provinces. It would be 11 weeks in Vancouver and Victoria, 12 in Montreal, 13 in Eastern and Northwestern Ontario, London, Windsor, Hamilton and Toronto and the maximum, 14 weeks, in the three Prairie provinces.

Entitlement to benefits would be just as varied, from a low in the low-unemployment areas such as the Prairies to a high in Atlantic Canada.

Reaction to the proposals was mixed. Lincoln Alexander, the Progressive Conservative manpower spokesmen, offered grudging congratulations to the minister, saying "I think you're heading in the right direction."

New Democratic Party critic John Rodriguez was against it, as he was against the original changes, saying the latest proposals will increase the system's complexity. "We think we have problems now?" Rodriguez said.

Even Quebec Liberal backbencher Charles-Eugene Dionne was against the proposals because of their complexity and while Cullen agreed his newest ideas were complicated, they were all "in the interests of equity."

OFFICERS VOTE STRIKE

Ferries Walkout Looms Next Week

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

A union spokesman said today it appears B.C. Ferries' officers are voting overwhelmingly to strike and 72-hour notice could be served as early as Monday.

Peter Marshall, spokesman for the licensed component of the B.C. Government Employees Union, made the comment on the basis of feelings expressed at several strike-vote meetings.

The 500 officers began the strike vote last Tuesday because of mounting grievances against ferry management.

The final vote will be taken Thursday at Kelsey Bay. The ballots will be counted and the results released Friday.

"It looks like an overwhelming strike vote, based on the tone of the meetings," Marshall said.

"If that is the case, 72-hour strike notice will be served Monday."

He said the decision to serve strike notice on the crown corporation would be up eo the executive but added there will be little choice if the vote is overwhelming.

The fleet officers have been without an agreement since July 1, 1975, and their main grievance is that the wage increase is being held back to try to force licensed personnel to accept recommendations of an industrial inquiry commission conducted by lawyer Hugh Ladner.

The officers object to Ladner's recommendations on internal issues, such as the right to change work schedules, limit temporary vacancies and scheduling time off.

The licensed component is also upset by a management decision to cut the Horseshoe Bay-Langdale service in half in October, resulting in a layoff of 28 of 56 officers. The union says this brings the total number of people eliminated this year to 300.

Marshall said Charles Gallagher, ferries general manager, didn't help matters by failing to respond to a union letter April 15 requesting the resumption of negotiations.

The officers asked that the matter be raised at a B.C. Ferries Corp. board of directors meeting Tuesday.

By not responding to the union's letter, Marshall said, Gallagher is "just heaping coals on the fire."

"Management of the ferry system has taken labor relations back to the time of Charles Dickens," Marshall added.

The ferries corporation has asked the Labor Relations Board to rule that the officers' strike vote is illegal.

However, a spokesman for the board said the corporation's complaint is being held in abeyance pending a decision by the LRB on the question of union certification.

The question to be settled by the LRB is whether there should be a single or double certification for the licensed and unlicensed workers on the ferries.

THE ANNUAL SALMON harvest in the fisheries industry has begun with the arrival of the first catches of the season at the B.C. Packers' dock on Dallas Road. Early landings are reported to be light, mainly due to poor weather off the coast.

Earnings Up Sharply For M-B

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. had first-quarter earnings of $7.7 million or 36 cents a share, up sharply from $600,000 or three cents a share for the same period in 1976, company president C. Calvert Knudsen said Tuesday.

Knudsen told the annual meeting of the giant forest products company that sales and other income during the quarter were $369.3 million, up from $358.5 million.

Knudsen said although the company expected 1977 earnings to be substantially better than 1976, it does not expect the full year to show anywhere near as a large a gain over 1976 as in the first quarter.

The first-quarter report noted that operations were adversely affected by severe weather conditions in eastern Canada and the United States and by soft pulp markets in Europe and Japan.

It said those factors were more than offset by higher values of the U.S. dollar and pound sterling compared to the Canadian dolllar and by reduced transportation losses.

Sewage Issue Unresolved

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

A report today that a solution has been found to the controversial Shoal Bay sewage issue was branded totally inaccurate by municipal spokesmen.

The report, carried in today's Colonist, claimed that the Capital Region Board at a meeting Monday decided to lengthen a sewage outfall at McMicking Point rather than build a hotly-opposed pumping station at Shoal Bay and connecting trunk to Clover Point.

"That's wrong," Victoria Mayor Mike Young said today. He is chairman of the committee, not the regional board, which met Monday.

"That's an off-target story," said Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith, "and I hope it doesn't stir false hopes. It's based on hope, not fact."

Smith said the issue is "nowhere near a decision."

City Ald. Murray Glazier, another regional director at the committee meeting, said what the story related isn't what happened at all.

Regional director Sandy Noel, a Saanich alderman, said he was "most amazed" to hear of the story because nothing was settled at the meeting.

Gas Ration In Canada By 1983?

EDMONTON (CP) — Gasoline rationing in Canada may be a reality by 1983 or 1984, a board member of the Alberta Oil Sands Technology and Research Authority, said Tuesday.

Reg J. Humphreys, also an oil sands consultant and former vice-president and general manager of Great Canadian Oil Sands Co. Ltd., said if more attention had been turned toward the oil sands in northwestern Alberta, Canada could have been self-sufficient in oil by now.

Humphreys, speaking to the western association of Canadian Highway Officials, said until recently oil supply was in balance in Canada and it was assumed Canada had a 30-year supply but, because major Arctic and offshore discoveries failed to materialize, there now is only a seven-year supply.

He said he has always been puzzled by the lack of emphasis in developing the oil sands.

Saanich Women to Face 15 More Fraud Charges

The number of counts of fraud laid against Lauren Gail Phillips climbed today to 20 involving more than $128,000.

The 31-year-old Saanich woman appeared in provincial court charged with defrauding 15 persons of $92,950.

Last Wednesday she was charged with defrauding five other persons of $35,260.

Mrs. Phillips, a divorced mother of one child, remained silent as the new charges were read in provincial court.

Judge William Ostler granted a request by Victoria lawyer Bruce McConnan, representing the accused, for a remand to May 9 for election of trail method and plea.

The charges stem from an investigation into what Saanich police have described as a pyramid sales scheme involving as many as 400 persons and more than $700,000.

In the counts read today, Mrs. Phillips is charged with defrauding Alan Renwick of $2,500, Dawson Staniforth of $3,300, Arthur Vickers of $13,900, William Hussey of $5,700, Gary Tennant of $2,500, Knute Krogstead of $5,600, Ralph Nieforth of $4,200, Raymond Rogers of $9,500, William Brecknell of $4,700, Douglas Dickie of $12,500, Frank Sparks of $7,800, James Chidlow of $7,000, William Gleeson of $5,450, Norman Wirguist of $4,100 and Lawrence Hesketh of $4,200.

A police investigation is continuing in the case.

Officers so far have recovered a large quantity of goods as well as 15 automobiles.

World Hockey 'A Lousy Flop'

VIENNA (CP) — Alan Eagleson says the International Ice Hockey Federation is trying to blame Canada because the world hockey tournament has turned into a "lousy flop."

Eagleson, chairman of international hockey for Canada, said at an unscheduled news conference Tuesday: "We made it clear from the start that we were coming with a club I thought would be a fourth-place team that might gell into a third-place club.

"I can't persuade the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association to stop business to please Guenther Sabetzki and I don't intend to ask."

Eagleson was commenting on reports that Dr. Sabetzki, president of the IIHF, would ask the federation's Congress, which meets here May 2-4, to refuse sanction of the 1980 Canada Cup if Canada did not provide assurances that it would send a better team to the 1978 championship in Prague.

After the news conference, Sabetzki met Eagleson and told him the Canada Cup series is not on the agenda for the federation meetings and would likely be discussed at a later date.

Earlier, Walter Wasservogel, secretary of the IIHF, said Eagleson lied to him about the strength of Canada's team.

"He promised me this would be a very good team," said Wasservogel, also president of the organizing committee for this tournament.

"Look at them. It is the

Drunks Beware: The Suds Squad Is Coming

Call 'em Rafe's Raiders. Or maybe the Suds Squad.

They'll be easy to spot in your favorite pub. They'll be the ones in the corner, quiet, steely-eyed, alert for underage drinkers and patrons under the table.

Formation of the undercover squad — to be composed of 25-30 university students — was announced Tuesday by Consumer Affairs Minister Rafe Mair.

Their job: To seek out and snitch on underage drinkers and bartenders who continue to serve patrons who have obviously had enough.

Mair said in Vancouver the pub policing project will kick off this summer. If it's a success, it may be continued year round.

Frank Burger, president of the B.C. Hotels Association, said today his 425-member group has no objections.

"The reputable operators are not concerned about how they got about the inspections as long as they do it in a fair manner," said Burger, owner of the King's Hotel in Victoria.

He said he hopes the government will not focus its attention only on the hotels but on all liquor outlets where under-age drinkers can get liquor.

He said there have been incidents of pubs serving underage drinkers but these are generally isolated cases where operators have not bothered to check the patrons.

Burger said cabaret-style operations are more apt to attract under-age drinkers because of the type of music they provide.

He also said he hopes the government will hire student inspectors who would be knowledgeable enough to show some discretion. It is important to have inspectors who are aware of what is allowed and what is out of line, he added.

Mair also said in his Vancouver speech the government is considering a surcharge on liquor prices to pay for an alcohol abuse education program.

He said it is too early to say how much the surcharge would be.

Marion's a Builder

But She's Turned Off by B.C.

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Buller Construction Ltd. has built one house in B.C. — its first — and already is considering a move to Alberta where the economy and free enterprise are considered more vigorous.

Speculative housebuilding does have its ups and downs, but for Buller the trend in this province became clear in a matter of months.

Buller Construction is one person — 23-year-old Marion Buller, a tall, smiling woman with an arts degree in anthropology who turned to housebuilding to help put her urban land-use theories into practice while making money.

Unfortunately, her new Gordon Head house is still on the market — along with a lot of other spec houses — and she can't get on with her next project until it is sold.

"I'm thinking of going to a better construction climate in Alberta," she said Tuesday while showing a reporter through the four-bedroom dwelling with a view of Mt. Douglas.

"B.C. is not a good place for free enterprise these days, and that's what speculative building is."

Besides, she said, "I'm a bit tired of socialism and the worker attitude.

"I'd like to be some place where a few people are more keen on making things move, where there is a bit more life in business and more opportunities."

She is from Ontario, where none of her family is associated either with business or the construction industry. Father is a part-time CBC actor and native culture administrator; her mother a nurse, and her brother is executive director of native friendship centres.

Marion was interested in urban anthropology, took two years at Carleton University in Ottawa, then two years at University of Victoria.

"There's a terrific gap between the academic planning of urban space and its ultimate use," she said.

"I understand the basics of planning space and would like to use it to provide better places to live. I would like to do a street or a subdivision."

And why not?

"People think you have to be an archeologist to be in anthropology . . . ."

So how did she get into housebuilding?

"I knew a fellow who messed around in construction and got into it with him. But he didn't know much about business." It didn't work out and they parted.

Then she got a job insulating a house in Gordon Head and after seeking out builder's financing took on her own house project, assisted by another male friend, also a contractor, for much of the undertaking.

Buller and friend did the roofing, insulation and finishing carpentry, assisted by two young women carpenters after subcontracts were let for foundation, framing, drywall, plumbing and wiring.

The house was built mostly between August and December last year and has sat vacant on its paved, new cul de sac since then. With so many other empty spec houses, the price has dropped to less than $70,000.

Although it is a standard design, the house incorporates a number of features specified by Buller, who is conscious of optimum use of space as in: walk-in kitchen pantry, nine-foot closets, small, heat-saving front hall; plus neutral wall-to-wall carpet and kitchen-bath colors, slightly tinted walls, fancy light fixtures, built-in dishwasher and garbage disposer.

But she has left a few things for the eventual buyer to plan, allowing furnishings to be blended in.

"Also," she said, "a builder's personality should not be dictated."

That still leaves room for some of her convicitons, like the acorn fireplace in the living room which can supplement the all-electric heating, add a cozy decorative touch or barbecue supper.

Another Buller interest is solar heating and she is collaborating with someone else on a new design for collector panels that may be connected to a domestic hot water system.

"It'll really change people's thinking about design and materials," she predicts, hoping to be able to come up with a kit obtainable through builder's supply yards for less than $1,000 per panel.

Meanwhile, this socially-conscious contractor has been busy tidying up the paper work she let slide during the house construction, advising the Community Carpentry group and setting up a careers program for Business and Professional Women's Club.

She was asked what were the hardest parts about building a house on her own initiative. Did she hurt herself with any of the heavy work?

"No. I was always active in sport and I guess I have a few muscles from that. But my height is an advantage and I use it for leverage. And I've had it drilled into me that if anything is too heavy to lift, get someone to help."

Aside from that, the most difficult time was getting financial backing through the mortgage industry. It wasn't that she was a woman, Buller said, but that she was only 23 and had no assets or experience.

Officials Given Week To Find $250,000

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Buried somewhere in Victoria's 79-page budget for 1977 could be a possible saving of almost a quarter-mililon dollars.

If there is, two senior city officials have one week to find it.

In a last-ditch effort to hold the city's own general purposes levy to the 1976 level, council Tuesday instructed city manager Jim Bramley and comptroller Mason Sheldrick to suggest potential savings which could lop one mill — more than $246,000 — from the mill rate.

But Mayor Mike Young emphasized, at the end of a three-and-a-half-hour budget study session, that the instruction does not imply any firm commitment to slash city expenditures by that amount.

The proposals to be submitted to council's final budget session next Tuesday will be for "discussion purposes only," he said.

The city's mill rate now stands at 49.56 mills, one mill higher than last year. But a nine-mill drop in the school levy has produced a decrease in the over-all mill rate of 6.27 mills.

When Ald. Ron McKenzie complained during Tuesday's meeting that he is "very unhappy" about the city's one-mill increase, in the light of the school board's substantially lowered budget, Young said comparisons are invalid.

"We should be trying to maintain our property tax at the same level as last year if possible," he said, "but I am not particularly anxious to do so by cutting services which will wind up to our expense in future years."

Little Room to Manoeuvre

Finance committee chairman Ald. Murray Glazier agreed the city's budget leaves little or no room for manoeuvre without jeopardizing the level of service to residents.

The only lengthy debate of the afternoon centred on the fire department's $2.87 million budget, specifically on the proposed hiring of 12 additional firefighters.

Only McKenzie opposed this, saying the cost would be inordinately high — approximately $300,000 a year in five years' time — and said in any case he is not convinced by the argument that the extra men would save $100,000 a year by cutting out the need for sick leave substitution.

But McKenzie also had another reason.

"The firemen are not the easiest group of city employees to deal with," he said. "If we expand the force by 12 persons we should be forewarned that we are going to be extending some of the difficulties we have been having.

"There will be 12 more firemen to be there to agitate and negotiate."

The mayor said, however, he is satisfied that the additional firefighters are needed, because the department's firefighting effectiveness has "fallen behind" in recent years.

He said there's another advantage to consider — that the staff increase will "inject more youth" into a department with a remarkably low turnover and a high percentage of veterans.

"The age grouping of that department is starting to worry me . . . not that I'm saying they are old men."

V.I.P. ABOARD Princess Marguerite for inaugural run of season April 19 will be Washington State governor Dixie Lee Ray. It's billed as an informal visit but she will have lunch with Lieut-Gov. Walter Owen and Premier Bennett at Government House, and return the same day. The governor's proposal to cut off the Sidney-Anacortes ferry is expected to crop up although no formal policy meetings are scheduled.

Hayes Haywire On Tower —Siddall

Victoria architect Bob Siddall has rebuked Ald. John Hayes for making "misinformed comments" about a proposed office building at 747 Fort Street, which Hayes had termed a potential "tombstone for downtown Victoria."

Siddall says the building is not 14 storeys but 11, while its colors are "golden bronze glass and a warm beige concrete finish, not black and grey."

Hayes had claimed earlier the building would dominate the downtown landscape, but Siddall said the tower is about the same height as the Executive House and "no taller than four much larger buildings within 350 yards.'

Hayes was reported to have said that the city's Advisory Design Panel should throw out the plans for the development, which is being built by Assiz Rohani, head of an Iranian construction company.

What he did not point out is that the panel serves in an advisory capacity only, and cannot force a developer to change a design which panel members consider unsuitable or inappropriate.

The plans for the project comply with all zoning requirements and regulations.

YOUTH KILLED

A 17-year-old Victoria youth was killed this morning when the car he was driving collided with two others on Sooke Road just east of Veitch Creek bridge.

Colwood RCMP said Brad Shaun Ruel Fraser, 2533 Richmond, died instantly in the 7 a.m. collision.

Kevin Michael Spicer, 17, of 3609 Richmond, a passenger in Fraser's car received minor injuries.

The drivers of the other two cars escaped serious injury.

May Day's the Day To Run the Rapids

max low

Visions of solidarity float through the mind at the mere mention of May 1.

Military might and labor strength have long since replaced the romantic symbols of dancing and courtship that once traditionally marked this spring day.

On May 1, 1890, demonstrations which were almost world-wide succeeded in getting an eight-hour work day. Today, May Day is parades reaffirming this unity; it's thousands of young people dressed in red and white doing callisthenics in Peking; it's tanks rumbling down the maindrag in Moscow.

. . . It's all very solid, comrades.

But, what Roger Williams and the rest of the Sooke Volunteer Fire Department have in mind for May Day isn't very "solid" at all. Quite the opposite.

They plan to spend the day — or a good part of it, anyway — being swept down the rapids of the Sooke River on rafts!

It's time for the third annual Sooke River Raft Race and for the first time it's being held this year on May 1 and being run by the fire department, helped by the Sooke Venture Scouts.

Raft racing has to be something reserved exclusively for the slightly insane, of course, but anyway these people will leap aboard their home-made craft for a series of heats that start at 11 a.m.

Three miles down river from Pot Holes Park to the finish line on the Sooke River Flats the rafts (minimum size four feet by eight feet) will make their way, surging through the whitewater and poling or paddling through the calm spots (sorry, no fixed oars allowed this year).

The 10 fastest times qualify for the grand final, which is expected to be at about 2:30 p.m. Once again, the favorites are those crafty rafters from Sooke, Richard Hamilton and Wayne Stolth, who took first prize in both the first and second year's races.

There is a $10 entry fee for each raft but the big race winner can take home $150. It's $75 for second place and $50 for third, as well as assorted trophies up for grabs for best women's crew, best effort by a youth team and for best decorated raft.

There's even a new trophy this year for the most nifty bit of rafting by media people. But no thanks, chaps. I'll stick to dancing around the maypole — if I can find one.

Thirty rafts took part in last year's race and officials say there could be as many as 60 on Sunday. But as far as jovial race chairman Roger Williams is concerned (and with apologies to President Carter) those figures are peanuts compared with what the future holds.

"We want to build this up into a big event and hopefully get crews to bring rafts from the United States and from overseas like they do for the Nanaimo Bath Tub Race," explains Roger.

By next year, the Sooke firemen can see their event becoming a two-day affair with heats on the Saturday and finals on the Sunday. And maybe even a dance with a "Miss Raft Race" (that last word by the way, was Race and not Face) chosen being held on the Saturday night.

It could become a big thing, sure. But right now there's this year's race to get over with — and Roger admits he has problems.

"Well, you see," he says with a grin, "we've lost the first and second-place trophies! Or at least, we haven't lost them, but no one knows where they are."

Last year's trophy-getters were given their prize money and their replica trophies but weren't allowed to take home the main perpetual trophies because, as Roger explains, experience has shown that when this is allowed, they often go missing.

Good thinking, chaps. Only thing is, these trophies went missing anyway! And the only thing the Sooke Firemen know is that a man named Doug Ayers ran last year's raft race and they haven't been able to find any trace of him or the trophies.

So there you have it. If you happen to find one of those elusive raft race trophies lying around covered in cobwebs or if you want to race a raft (you've got until midnight on Friday to get your entry in), then call Roger at 642-3811.

And happy rafting!

Second Look Promised Action Group

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm will reconsider his decision to cut off funding to the Victoria Community Action Group.

After an almost one-hour meeting Tuesday with representatives of the group, Vander Zalm said he will think over his action and hopes to decide within a week.

"I'll be reviewing all the information and following through on some of the things they (the group representatives) told me," he said.

The action group last year received a provincial grant of $36,919 and had requested $47,669 for this fiscal year which began April 1, 1977.

UVic's Recreation Centre Open To Public First Time This Summer

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

The University of Victoria will open its $2½-million sports and recreation complex to the public for the first time this summer.

The McKinnon Building, completed two years ago and used by students, faculty and staff at UVic for athletics and recreation, will be available to the public from May through August for a series of recreation classes organized by Penny Lough, the school's intramural and recreation director.

UVic personnel will teach many of the courses.

"The public is eligible to use the facilities here only for the recreation and instructional classes," Miss Lough explained, "not for individual recreational purposes." Course fees, ranging from $8 for children's swim lessons to $65 for extensive scuba diving, are slightly higher for the public than for UVic students and staff, who pay annual dues.

Classes in May and June will focus on family and children's activities.

Courses include acrobatics for children age 8 to 15, tennis and squash instruction, beginner's contemporary dance, Hawaiian dancing, jazz dance, beginners' ballet, women's keep-fit, swimming stroke improvement, bronze medallion and advanced life-saving, women's slim, trim and swim, children's swim lessons (7 years and up) for pre-beginners, beginners, pre-juniors, juniors, pre-intermediates and intermediates, scuba diving, sailing at Oak Bay marina and hatha yoga instruction at levels one and two.

LOUGH
. . . organizes courses

July and August classes will emphasize outdoor activities, including canoeing, orienteering and hiking.

"We've been trying to open up the facilities and programs to the public for the past two years," Miss Lough said. "Until now it was just the very anxious to increase the students, faculty and staff who could participate in the recreation classes, or even get into the facility.

"With most of the students gone for the summer, we're number of participants in family and children's programs, she continued. "We have facilities here that aren't readily available elsewhere in the community, including the squash courts and the swimming pool, and it would be a shame not to put them to use by opening them to the public."

Mike Elcock, UVic athletic director who leaves next week for a year of physical education study at the University of Edinburgh, sees the program is a first step to more public use of the McKinnon facilities.

"We've only now been able to get permission from the authorities at the university to embark on this program," Elcock said. "There was a fear — probably a justified one — of undercutting existing community recreation programs.

"We hope eventually to open up the facilities even more, but for the time being we've been instructed to start slowly."

Miss Lough stressed that the courses are designed to augment other recreation programs in Greater Victoria, not to run in opposition to them.

UVic has operated a similar program for students and staff under Miss Lough's direction for the past two years, with considerable success. The school has one of the highest participation levels of any university in Canada.

Last year, more than 1,000 students signed up for instructional classes and 1,200 for intramural competitions, representing 26 per cent of UVic's enrolment of 7,200.

"We found that men lean to intramural competition while women make up almost 75 per cent of the instructional classes," Miss Lough said. "The most popular classes were in dance, swimming, yoga and scuba. Co-education volleyball really took off this past year. We had so many teams register we had to press the old gym into service."

Registration for the public takes place starting May 3 at the athletics and recreation office, Room 121, McKinnon Building. More information is available there or by phoning 477-6911, local 4355.

"I don't quite know what to expect in terms of numbers," Miss Lough added, "but I don't think there will be a problem accommodating everyone."

Bid To Free 60 Acres

Sidney council agreed Tuesday to appeal to the provincial cabinet a B.C. Land Commission decision rejecting an application to release 60 acres from the agricultural land reserve.

The land is in Sidney's south end, bordering North Saanich and Victoria airport.

Council's action follows a brief submitted by property owners in the area and Lesure Villa Estate to have the land taken out of the reserve.

Leisure Villa Estate wants about 30 acres of the land rezoned for an adults-only mobile home community park.

Union Rejects Cominco Offer

TRAIL (CP) — Union members at the Cominco Ltd. operation here have voted to reject a company contract offer, and to reject a "no contract-no work" stance.

A strike vote will begin today.

Marv McLean, chairman of the unions' joint bargaining council, said Tuesday 800 members of the United Steelworkers of America and the Association of Commercial and Technical Employees voted overwhelmingly against the contract offer, but only narrowly rejected the suggestion to stop work when the current contract, which affects 4,000 workers in the Kootenays, expires April 30.

McLean declined to provide figures on the votes.

McLean said the company's offer was "a slap in the face."

He said the offer represents a 4.5-cent-an-hour increase because "the rest was negotiated in a cost-of-living clause in the last agreement."

District 63 School Tax To Increase

School taxes in rural Saanich will increase slightly this year while taxes in Sooke school district will decrease.

School District 63 set a mill rate at 45.9 mills, 1.47 mills higher than last year, but still below the provincial average of 47.5 mills.

And although Sooke school trustees set a record budget of $13.8 million, the tax rate has been reduced by two mills. The reduction is due to an increased tax base and a surplus from 1976 budget.

The Saanich increase is necessary to pay for the new high school being built at Stelly's Cross Road which is costing the equivalent of three mills.

"So we are pleased that we've been able to keep the mill rate down as well as we have," board chairman Gerry Kristianson said.

Sooke's record budget includes a $2.3 million capital expenditure program including a $1.1 million designated for a new elementary-junior school.

The mill rate in Sooke — 40.2 mills — is more than seven mills below the provincial average.

Duncan Holds Line On Taxes

DUNCAN — City council Tuesday approved a no tax increase budget.

Finance chairman Ald. Michael Coleman described the budget as "non-inflationary."

"We didn't arrive at this by magic," he said. "Lots of work went into the budget."

The budget provides the public works department with $55,000 for new equipment and $145,000 for roads and drainage.

Total expenditure this year from general revenue will be $2,399,890.

This is a decrease of $40,000 from the previous year, but this year's figure does not include the expenditure of $208,000 for sewers which under municipal regulations had to be treated separately in 1977.

City treasurer Keith Belliveau noted the value of the mill has also increased from $16,715 to $18,278.

But he said that increased expenditures have been met in 1977 by new construction.

"Basically, we have raised most of it because of new developments in the city, which have offset increased costs," he said.

N.I.P. Cash Refused

DUNCAN — The federal housing department has rejected a city application for additional funding for its Jubilee Street neighborhood improvement program.

The city requested an additional $150,000 after it was established that a recreation building would complement the new 133-unit Duncan Manor adjacent to Centennial Park.

Jobless Bill Gives Area $11M Boost

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The federal government moderated its tough stand on unemployment insurance Tuesday — and Victoria comes out as one of the big winners.

Bowing under mounting pressure, including from within his own Liberal party caucus, Manpower Minister Bud Cullen unveiled the relaxed measures at a House of Commons manpower committee hearing.

The result is that Victoria and Vancouver gain $11 million in extra benefits, far ahead of any other region in the country.

Only one other province, aside from B.C., picks up benefits — Nova Scotia with an extra $3 million.

With Cullen's new proposal UIC will be more responsive to regional problems. The original changes proposed by Cullen would have no regional flexibility, and MPs from more depressed areas were the loudest in objecting to them.

Although parts of the B.C. Interior lose benefits, Vancouver and Victoria gain a total of $11 million, with the result that the province over-all will receive $4 million in additional benefits.

All other provinces but B.C. and Nova Scotia lose benefits.

The original changes boosted the unemployment insurance qualification period. The new proposals streamline the process of qualification for benefits.

Under the old system, still in effect, the minimum qualifying period is eight weeks, the maximum time for receiving benefits is 44 weeks. The original set of changes, known as Bill C-27, would have increased the qualification period to 12 weeks and the maximum benefit period to 32 weeks. Cullen's latest move puts the minimum qualification at 10 weeks and the maximum benefits at 42 weeks.

The 10-week minimum, however, would be open only to persons in the high-unemployment regions of the country—southern B.C., Quebec's Eastern Townships and the St. Lawrence and Gaspe areas, and the four Atlantic provinces. It would be 11 weeks in Vancouver and Victoria, 12 in Montreal, 13 in Eastern and Northwestern Ontario, London, Windsor, Hamilton and Toronto and the maximum, 14 weeks, in the three Prairie provinces.

Entitlement to benefits would be just as varied, from a low in the low-unemployment areas such as the Prairies to a high in Atlantic Canada.

Reaction to the proposals was mixed. Lincoln Alexander, the Progressive Conservative manpower spokesmen, offered grudging congratulations to the minister, saying "I think you're heading in the right direction."

New Democratic Party critic John Rodriguez was against it, as he was against the original changes, saying the latest proposals will increase the system's complexity. "We think we have problems now?" Rodriguez said.

Even Quebec Liberal backbencher Charles-Eugene Dionne was against the proposals because of their complexity and while Cullen agreed his newest ideas were complicated, they were all "in the interests of equity."

SORTER'S A SHREDDER

TORONTO (CP) — Letter-sorting machinery at Toronto postal plants is shredding hundreds of letters daily, a post office spokesman said Tuesday.

However, Ed Roworth, district public relations manager, said only a tiny percentage of the five million letters and parcels handled daily are damaged by the equipment, brought into use in January.

POLICE KILL SNIPER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A sniper who kept residents out of their homes and police at bay all night died early today from a shotgun blast.

Police fired two shotgun blasts as the man came out shooting. Police special weapons units had been exchanging fire with the sniper, a 29-year-old man from Montreal, for six hours. The entire incident lasted about seven hours.

Dead is Kenneth Reed.

Residents of a two-block area in the Kitsilano district were earlier asked by police to evacuate their homes and go to a nearby public school where they waited for the drama to end.

72-HOUR NOTICE DUE

Ferry Officers Voting to Strike

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

A union spokesman said today it appears B.C. Ferries' officers are voting overwhelmingly to strike and 72-hour notice could be served as early as Monday.

Peter Marshall, spokesman for the licensed component of the B.C. Government Employees Union, made the comment on the basis of feelings expressed at several strike-vote meetings.

The 500 officers began the strike vote last Tuesday because of mounting grievances against ferry management.

The final vote will be taken Thursday at Kelsey Bay. The ballots will be counted and the results released Friday.

"It looks like an overwhelming strike vote, based on the tone of the meetings," Marshall said.

"If that is the case, 72-hour strike notice will be served Monday."

He said the decision to serve strike notice on the crown corporation would be up to the executive but added there will be little choice if the vote is overwhelming.

The fleet officers have been without an agreement since July 1, 1975, and their main grievance is that the wage increase is being held back to try to force licensed personnel to accept recommendations of an industrial inquiry commission conducted by lawyer Hugh Ladner.

The officers object to Ladner's recommendations on internal issues, such as the right to change work schedules, limit temporary vacancies and scheduling time off.

The licensed component is also upset by a management decision to cut the Horseshoe Bay-Langdale service in half in October, resulting in a layoff of 28 of 56 officers. The union says this brings the total number of people eliminated this year to 500.

Marshall said Charles Gallagher, ferries general manager, didn't help matters by failing to respond to a union letter April 15 requesting the resumption of negotiations.

The officers asked that the matter be raised at a B.C. Ferries Corp. board of directors meeting Tuesday.

By not responding to the union's letter, Marshall said, Gallagher is "just heaping coals on the fire."

"Management of the ferry system has taken labor relations back to the time of Charles Dickens," Marshall added.

The ferries corporation has asked the Labor Relations Board to rule that the officers' strike vote is illegal.

However, a spokesman for the board said the corporation's complaint is being held in abeyance pending a decision by the LRB on the question of union certification.

The question to be settled by the LRB is whether there should be a single or double certification for the licensed and unlicensed workers on the ferries.

Earnings Up Sharply For M-B

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. had first-quarter earnings of $7.7 million or 36 cents a share, up sharply from $600,000 or three cents a share for the same period in 1976, company president C. Calvert Knudsen said Tuesday.

Knudsen told the annual meeting of the giant forest products company that sales and other income during the quarter were $369.3 million, up from $358.5 million.

Knudsen said although the company expected 1977 earnings to be substantially better than 1976, it does not expect the full year to show anywhere near as a large a gain over 1976 as in the first quarter.

The first-quarter report noted that operations were adversely affected by severe weather conditions in eastern Canada and the United States and by soft pulp markets in Europe and Japan.

It said those factors were more than offset by higher values of the U.S. dollar and pound sterling compared to the Canadian dolllar and by reduced transportation losses.

Sewage Issue Unresolved

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

A report today that a solution has been found to the controversial Shoal Bay sewage issue was branded totally inaccurate by municipal spokesmen.

The report, carried in today's Colonist, claimed that the Capital Region Board at a meeting Monday decided to lengthen a sewage outfall at McMicking Point rather than build a hotly-opposed pumping station at Shoal Bay and connecting trunk to Clover Point.

"That's wrong," Victoria Mayor Mike Young said today. He is chairman of the committee, not the regional board, which met Monday.

"That's an off-target story," said Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith, "and I hope it doesn't stir false hopes. It's based on hope, not fact."

Smith said the issue is "nowhere near a decision."

City Ald. Murray Glazier, another regional director at the committee meeting, said what the story related isn't what happened at all.

Regional director Sandy Noel, a Saanich alderman, said he was "most amazed" to hear of the story because nothing was settled at the meeting.

A week ago the regional board named a committee to

Gas Ration In Canada By 1983?

EDMONTON (CP) — Gasoline rationing in Canada may be a reality by 1983 or 1984, a board member of the Alberta Oil Sands Technology and Research Authority, said Tuesday.

Reg J. Humphreys, also an oil sands consultant and former vice-president and general manager of Great Canadian Oil Sands Co. Ltd., said if more attention had been turned toward the oil sands in northwestern Alberta, Canada could have been self-sufficient in oil by now.

Humphreys, speaking to the western association of Canadian Highway Officials, said until recently oil supply was in balance in Canada and it was assumed Canada had a 30-year supply but, because major Arctic and offshore discoveries failed to materialize, there now is only a seven-year supply.

He said he has always been puzzled by the lack of emphasis in developing the oil sands.

Saanich Woman to Face 15 More Fraud Charges

The number of counts of fraud laid against Lauren Gail Phillips climbed today to 20 involving more than $128,000.

The 31-year-old Saanich woman appeared in provincial court charged with defrauding 15 persons of $92,950.

Last Wednesday she was charged with defrauding five other persons of $35,260.

Mrs. Phillips, a divorced mother of one child, remained silent as the new charges were read in provincial court.

Judge William Ostler granted a request by Victoria lawyer Bruce McConnan, representing the accused, for a remand to May 9 for election of trial method and plea.

The charges stem from an investigation into what Saanich police have described as a pyramid sales scheme involving as many as 400 persons and more than $700,000.

In the counts read today, Mrs. Phillips is charged with defrauding Alan Renwick of $2,500, Dawson Staniforth of $3,300, Arthur Vickers of $13,900, William Hussey of $5,700, Gary Tennant of $2,500, Knute Krogstead of $5,600, Ralph Nieforth of $4,200, Raymond Rogers of $9,500, William Brecknell of $4,700, Douglas Dickie of $12,500, Frank Sparks of $7,800, James Chidlow of $7,000, William Gleeson of $5,450, Norman Winguist of $4,100 and Lawrence Hesketh of $4,200.

A police investigation is continuing in the case.

Officers so far have recovered a large quantity of goods as well as 15 automobiles.

Eagleson Faces Threat of Suit

VIENNA, Austria (CP) — An International Ice Hockey Federation official threatened Wednesday to sue Alan Eagleson for remarks the Toronto lawyer made at a news conference the previous day in which he alleged IIHF secretary general Walter Wasservogel "stole money from his pockets."

Eagleson, agent for a number of professional hockey players and chairman of international hockey for the Canadian government, admitted the word "stolen may be a strong word."

"All I know is somebody screwed me out of $20,000."

Wasservogel confronted Eagleson at a news conference with a story that appeared in a Vienna newspaper in which Eagleson was quoted as saying the general secretary "stole money from his pockets."

Speaking through an interpreter, the IIHF official was also upset by a statement Eagleson made, saying Canada was forced to buy 100 seats for the United States-Finland game at the world hockey championships Tuesday afternoon in order to be able to purchase 100 seats for the Canada-Czechoslovakia game which followed.

Eagleson said Canada purchased in total about $50,000 worth of tickets for the tournament, "but $20,000 worth of tickets are useless."

"The only money they (the organizing committee) will make will be what they stole from us," Eagleson is quoted as saying Tuesday, a comment that upset Wasservogel.

After Eagleson explained his position Wednesday, Was-

Drunks Beware: The Suds Squad Is Coming

Call 'em Rafe's Raiders. Or maybe the Suds Squad.

They'll be easy to spot in your favorite pub. They'll be the ones in the corner, quiet, steely-eyed, alert for under-age drinkers and patrons under the table.

Formation of the undercover squad — to be composed of 25-30 university students — was announced Tuesday by Consumer Affairs Minister Rafe Mair.

Their job: To seek out and snitch on underage drinkers and bartenders who continue to serve patrons who have obviously had enough.

Mair said in Vancouver the pub policing project will kick off this summer. If it's a success, it may be continued year round.

Frank Burger, president of the B.C. Hotels Association, said today his 425-member group has no objections.

"The reputable operators are not concerned about how they go about the inspections as long as they do it in a fair manner," said Burger, owner of the King's Hotel in Victoria.

He said he hopes the government will not focus its attention only on the hotels but on all liquor outlets where under-age drinkers can get liquor.

He said there have been incidents of pubs serving under-age drinkers but these are generally isolated cases where operators have not bothered to check the patrons.

Burger said cabaret-style operations are more apt to attract under-age drinkers because of the type of music they provide.

He also said he hopes the government will hire student inspectors who would be knowledgeable enough to show some discretion. It is important to have inspectors who are aware of what is allowed and what is out of line, he added.

Mair also said in his Vancouver speech the government is considering a surcharge on liquor prices to pay for an alcohol abuse education program.

He said it is too early to say how much the surcharge would be.

DRUG TRIALS START AT CFB ESQUIMALT

The first of an expected dozen court martials involving servicemen charged with drug offenses began today at CFB Esquimalt.

Charged with two counts of drug trafficking is Pte. James O. Barrett of HMCS Athabaskan.

The charges state Barrett sold hashish to Pte. M. D. Taylor and Pte. B. D. Kilbourn.

The alleged offenses occurred between Nov. 15, 1976, and Dec. 20, 1976.

Barrett has pleaded not guilty to both counts.

The court martials were ordered by Rear-Admiral Andrew Collier, Pacific maritime commander.

A spokesman said most of the men involved have been in the Canadian armed forces less than 20 months and are charged with possession of drugs, contravention of Canadian forces' regulations and rules, and other federal acts."

President of the standing court martials is Lt. Col. C. R. Rippon, a former assistant Judge-Advocate at CFB Esquimalt.

The prosecutor is Capt. W. J. Bill Fenrick of CFB Halifax. Defence counsel is Major Brian Murphy of CFB Calgary.

The trials were ordered by Collier as the result of an "ongoing investigation," the spokesman said.

Emphasis Shifts to Classroom

A reduction of permanent staff in the central offices of the Greater Victoria school district will bring a shift in emphasis to the classroom, trustees said Tuesday.

The organizational shake-up which has been on the books since January will send a net total of five permanent special advisors back to the classroom as regular teachers or counsellors.

The eliminated positions include co-ordinators of special programs, music, learning assistance, home economics, career education, vocational training and itinerant physical education. (Two more were created — intermediate consultant and English consultant.)

There will be little, if any, cost saving, however, for the vacancies can be filled by other classroom teachers being brought in to the administrative offices on temporary appointments as special needs arise.

The advantage of this method, board chairman Susan Brice said at Tuesday's press conference, is that the concept is less rigid.

If a need in a certain area develops, superintendent of schools Allan Stables can canvass the district, find the best teacher and bring him in to share his expertise.

"We will be able to harvest the expertise in our district while it is still enthusiastic," he said.

The classroom emphasis of the re-organization is also reflected by the addition of a second senior field administrator to supervise principals and teachers.

Officials were unable to say if all the co-ordinators affected by the reduction were willing to accept reassignment back to the classroom.

One senior official, Art Lamrock, director of pupil personnel, announced his resignation this week.

Stables said his resignation was for "personal reasons," and that Lamrock "has been doing a good job in the area that he has been working, so we have no quarrel with that."

But Stables added there have been significant changes in Lamrock's area. He was not offered one of the new positions created by the re-organization — that of supervisor of special education.

Lamrock was at a meeting and was unable to be reached for comment today.

Even More Meetings?

If Ald. Ian Cass has his way Saanich council will hold even more meetings in future.

Night council meetings begin again next Monday and Cass says he is against meetings continuing after 11 p.m.

This means meetings will have to be adjourned to the next night or another convenient date, he says.

"I feel that 11 p.m. is quite late enough to be conducting meetings, especially when one considers that people are tired and more prone to rush through important items just to get them completed," he said.

The same deadline would apply to committee meetings, he added.

Cass observed that several council and committee meetings have lasted for more than four hours this year.

10,000 On His Lawn?

Human Resources Minster Bill Vander Zalm says a planned demonstration by members of the Downtown Eastside Residents' Association from Vancouver will only make the association appear ridiculous in the eyes of the public.

DERA members plan to hold a rally of welfare recipients July 1 on the front lawn of Vander Zalm's home in the Port Kells area of Surrey. Spokesmen for the group hope 10,000 people will attend.

The demonstration is being organized to demand that Vander Zalm spend on the needy the $100 million surplus his ministry has managed to save on budget estimates.

Eagleson Faces Threat of Suit

servogel still wasn't satisfied.

"I'd like to know again from you," he shot back at Eagleson, "whether you said we have, or I have, stolen money from you. Yes or no?" The IIHF officials said he would consider suing Eagleson if he continued to say the money was stolen.

"Stolen may be a strong word," Eagleson admitted. "All I know is somebody screwed me out of $20,000." On that note, the discussion ended.

Wasservogel said Eagleson asked several months ago "to reserve 8,000 tickets for the world tournament."

"Then he reduced his order to 800 tickets."

The IIHF general secretary said he couldn't understand why Eagleson thought Canada was forced to buy tickets.

"Obviously there's a lot of confusion about a lot of things in this tournament," Eagleson told about 200 reporters and officials at the news conference.

"Several months ago it was suggested that Canada would have to buy books of tickets and we declined. Later we were advised . . . that tickets could only be sold if you purchased the whole day's tickets. Then, when we came to Vienna for the tournament, we found that was not the case."

Earlier, Wasservogel said Eagleson lied to him about the strength of Canada's team.

"He promised me this would be a very good team," said Wasservogel, also president of the organizing committee for this tournament.

Sewage Decision Unresolved

examine alternatives to the pumping station and trunk connection and to bring a recommendation back to the board within a month.

The committee includes the mayors and regional directors from the three partner municipalities in the project, Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich.

Mayor Young said the meeting Monday included some members of Oak Bay council and discussed the feasibility of using an alternate sewage connection to an outfall to be built at Clover Point.

Also considered was the likelihood of the Pollution Control Board approving an extended outfall at McMicking Point if present sewage flows were varied.

Young said additional cost information is being gathered for a second meeting towards the end of next week which will also be in camera.

Smith said he hopes the committee will be able to assemble a package proposal which will avoid the need for the pumping station, save money and prove acceptable to the Pollution Control Board.

Poison Gas Clouds Empty School, Airport, Cannery

PORT EDWARD (CP) — A public school, a fish cannery and an airport were evacuated Tuesday afternoon after an unknown quantity of deadly chlorine gas leaked from the Canadian Cellulose Ltd. pulp mill.

There were no reports of injuries as two clouds of the poisonous green gas drifted northwest over the Pacific.

Ed Harris, coast guard district manager, said a spokesman for Hooker Chemicals Ltd. of Vancouver, shippers of the gas, said it would dissipate in two or three hours in the rain.

Harris said the clouds appeared to be one-quarter and three-quarters of a mile in diameter.

Jac Kreut, Cancel mill manager, said the leak was contained within minutes by automatic valves which shut down operation. Chlorine is shipped in liquid form, but turns to gas in the atmosphere.

He said a line broke while the chlorine was being pumped from a barge into a 400-ton tank at the mill, about five miles south of Prince Rupert.

About 200 employees of the B.C. Packers cannery here were sent home after the leak because the cannery is in a low-lying area of the village near the mill. Chlorine gas is heavier than air.

School principal Jim Calvert said the 250 pupils at the elementary school here were taken to the gym after the leak was reported. Children whose parents couldn't pick them up immediately were taken by bus to a community centre at Prince Rupert.

Eight employees at the Prince Rupert airport on the west side of Digby Island, about 10 miles northwest of here, were airlifted from the airport because the clouds could have drifted nearby. Three hours after the spill, airport employees were back at work.

Kreut said that an offshore wind took the gas west and out to sea. He added that rain at the time would help dissipate the gas.

the weather

Skies were mostly cloudy across the province overnight with a few showers across central sections.

A ridge of high pressure moving slowly eastward across the province will give sunny skies to many regions today. However there will be a few showers along the north coast and in eastern and northern sections of the province.

A Pacific disturbance will bring increasing cloud and showers with possible thundershowers to southwestern B.C. on Thursday. Showers will linger along the north coast. The interior will have mainly sunny skies with increasing cloud in the evening.

Warning Shot Ban Opposed

No hard and fast policy on the practice of firing warning shots will be laid down by Victoria police board.

The board's decision today followed a report by Police Chief Jack Gregory, on the results of a poll among city police officers.

Gregory said 101 questionnaires were completed by members of the force, and of these 70 expressed opposition to any ban on firing warning shots at fleeing criminals or fugitives.

The officers concerned believe they are competent to use their discretion on when to fire warning shots, and accept the responsibility for their actions.

Gregory said the other 31 officers, mostly junior personnel of the patrol division, favored a prohibition.

The board chairman, Mayor Mike Young, said the situation should be watched but meanwhile no firm guidelines should be established.

There are no department rules specifically prohibiting the firing of warning shots, although under the Criminal Code an officer may shoot at someone only to protect his own life or the life of some other person.

The poll of Victoria officers was ordered last month following a March 16 incident in which a fleeing man received a leg injury from a warning shot which ricocheted. The incident occurred on lower Yates.

Madeline and Rudi: Two Ways of Looking at World

By RICHARD WRIGHT

(Wright is a novelist whose latest book is Fathing's Fortune. He wrote this essay for The Globe and Mail.)

At a party some weeks ago I found myself standing next to a pretty woman in her late twenties who made an unusual confession to another man and me. In the course of our conversation Madeline told us that she was sad a good deal of the time; somehow her life seemed to be in the shadow of some vague though palpable unease. She couldn't quite say why, but she intended to see a psychiatrist about it. As I said, the confession struck me as unusual, because to admit to sadness in an age hysterically devoted to happiness is both odd and courageous.

Now such confessions, especially at parties, are not always reliable guides to individual distress. But Madeline is no sleeve-clutching professional crybaby who is apt to bore strangers with the drunken details of some particularly murky private dilemma. On the contrary, she is a sensible and intelligent human. Moreover, she had drunk only a small glass of wine with her dinner. She mentioned her sadness in a detached, almost clinical tone which suggested not so much self-pity as wonder. Behind her prosaic announcement lay the suggestion that this sadness was worth beholding and examining. But her confession clearly irritated the man next to me, a splendidly civilized if somewhat abrupt fellow who came to Canada after the Hungarian student uprising in 1956. Not only has Rudi hurled paving stones at Red Army tanks, but he is old enough to remember the miseries and terrors of life during the Second World War. As a child he had huddled with his family in shattered cellars and listened to machine gun fights between Russian and German soldiers. He is now a successful businessman. To Rudi, Madeline's sadness was both comical and self-indulgent and he had difficulty concealing his exasperation.

He subjected her to a brief and pointed interrogation. She was young, was she not? Why, 26 is the prime of life! Agreed? Were there financial problems? Madeline, it turned out, made $20,000 per annum in an advertising agency. Well, then — health? Some dreadful terminal illness too horrible to mention? No? Well, then, it must be loneliness! Obviously what was needed here was a good lover. A European, perhaps?

Madeline smiled and I could guess why Rudi had achieved such success in business. But no, there was already a man in Madeline's life and their relationship was, as they say, nowadays, viable. Perhaps then she had recently lost someone, a beloved parent? Again no, for her parents were alive and well and living in a Florida condominium.

At the end of the interrogation Madeline was still smiling while still insisting that her life was sad. Rudi thought this nonsense. You are young and healthy. You have money and friends. You are living in the best country in the world. I have been hungry and I have dodged bullets. I came to Canada 20 years ago and I was penniless. Now I have a thriving business. Who has time for sadness? You Canadians, I do not understand you.

Both Madeline and Rudi are right, of course. Madeline ventures forth each morning feeling an acute sense of loss. She will tell you that she is well but nevertheless there is something amiss in her life. In many ways people like Rudi are more fortunate. They are like the man who walks away unhurt from an automobile wreck. For a brief moment at least his life is charged with a fierce and radiant light. He may now compare states of existence. That was bad but I survived. I'm still alive and this is good. All the minor irritants of ordinary existence vanish before the simple gift of life. If the ordeal is spectacular or dramatic enough, say a war or a term in a prison camp, he may just get through an ordinary day in a large North American city during the last quarter of the twentieth century.

But Madeline has encountered neither war nor imprisonment. Unlike her parents, she has not even endured financially pressing times. For over a quarter of a century she has lived in a country in which her daily portion is an abundant measure of the good life. Theologians and social historians are forever writing about contemporary man's alienation by which I take them to mean that people like Madeline have no consistent notion of where they fit into the grand scheme of things. Unlike, for instance, a thirteenth-century Venetian or a seventeenth-century immigrant to Virginia, Madeline is an authentic wayfarer, uneasy about the road and uncertain about the destination. Unfortunately, many of the signposts have either been defaced or taken down.

For most people, the old consolations no longer console. There has been a fundamental loss of faith in the central mysteries of the Church and organized religion no longer successfully meets the challenge of contemporary discontent. Nature, an ancient remedy for wounded souls, has now been watered down to the two-hour car trip to summer cottages or ski resorts. As for art, it offers little to Madeline. At university she majored in film. Not for her the triumphant suffering and redemption of Oedipus or Job or Lear. She will have to make do with Fellini or Bergman or Howard Hawks.

Her last hope resides in science. Perhaps a psychiatrist can tell her why she appears to be so out of step with others. She will listen to a psychiatrist for he is scientifically certified to help. But one wonders what he can say. If he is a foolish psychiatrist (and psychiatry has fools like any other profession) he may tell Madeline to pull herself together and get out more — take an evening course, join a fitness club, etc., etc.

She could do as well listening to Rudi, whose advice is free. Besides, she already belongs to a professional women's group which meets every Thursday night. And she has been seen more than once on the jogging track at the Y. Not much help there! What to do? Well, why not start with a few questions?

Is Madeline's sadness (which is more than a temperamental predisposition to melancholy) a unique phenomenon of the last half of the twentieth century? If so, why should this be in a rich and powerful society? Is it possible that the deep misgivings about modernity felt by most artists since the middle of the last century are finally seeping through and infecting large portions of the population with a serious malaise? Is there, after all, something new under the sun?

A Time To Censor

By ROBERT NIELSEN
Toronto Star

Folly in advanced societies carries no guarantee of being less stupid or squalid than in primitive lands. But it may be able to call on more imposing justifications.

On any respectable list of the Great Ideas of Western Man the following dictum of John Stuart Mill, the intellectual giant of 19th century liberalism, would probably be found:

"If all mankind minus one were of one opinion, and only one person were of the contrary opinion, mankind would be no more justified in silencing that one person than he, if he had the power, would be justified in silencing mankind."

Applied literally and absolutely, that would rule out censorship in any circumstances. Which is exactly how Mill's spiritual heirs do apply it today to the problem of obscenity in print or pictures.

The 100 per cent libertarian position is simple: Since one man's obscenity is another's art or literature, it's too subjective a matter to be legally defined and prohibited. The case can be bolstered with a long list of historical instances where bluenosed censors couldn't see the art for the bare bosoms or the literary excellence for the four-letter words.

This view of the matter has generally prevailed over the last two decades, with results that sometimes embarrass its champions. They hadn't expected quite so many merchants of filth to burst through the opened door along with the liberated artists.

The coming thing now is child pornography — photos and films of children as young as 7, though more often 10 or 11, performing the known gamut of sexual acts with other children and adults. The children are of course recruited, directed and paid by the adults who produce this material.

Sexual abuse of children and contributing to delinquency are offences in the American states, notably California, where production of such stuff is increasing. But convictions are hard to get because the adults and children involved are rarely willing to talk. Distributors are also hard to catch and convict because they destroy records of shipments and use false addresses.

The retailer of child porn magazines and films should be most vulnerable to counterattack. But it is to his rescue that the all-out civil libertarians ride, crying "No censorship!" Enslaved by principle, they use the "thin edge of the wedge" argument against prosecuting sellers, and insist that the law must deal with the original acts.

Nor can judges be relied upon to crack down on retailers in the present permissive atmosphere, which sometimes confers near-celebrity status on porn stars.

"The judiciary is very scared of being on the 'wrong' side," says Charles Rembar, a New York lawyer who successfully defended Lady Chatterley's Lover and Fanny Hill against obscenity charges in the 1960s. "Not so long ago they were willing to call An American Tragedy obscene; now they are unwilling to call anything obscene."

He thinks such absolutism is nonsense, and that the sellers of child porn should be punished.

Of course they should be, in Canada as well as the U.S. whenever this slime oozes across the border — if it hasn't already.

The whole subject of censorship is not in general a matter to be governed by absolutes, but by as much good sense as society is capable of mustering at particular places and times. To be more explicit, obscenity cases should be decided by judges relying on their own wisdom and on their understanding of a community's tastes and mores.

Some stupid errors will be made, as they always have been, under such a pragmatic regime. Out in the boondocks some judge will ban The Catcher in the Rye or, more currently, Lady Oracle.

All this means is that most of the people in that particular boondock will be left with the literature they deserve, while enlightened souls among them, at some bother and expense, will acquire the forbidden fruits in some other jurisdiction.

But I'm ready to rise above pragmatism, and spurn consistency, on behalf of one absolute principle: Child porn is an abomination that should be universally banned. I'm even ready to write the preamble for the legislation:

"Whereas the debauching of children for the delectation of drooling creeps is offensive to Canadians' sense of decency, be it hereby enacted . . ."

'Child porn is an abomination that should be universally banned'

THE NATION
An Editorial

The president has approved $2 billion worth of arms sales to various countries around the world, principally to members of NATO. He could have O.K.'d $6 billion worth, so there are no grounds for discouragement. In the great old days of arms merchandising under Nixon-Ford-Kissinger, it is likely that the whole sum would have been approved in a minute.

The Washington Post reports another heartening attitude toward the arms business on the part of the new administration. The paper quotes Under Secretary of State for Security Assistance Lucy W. Benson (a former president of the League of Women Voters) as saying that the criteria for approving arms sales abroad now include a "negative presumption." Before giving approval, she said, the questions asked are: "Do they have to have this? And why do they have to have this?" That is a big step away from the old system when the Pentagon had an office whose job it was to persuade every small nation that would let its salesmen in the door that it needed the latest and hottest in destructive hardware. (At one point Iran was sold on a $25 billion radar system.)

It should be said that President Carter, who is personally reviewing each transaction before approving it, is living up to a campaign promise on this matter. He said back then that our arms sales policy was "as cynical as it is dangerous" and "almost completely unrestricted." He has called for a complete review of this whole business and the National Security Council is also scheduled to consider a new policy on arms sales.

So much for the "merchant of death" side of the U.S. arms business. We also, of course, give away a vast amount of the stuff to our "friends" around the world. It is called "military aid." Now it seems that some of these friends of ours are offended by all this talk about "human rights," and some of them have indignantly cancelled their deals with the Pentagon. A recent count shows that $75 million worth of American military aid has been spurned by countries, mainly dictatorships, which resent the moral strictures from Washington. Brazil, which turned down $50 million worth, is the largest spurner (Brazil is also angry with Carter for blocking its nuclear deal with West Germany).

Does this mean that our former clients will run straight to Moscow with their weapons shopping lists? If they do, is that bad? If all of the eighty-four nations which receive arms aid from the United States queue up at the Kremlin arsenal, the line will rival the one outside Lenin's tomb in length, if not in patience. There would be a long wait for delivery, as the Egyptians found out. Meanwhile, we could be figuring out what to do with all those new ploughshares. It is not the grimmest of pictures.

The American Way of Tax

russell baker

The Tax Man was very cross about Figg. Figg's way of life did not conform to the way of life several governments wanted Figg to pursue. Nothing inflamed the Tax Man more than insolent and capricious disdain for governmental desires. He summoned Figg to the Temple of Taxation.

"What's the idea of living in a rental apartment over a delicatessen in the city, Figg?" he inquired.

Figg explained that he liked urban life. In that case, said the Tax Man, he was raising Figg's city sales and income taxes. "If you want them cut, you'll have to move out to the suburbs," he said.

To satisfy his local governments, Figg gave up the city and rented a suburban house. The Tax Man summoned him back to the Temple.

"Figg" he said, "you have made me sore wroth with your way of life. Therefore, I am going to soak you for more federal income taxes." And he squeezed Figg until beads of blood popped out along the seams of Figg's wallet.

"Mercy, good Tax Man" Figg gasped. "Tell me how to live so that I may please my government, and I shall obey."

The Tax Man told Figg to quit renting and buy a house. The government wanted everyone to accept large mortgage loans from bankers. If Figg complied, it would cut his taxes.

Figg bought a house, which he did not want, in a suburb where he did not want to live, and he invited his friends and relatives to attend a party celebrating his surrender to a way of life that pleased his government.

The Tax Man was so furious that he showed up at the party with blood-shot eyes. "I have had enough of this, Figg" he declared. "Your government doesn't want you entertaining friends and relatives. This will cost you plenty."

Figg immediately threw out all his friends and relatives, then asked the Tax Man what sort of people his government wished him to entertain. "Business associates," said the Tax Man. "Entertain plenty of business associates, and I shall cut your taxes."

To make the Tax Man and his government happy, Figg began entertaining people he didn't like in the house he didn't want in the suburb where he didn't want to live.

Then was the Tax Man enraged indeed. "Figg," he thundered, "I will not cut your taxes for entertaining straw bosses, truck drivers and pothole fillers."

"Why not?" said Figg. "These are the people I associate with in my business."

"Which is what?" asked the Tax Man.

"Earning my pay by the sweat of my brow," said Figg.

"Your government is not going to bribe you for performing salaried labor," said the Tax Man. "Don't you know, you imbecile, that tax rates on salaried income are higher than on any other kind?"

And he taxed the sweat of Figg's brow at a rate that drew exquisite shrieks of agony from Figg and little cries of joy from Washington, which already had more sweated brows than it needed to sustain the federally approved way of life.

"Get into business, or minerals, or international oil," warned the Tax Man," or I shall make your taxes as the taxes of 10."

Figg went into business, which he hated, and entertained people he didn't like in the house he didn't want in the suburb where he did not want to live, and the Tax Man and all the governments and the nation were happy, except for a rising incidence of divorce, tax forms, madness, fatuity, loneliness and suicide.

At length the Tax Man summoned Figg for an angry lecture. He demanded to know why Figg had not bought a new plastic factory to replace his old metal and wooden plant. "I hate plastic," said Figg. "Your government is sick and tired of metal, wood and everything else that smacks of the real stuff, Figg," roared the Tax Man, seizing Figg's purse. "Your depreciation is all used up."

There was nothing for Figg to do but go to plastic, and the Tax Man rewarded him with brand new depreciation schedule plus an investment credit deduction from the bottom line.

Thanks to the money the Tax Man granted him for living in a suburb where he didn't want to live and for entertaining people he didn't like in a house he didn't want while engaging in work he wasn't interested in with plastic equipment he hated, Figg began to make a profit. The Tax Man was outraged.

"What's the idea of making a profit, Figg?" he demanded, placing his iron grip on Figg's bank account.

"Spare me," Figg pleaded.

"Only if you sell your business," roared the Tax Man.

"After forcing me to get into business, the government now wants me to get out of business?" asked Figg.

"Exactly," said the Tax Man. "Sell, and I'll tax the profit from the sale at a delightfully low capital-gain rate of only 25 per cent. Otherwise, I'd take the meat ax to those profits."

Figg sold. Having nothing to do with his time, he decided to die. The Tax Man was furious. "Just try it," he said, "and I'll strip your estate down to the stalk. So Figg changed his mind.

This is why people are living so much longer nowadays. The government needs a large supply of people over 65 to keep the Social Security tax rising.
